

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

REPORTS of the CHIEF REGISTRAR of FRIENDLY SOCIETIES, for the Year ending 31st December 1901, pursuant to 34 & 35 Vict. c. 31, s. 17 ; 56 & 57 Vict. c. 39, s. 76 ; 59 & 60 Vict. c. 25, s. 6 ; and 60 & 61 VICT. c. 37, s. 3.

PART A.

This Report and the similar Report relating to Building Societies, which is required by Section 27 of the Building Societies Act, 1894, to be presented separately (Parliamentary Paper, No. 108), are together a complete statement of the proceedings of the Registrars of Friendly Societies during the year 1901.

I. PROCEEDINGS WITH REGARD TO LEGISLATION, &c.

(a.) Public and General Acts.

No statute affecting the business of this office was passed in 1901.

The Friendly Societies (Outdoor Relief) Bill passed through all its stages in the House of Commons, but was rejected in the House of Lords. It was a Bill for taking away from the Guardians of the Poor the discretion given them by the Outdoor Relief Friendly Societies Act, 1894, and rendering it obligatory upon them to disregard any amount of sick pay up to 5s. a week received from a Friendly Society by an applicant for outdoor relief, and to grant him the same amount of relief that they would give to a man who had not that income.

As in recent years, many Bills were presented to the House of Commons for providing old age pensions, but were not proceeded with. They all raised the same practical difficulties that beset the schemes which were reported upon by Lord Rothschild's Committee, and in most cases involved an expenditure exceeding that which would be required by the scheme reported upon by Sir Edward Hamilton's Committee.

A Bill to prohibit compulsory membership of unregistered shop clubs or thrift funds, and to regulate such as are duly registered was also introduced, but not proceeded with.

(b.) Local and Private Acts.

As in 1900, so in 1901, an unusually large number of Bills were promoted by municipal corporations and other public bodies during the session, containing provisions for the establishment of Thrift Funds and of compulsory Superannuation Funds. Among the former were the Corporations of Wallasey, Derby, Southend-on-Sea, Blackpool, Bolton, Manchester, Burton-upon-Trent, Smethwick, and Kingston-upon-Hull. Among the latter, the Great Eastern Railway, the Metropolitan Railway, and the Alexandra (Newport and South Wales) Docks and Railway.

These Bills were referred, in the usual manner, by the Lords of the Treasury to this Office, and reported upon, and the reports communicated to the Chairman of Committees of the two Houses of Parliament.

In the case of the Blackpool Improvement Bill, the Committee of the House of Commons reported :—

That the Bill authorises the establishment of a fund to provide for payments by way of compensation for injury or accidents to persons in the employ of the Promoters. In connection therewith a Report from the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies was laid before the Committee and considered by them, and as the Promoters did not seek to in any way contract themselves out of liability, and had made an amendment suggested by the Registrar to make that provision still more plain, the Committee sanctioned the establishment of the fund.

In the case of the Smethwick Corporation Bill :—

That the Bill authorises the establishment of a fund for the encouragement of thrift among certain of the officers and servants of the Corporation. In connection therewith a Report from the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies was laid before the Committee and considered by them, but it appeared that the recommendations of that Report had been given effect to during the passage of the Bill through the House of Lords by the insertion of a clause to the effect that the scheme for the establishment of a Thrift Fund shall not come into operation until it has been registered by the Registrar of Friendly Societies under the Friendly Societies Act subject to the provisions of the Bill.

That in accordance with the Instruction of the House, the Committee have inserted a clause making applicable the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act, 1896, to any Superannuation or Provident Fund to be established under the powers of the Bill.

In the case of the Kingston-upon-Hull Corporation Bill, Part VII., relating to superannuation, was withdrawn.

In the case of the Metropolitan Railway Bill, the Committee reported :—

That a Report from the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies had been submitted by the Treasury to the Committee respecting Clause 44 of the Bill dealing with the investment of Savings Bank and Provident Funds, but the Committee found the Report was favourable to the Clause as proposed, inasmuch as it strengthened the position of the depositors, and the Committee agree with the Report.

In the case of the Wallasey Improvement Bill it was proposed by Mr. Strachey in the House of Commons :—

“That it be an Instruction to the Committee on the Wallasey Improvement Bill to insert the following clause :—

No scheme for the establishment of a superannuation or provident fund under this Act shall come into operation until it has been registered by the Registrar of Friendly Societies under the Friendly Societies Act.”—Debate arising, Motion was made “That the Debate be now adjourned.”

Mr. Speaker put the Question to the House :—The House divided : Ayes 102, Noes 175 ; and Mr. Strachey's Motion was carried by 186 to 114.

Ultimately, in this and other Bills by which Thrift Funds were proposed to be established, the following clause was inserted :—

“Any scheme for the establishment of a superannuation or provident fund under this part of this Act shall not come into operation until the Corporation shall in respect of that fund have been registered under the Friendly Societies Act, 1896, and the provisions of that Act (except the proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 8 and Section 41) so far as they are applicable and are not inconsistent with the provisions of this part of this Act shall apply (a) as if the Corporation were a Society to which that Act applies, and were the trustees of such Society ; (b) as if the scheme were the rules of such Society ; (c) as if the superannuation or provident funds were the funds of such Society ; and (d) as if the contributors to the fund were the members of such Society.

It cannot at present be stated what addition to the work and responsibility of this Office will result from these enactments, as none of the bodies in question have yet submitted their thrift fund schemes for registry, either under this clause or under the clause adopted in 1900.

(c) Colonial Bills.

Bills for the regulation of Friendly Societies and Industrial and Provident Societies for the Colony of Jamaica and others for the Colony of Barbados have been prepared in the respective colonies, and forwarded to this Office by the Secretary of State for consideration. They have been carefully examined in detail, and recommendations made for their amendment, which will no doubt in due course be considered by the Colonial authorities.

(d) Savings Banks Regulations.

A new Trustee Savings Banks Investments Regulation has been made by the Treasury, with the consent of the National Debt Commissioners.

New forms of Declaration to be made by or on behalf of the trustees of Friendly Societies, Charitable Societies and Penny Banks on depositing funds in a Savings Bank certified under the Act of 1863, have also been prescribed by the Commissioners.

The regulation and forms are printed in Appendix C.

(e) Friendly Societies and the Medical Profession.

The excellent proposal, originating with Dr. Bruce, for the establishment of a Conciliation Board for the settlement of disputes between Friendly Societies and their branches and the medical officers engaged by them, which was adopted in 1899 by the National Conference of Friendly Societies, has not even yet proceeded further, the British Medical Association still not having appointed any medical representatives. A committee of that Association had an interview on the matter with the representatives of the Friendly Societies Conference, but it led to no result.

In the hope of bringing the parties again together, I addressed the following letter to the medical papers :—

“As it was at my invitation that the representatives of the medical profession did me the honour on several occasions to meet the Committee of the Friendly Societies Conference at this office, I ask your permission to offer a few observations on the present position of the question between them.

When Dr. Bruce, one of the direct representatives of the profession, suggested the formation of a Joint Board of Conciliation, the suggestion was felt to be a very happy one, and it would be much to be regretted that it should fall through.

I am, therefore, glad to observe that the Friendly Societies Conference still expresses its anxiety to secure the appointment of a Conciliation Board for the settlement of disputes between friendly societies and their medical officers, and has re-appointed its Committee to continue the negotiations. I was also glad to observe in Dr. Elliston's letter to the Secretary of that Conference the proposal that the Conciliation Board “shall be entirely unfettered in its deliberations, and shall be allowed to try to find a remedy for every grievance of both sides.”

Unfortunately, however, as I venture to think, the letter proceeds to lay down what is called the “wage limit” as a necessary preliminary to entering upon these deliberations, and has been met by a declaration that it cannot be agreed to under any circumstances. Unless this attitude can be somewhat modified on both sides, the Conciliation Board is not likely to be formed.

The real question is, the proper remuneration of the medical man, and the wage limit is only a part of that question, and not, I think, so important a part as both sides seem to consider it.

It has been quite pertinently asked, “Do the friendly societies ask for medical relief as a charity? or do they wish to sweat the medical profession? or are they willing to pay a fair price for the services rendered to them by it?” I know them well enough to answer the question without hesitation. They desire to pay a fair price for the services rendered to them. They are neither beggars nor sweaters. How is the fair price to be ascertained? The medical man is to say, taking the society as a whole, for what sum paid by every member, whether sick or well, he is willing to attend those who are sick. He fixes that price, not at the rate at which he attends upon the very poor, nor at the rate at which he attends upon the comparatively rich, but at the reasonable rate which will on the whole pay him for his services. If his remuneration were not collected for him by the friendly society, he might in some cases fail to get it at all, for the obvious reason that a man may be able to pay a small yearly sum, but not able to pay a large doctor's bill. Now, how does the circumstance that, after a time, one or more of the members earns more than 120*l.* a year, which is the proposed wage limit, affect this contract? It can only injure the medical man if that particular member happens to fall ill, and if the difference between the remuneration that member would have to pay as a private patient and that upon which the medical man estimates his claim to remuneration from the friendly society is greater than the amount the medical man gains by receiving remuneration from the friendly society in cases where he would have got none at all. In other words, the contract between the medical man and the society is based on an average, and if one patient is above the average there are others who are below it. If the loss to the medical man is greater than the gain, all he has to do is to revise his terms, not necessarily to exclude from the average any particular cases. It is at that point that the operation of the Conciliation Board would be beneficial.

The constitution of a friendly society is essentially democratic. All join for the same benefit, and pay, according to their ages, the same contribution. They do not consider anybody too good for them, and do not care to be asked to exclude a member merely because he is rich. While they know that there is much in the kindly services of the medical man that no money can purchase, they are willing to pay such fair professional remuneration as on the average is found to be sufficient to retain those services.

I venture, therefore, as an independent onlooker, to suggest to Skill and to Thrift, the two parties to this dispute, equally admirable and worthy of respect, whether the one need insist on absolute exclusion of a member by the wage-limit test, and whether the other need insist on the absolute exclusion of the wage-limit test from consideration. Conceding these points I think they might again approach each other, and, I trust, with good result."

The subject was much discussed in the medical papers, but no satisfactory conclusion has been reached.

(f) Congress on Tuberculosis.

Having been invited by this Congress to read a paper on the Relation of Friendly Societies to the proposed Sanatoria for Tuberculosis, I stated the conditions upon which Friendly Societies might legally contribute to such undertakings, or themselves join in establishing them, and I submitted statistics as to the extent to which Friendly Societies and Trade Unions are affected by illness and death from tuberculosis which led me to think that the liability of their members to this disease was less than that of the general population, owing to the medical selection of the members. It also appeared to me that the contribution the societies could afford would be too small to be of practical use. I was not sorry, however, afterwards, to find that Mr. Chapman, who represented the Ancient Order of Foresters at the Congress, expressed in his Report to that Order a more hopeful view of the possibilities of co-operation between the societies and the sanatoria than I had been able to form.

II. GENERAL STATEMENT OF THE BUSINESS OF THE CENTRAL OFFICE IN 1901.

The number of new registrations showed a recovery from the diminution experienced in 1900. The total registries of new societies, branches, unions, and schemes were 873 as against 732—the increase being, in Working Men's Clubs, 47, in Industrial and Provident Societies, 45, in Building Societies, 25, in specially authorised societies, 14, in Trade Unions, 9, in branches of Friendly Societies, 3, and in Scientific and Literary Societies, 2. The number of new Friendly Societies in 1901 was precisely the same as in 1900, 144. There was a decrease of 2 in Certified Loan Societies, and 2 in Workmen's Compensation Schemes. The total number of rules, amendments of rules, appointments, removals, and special resolutions registered was 9,374 as against 8,535.

The fees received and paid into the Exchequer during the financial year 1900–1901 were 752*l.*

The weight of correspondence carried for the Central Office during the year ended 31st March 1901 is stated in the Postmaster-General's Report to have been 129,929 ounces.

The costs incurred in these prosecutions were 149*l.* 17*s.* 3*d.*, of which 103*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.* was recovered from the Defendants.

Particulars of the prosecutions during the year 1900 will be found at pages 350 to 359 of Appendix K. to my Report for that year (Parliamentary Paper 35—C., Sess. 1901) and particulars of those during the year 1901 in Appendix K. to this Report.

III. PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE FRIENDLY SOCIETIES ACT, 1896.

Section 8.—Societies registered.

The 144 Friendly Societies registered in 1901 may be classified as follows :—

Dividing Societies	-	-	46
Societies in connection with collieries, &c.	-	-	6
Hebrew Societies (besides 3 “dividing” and 3 “orders”)	-	-	6
Collecting Societies	-	-	6
Juvenile Societies	-	-	9
Medical Societies	-	-	4
Orders	-	-	9
Other Societies	-	-	58

No Cattle Insurance Society was registered.

The benevolent Society registered was a Pension Fund of Good Templars.

Of the 96 working men's clubs, 17 appear to be political, and 8 are in connection with bands.

Of the 37 specially authorised societies, 29 are loan societies, 4 for the study of music, 3 for fidelity guarantee, and 1 for the promotion of agriculture.

Section 18.—Registry of New Branches.

In 1901, 345 new Branches of Orders were registered, as against 344 in 1899, as follows:—

34 other Orders registering less than 10 each - - - - -	73	-	61
TOTAL - - - - -	345	73	72

The two principal Temperance Orders registered 102 branches between them, and four smaller Temperance Orders registered 8, making 110, or more than 30 per cent. of the whole number. The Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Manchester Unity, registered a larger number of new branches than in any year for several years back. The two Dividing Orders registered 81 branches between them. The establishment of a number of Orders among the Jewish community is noteworthy. Six of these registered 12 branches during the year. The great decline in the number of branches registered by the smaller Orders will also be observed.

Section 20.—Registry of Branches as Societies.

A body which had been registered as the Loyal Rose of Langley Moor Lodge 667 Branch of the Ancient Noble Order of United Oddfellows, Bolton Unity, obtained registry as a society under the name of the Rose of Langley Moor Independent Friendly Society without obtaining the certificate of secession or expulsion required by their duties from the Secretary of the Order, upon a statement in the application for registry that it had not been previously registered. On the fact becoming known, the registry of the Society was cancelled pursuant to s. 77 of the Act; and proceedings were taken to enforce the branch returns under its original registry. The solicitor appearing for the lodge and the committee of management, admitted their liability and undertook to furnish the Returns.

Section 26.—Audit.

For the year ending 29th June 1901 there were 103 public auditors appointed. Of these, 44 were not employed by a single society under the Friendly Societies Act. The others were employed by 362 societies and branches under those Acts. One made 73 audits; another 57; no other made more than 18; leaving the remaining 214 to be divided among 56 auditors, or a little less than 4 each. The total of 362 is 65 more than the number of audits made by the public auditors in the previous year, and the demand for their services has steadily increased for several years past.

The following is a statement of the number of audits of societies under the Friendly Societies Act made by public auditors during the last 10 years :

	Year ending 31st December.	Number of Public Auditors.	Number of Audits.

Section 27.—Annual Returns.

Appendix K. to my last Report is an important Return of 357 pages, which contains matter which will, I hope, be useful for reference in future years, and to which, therefore, I desire to call special attention. It comprises a list of every Society in the United Kingdom registered under the Friendly Societies Act, with its registered office and date of establishment, and the number of members, and amount of the funds at the end of the year 1899, and thus gives a comprehensive view of the Friendly Society movement in the last year of the 19th century. In addition, it gives for the unaffiliated Friendly Societies in each county and of each class, and for each of the affiliated Orders, particulars of the number of members admitted, deceased, and withdrawn during the year, and remaining at the end of the year, grouped in five groups of ages; details of the receipts and payments of the benefit and management funds respectively, and particulars of the liabilities and assets, showing the manner in which the funds are invested. From these it appears that the number of members of ordinary affiliated and unaffiliated Friendly Societies (exclusive of Collecting Burial Societies) increased during the year by 104,402 and amounted to 5,217,261. The distribution of these members according to ages is approximately as follows :—

Under 16 years	-	-	-	363,000
Between 16 and 20	-	-	-	358,000
" 20 " 50	-	-	-	3,522,000
" 50 " 65	-	-	-	761,000
Over 65	-	-	-	213,000
Total	-	-	-	5,217,000

It may be gathered from this Return, as compared with Mr. Sutton's calculations upon the Returns for former years, that there has been a steady increase in the proportion of aged members of Friendly Societies :—

In 1856 to 1860	-	The proportion of male members of Friendly Societies who attained the age of 65 was	{	2·0354 per cent.
" 1861 " 1870	-			2·4730 " "
" 1876 " 1880	-			3·5339 " "
" 1899 - -	-			4·0840 " "

The proportion of males of 16 years of age and upwards in the general population who attain the age of 65 is 6·99 per cent.

The average contribution per member in an unaffiliated society is 17s. 1d. ; in an affiliated society 1l. 6s. 11d. ; having increased in the former case, since 1885, from 14s. 4d., and diminished in the latter case from 1l. 11s. 4d.

The Appendix in question contains an abstract of the returns of 26,431 Societies and branches, having 32,974,517*l.* funds ; and it contains an analysis of the investment of those funds, and some observations on the cases of irregular investment that were disclosed. It is satisfactory to observe, however, as a comparison of this analysis with that made in 1877, that these irregular investments have diminished. Some remarkable changes have occurred since that date in the investments favoured by Friendly Societies. In 1877, they invested 42 per cent. of their funds in Savings Banks, with the National Debt Commissioners, and in the Public Funds ; 46 per cent. in land, building, and mortgages, and local and other securities ; and 12 per cent. in miscellaneous ways. In 1899 the investments of the first class had diminished to 22 per cent., and those of the second class had increased to 68 per cent., the miscellaneous item falling to 10 per cent.

An analysis is also made of the Friendly Societies according to the number of members, from which it appears that the smaller societies are richer relatively to the number of members than the larger. Thus in England and Wales the societies with less than 1,000 members have funds of 7*l.* 7*s.* 5*d.* per member ; those with 1,000 and under 2,000, 5*l.* 7*s.* 4*d.* ; those with 2,000 and under 5,000, 4*l.* 6*s.* 5*d.* ; and those of 5,000 and over, 3*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.* Particulars of 229 centenarian societies are given, one of which, in England, the Friendly Benefit Society of Bethnal Green, dates back to the 17th century, having been established in 1687. Four in Scotland are still older, one, the Incorporation of Carters in Leith, having been founded in 1555. Another society in London cannot fix a precise date for its foundation, but claims to have been established in the reign of William III.

The before-mentioned figures relate to ordinary Friendly Societies only. The return also contains particulars of Collecting Societies, Benevolent Societies, Working Men's Club, specially authorised societies, distinguishing the specially authorised Loan Societies, and of Medical, and Shipwreck Societies, and Cattle Insurance Societies. It therefore comprises a complete view of all the groups of societies, in the United Kingdom, that come under the operation of the Friendly Societies Act. The return reflects credit on the Statistical Clerk of this office, under whose supervision it has been prepared.

Section 28.—Quinquennial Valuation.

The following are particulars of dispensations from valuation, granted during the year 1901 :—

Ground of Dispensation.	England and Wales.	Scotland.	Ireland.	United Kingdom.
That the Society consists wholly of persons under 21 years of age.	66	3	—	69
That the Society divides its funds - - -	83	—	—	83
That the Society is supported by levies - - -	84	2	1	87
That the Society has few members and small funds -	21	—	—	21
That a valuation is inapplicable to its purposes - -	17	1	—	18
TOTAL - - -	271	6	1	278

Particulars of the valuations received during the year 1900, are given at pages 337 to 349 of Appendix K. to my Report for that year. (Parliamentary Papers, 35—1, Sess. 1901.)

The valuations received during the year 1901 were, for England and Wales, 3,683 ; for Scotland, 294 ; for Ireland, 4 ; total, 3,981.

The number of valuations received in successive quinquennial periods shows a satisfactory increase as follows :—

1882	-	-	-	3,755	14,144
1883	-	-	-	2,930
1884	-	-	-	1,448

1887	-	-	-	2,796
1888	-	-	-	3,013
1889	-	-	-	1,428
1890	-	-	-	2,582
1891	-	-	-	4,717
1892	-	-	-	4,002
1893	-	-	-	2,719
1894	-	-	-	1,611	15,367	-	- 821 or 5·65 per cent.
1895	-	-	-	2,553
1896	-	-	-	4,482
1897	-	-	-	3,756
1898	-	-	-	3,027
1899	-	-	-	3,248	16,343	-	- 976 or 6·35 per cent.
1900	-	-	-	2,331
1901	-	-	-	3,981
Total in 20 years				-	60,390

The public valuers appointed under the Friendly Societies Act for the year 1902 are as follows :—

Thomas G. Ackland, 3 and 4, Clement's Inn, London, W.C.

George S. Crisford, Rock Life Office, New Bridge Street, Blackfriars, London, E.C.

George Lisle, 5, North Saint David Street, Edinburgh.

James Meikle, Scottish Provident Institution, 6, St. Andrew Square, Edinburgh.

H. J. Nahmes, 8, Cope Street, Anglesea Street, Dublin.

C. H. E. Rea, 314, Clement's Inn, London, W.C.

T. J. Searle, Mansion House Chambers, Bucklersbury, E.C.

Thomas Y. Strachan, 20 and 21, Laurence Pountney Lane, London, E.C.

Alfred W. Watson, 40, Shakespeare Street, Nottingham.

Section 62.—Payments on Death of Children.

On the death of a child under 5 years of age, two certificates were applied for and granted by the Registrar of Deaths, one for 3*l.* payable by the Prudential Assurance Company and one for 3*l.* payable by the Lees Economical Friendly Burial Society, making the total of 6*l.* allowed by the section. The Lees Society, however, paid 6*l.*, notwithstanding the previous payment of 3*l.* by the Prudential Company, and entered in its books 3*l.* in respect of funeral money and 3*l.* as a donation. Proceedings being taken against the Society and its Committee of Management, they were condemned in fines and costs amounting to 10*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*

It may be observed that the insurance in the Lees Society was stated to have been effected by the grandmother of the child without the knowledge of its parents.

Section 68.—Disputes.

The following are particulars of the two disputes settled in 1901 under the Friendly Societies Act :—

1.—Accidental Death.

The Yorkshire Fire Brigade Friendly Society was instituted (according to Rule 2) for the purpose of affording relief to firemen, being members of the Society, who may be incapacitated from following their employment by reason of accidents occasioned or incurred while engaged in the execution of Brigade duties, whether going to, while at, or returning from a fire or official practice ; and the sum of 100*l.* shall be given in case any such accident as aforesaid should prove fatal, also the sum of 5*l.* shall be given on the decease of a member from natural causes.

Mr. Ebenezer Meson, a member of the Batley Corporation Fire Brigade, was called out to a fire at half-past 1 on a Saturday afternoon in April 1900. He went off on his bicycle, and at that time appeared quiet and calm. On his way he met Police-Constable Hobson and called out to him, "Bright's Mill," indicating the place where the fire was. Shortly after he was seen by Mr. Crossley walking up Grafton Street, when he appeared a little excited, his face being rather white. About five minutes afterwards he was seen by the same person standing between the tram lines in Bradford Road watching for the Brigade to come. As the brigade approached he moved to the causeway and fell suddenly. Crossley turned him upon his back and thought he was dead. There was a scratch on his face, but no blood. Some children told Timothy Bruce that there was a fireman in a fit at the bottom of Grafton Street. He found Meson frothing at the mouth and partly conscious, but his face was discoloured. He ran for water and did his best to restore him, being an ambulance man. Meson died in his presence, and he assisted to remove the body. No post-mortem was held, but Dr. Walker gave it as his opinion that death was due to failure of the heart's action, probably aggravated by excitement and exertion, and was, therefore, due to natural causes, and the coroner's jury returned a verdict to that effect.

Held upon these facts, that the claim for 100*l.* could not be supported. Kershaw v. Ellis, 14th December 1901.

2.—Secession.

The Northern Brothers Lodge of the Improved Independent Order of Odd Fellows, South London Unity, gave notice of secession on 1st December 1896, and seceded from the Order on 1st June 1897. Questions arose between the Order and the Lodge as to the amounts respectively to be paid by each to the other. At the first hearing, on 10th July 1900, it was agreed by counsel for both parties that the amounts to be so paid should be ascertained under the new rule registered 1st May 1897. The parties being unable to fix that amount by agreement, the case was again brought before me, on 29th March 1901. Under that rule, the Lodge is to pay (1) all its liabilities to the funeral and executive council funds. It was agreed that there were no such liabilities. (2) The shares of all members who do not agree to secede, such share to be ascertained by an actuary to be appointed by the Executive Council of the Order. The actuary so appointed was Mr. James Blossom, and he ascertained the share to be 17*l.* 10*s.* (3) All expenses incurred by the Order in connection with the secession. This was left for me to determine, and I allowed 9*l.* 10*s.* for expenses properly incurred about the secession, irrespective of the law costs. (4) Its proportion of the deficiency in the funeral fund liabilities in respect to the whole of the Lodges in the Unity as shown in the last preceding valuation, such sum to be added to the funeral fund of the Order. On this head, Mr. Blossom was heard for the Order, and Mr. Strachan as actuary for the Lodge, and it was ascertained that the proportion of the deficiency would be 633*l.* The total to be paid by the Lodge is, therefore, 660*l.* The Order is to pay from the funeral fund, as thus increased, the share of the Lodge in the said fund, as calculated by the actuary appointed as aforesaid. Mr. Blossom certified that share to be 310*l.* Ordered and determined accordingly, on 12th April 1901, and also ordered that, except as before provided, each party pay its own costs. At the request of the Lodge a further order was made on 17th May determining that the Lodge had seceded from the Order on 1st June 1897 in pursuance of a notice given on 1st December 1896, and ordering that a certificate of secession be given to the Lodge by the Order on compliance by the Lodge with the previous order and determination. Smith and Others v. Stubbs and Others. Hearings, 10th July 1900 and 29th March 1901. Mr. W. M. Thompson, instructed by Messrs. Foy and Co., for the Lodge. Mr. Charles, instructed by Mr. Southgate, for the Order. Awards, 12th April 1901 and 7th May 1901.

Section 77.—Cancelling and Suspension of Registry.

Under this section the following proceedings have been taken :—

Notices warning societies of their liability of suspension of registry for failure to furnish valuation returns, in compliance with section 28 of the Friendly Societies Act, were sent to 50 societies, of which 38 have since furnished the valuations, and in the remaining cases, with one exception, valuers have been appointed and the valuations are being proceeded with.

Section 79.—Awards of Distribution of Funds.

The following Societies, which were Dissolved by Instrument in 1901, left the distribution of their funds to my award :—

Section 80.—Dissolutions by Award.

Particulars of the two Awards of Dissolution made during the year are given in the following Table :—

IV. PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE COLLECTING SOCIETIES ACT, 1896.

The proceedings taken in 1899 (see Report for that year, p. 150) to check the practice of transferring members from one society to another, without their consent, were continued in 1901, when 14 summonses for failure to give statutory notice of transfer were taken out, and convictions obtained.

The case was that of the Cumberland Life and Accident Friendly Society of Whitehaven, which had closed its doors without going through any legal form of dissolution. Proceedings were taken against the secretary to enforce the Annual Return and Valuation, which had become due, and for other neglects, and he was fined 10*l.* and costs.

Under the rules of this Society a large proportion of its income was available for expenses of management, but the amount actually expended greatly exceeded it, and the members of the Board themselves contributed 1,633*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* towards the deficiency. The Society was registered in November 1894, and the following is an abstract of the statements made in its annual returns:—

Year.	Contributions, &c. received.	Benefits paid.	Expended in Management, after deducting Contributions of Guarantors.
1895 - - -	1,151 0 5	420 12 8	558 19 11
1896 - - -	1,287 1 10	376 7 3	989 14 5
1897 - - -	1,471 8 11	462 6 4	998 6 2
1898 - - -	2,372 0 4	701 0 3	1,634 10 0
1899 - - -	3,048 2 4	985 15 10	1,979 15 5
	9,329 13 10	2,946 2 4	6,156 5 11

The total management expenditure of the five years, including the 1,633*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* contributed by members of the Board, was 7,789*l.* 16*s.* 5*d.*, or five-sixths of the members' contributions; but, allowing for these contributions by the Board, the net sum expended was as much as 66 per cent. of the contributions of members; so that, of every 3*d.* paid by the members, 2*d.* went for expenses of management, and only 1*d.* was applied to provide benefits for the members. When it is remembered that many of the contracts made by the Society were for endowments, which the Society could never hope to be able to pay, the dishonesty of this reckless management will be obvious.

The number of members in the later years appear to have been approximately 10,000, but 20,233 had been written off as forfeited. Some of the members had paid considerable sums in the course of their membership. The Directors appear to have been men of position in the neighbourhood, and alleged they were misled by the Secretary. He applied for the registry of the Society to be cancelled, but the request was not then complied with.

He proceeded to establish an unregistered society at Newcastle-on-Tyne, called the British Temperance and General Collecting Society, and took steps to transfer the business of the Cumberland Society to that body. It was in connection with this that proceedings were taken for breach of Section 14 of the Collecting Societies Act. Numerous members having made complaints to the Registrar as to these transfers, it was ascertained that at least seven cases of breach of the Act could be established, and summonses were taken out against Mr. Walter Marsh, the Secretary, and Mr. Wm. Craggs, the District Superintendent, who were both fined the maximum sum of 35*l.* and costs, though the magistrates afterwards reduced the penalty in the case of Mr. Craggs. Finally, the registry of the Cumberland Society was cancelled.

It is believed that this practice of illegal transfer has often been pursued and it is hoped these proceedings may tend to check it. The temptation to it lies probably in the circumstance that the commission allowed to agents on the first year's payment of a new member is much larger than that allowed on subsequent years; so that he has an interest in getting the member accepted by another society.

Another evil, but one which neither this Office nor the Registrar-General of Births, Deaths, and Marriages has statutory power to check, is that of insuring the lives of persons without insurable interest. This evil is believed to be growing. The following statement on the subject is extracted by the "Post Magazine and Insurance Monitor," from the "Wolverhampton Express and Star."

"At a meeting of the Wolverhampton Board of Guardians on January 31st, some remarkable statements were made as to the gambling by immoral speculators on the lives of wretched paupers.

"At question time Mr. Wolverson introduced the question. He said he believed there were people in their house who were insured up to their eyes, and he knew what he was talking about. (Several voices: Quite true.) He wanted to know whether any statistics with regard to such people had been taken by anyone in authority to ascertain the amount they were insured for, by whom they were insured, and what were the possibilities of recovering the cost of maintenance when such inmates died. He knew there were people mean enough to do anything. There were people mean enough to insure their fellow-beings and then send them to the workhouse to be kept by the ratepayers. He knew this was being done. (Hear, hear.)

"The Rev. W. L. Ward asked whether Mr. Wolverson's questions were not of the deepest public interest, and also whether it was or was not a fact that a person might be insured for various sums up to a thousand pounds, and not one of the people who picked up the money would be liable for the funeral expenses of the deceased.

"The Chairman said he could only answer the Rev. W. L. Ward's first question, which he did in the affirmative.

"The Clerk said he was under the same anxiety for investigation as Mr. Wolverson. An inmate could be insured by many people, but in none of the policies need the inmate have any direct interest, and, therefore, the guardians could not recover. The insurable interest of the person insured was given away in each case for the payment of a nominal sum of 2s. 6d. In another case, so he had been told, an inmate would not allow anyone to insure him for less than 5s. That man was in the workhouse now, and he was told there were 20 to 30 policies on his life. If that man died the guardians could not recover anything.

"Mr. Phillips said it was a vicious state of affairs.

"The Chairman: The Registrar-General said it was one of the most grievous things in the country, especially in the Black country.

"The discussion then ended."

By the Life Assurance Act, 1774 (14 Geo. 3. c. 48), which used to be called the Gambling Act, every insurance made on the life of a person in whom the assured has no interest, is void. The persons, therefore, who enter into these contracts cannot legally recover under them. When they are entered into with a registered collecting society, they are also illegal as being beyond the objects defined in the Friendly Societies Act, which provides only for the insurance of a sum at the death of a member, and does not allow of a member insuring a sum payable at the death of another person.

It appears from Appendix K. to my last Report, before-mentioned, that there are in Great Britain 46 collecting societies, of which 12 are in Lancashire and 10 in London. They have 5,922,615 members. The contributions paid during the year by the members were—

For benefits	1,142,257
For management	904,292

an average of 3s. 10d. per member for benefits and 3s. 1d. for management, or 6s. 11d. together, a little more than 1½d. per week. The amount paid for expenses is thus 79 per cent. of the amount paid for benefits.

The deaths during the year were 125,196. The amount of benefits paid was 960,537l. (nearly all for deaths; if it were all for deaths, it would average 7l. 13s. 6d. for each member deceased). The amount of expenses actually incurred in management was 873,765l., or 91 per cent. of the amount of benefits.

The total funds of the societies at the end of the year were 5,216,865*l.*, or (after deducting 9,179*l.* debts) 17*s.* 7*d.* per member, or less than 2½ years' income.

These funds are invested as follows:—

In Trustee and Post Office Savings	£
Banks, the Public Funds, and with the National Debt Commissioners	- 345,646 (7 per cent.)
In land, railways, and mortgages	- 1,976,161 (38 per cent.)
In local securities	- 2,719,682 (52 per cent.)
In sundry other ways	- 122,452 (2 per cent.)
Illegally invested or expended	- 52,924 (1 per cent.)
	<hr/> £5,216,865 <hr/>

It will be observed that the proportion of investments on Government security in these societies is only one-third of the proportion of such investments in ordinary Friendly Societies.

The Annual Return of the British United Thrift Collecting Society for 1900 showed that out of the contributions received in respect of the Benefit Fund, 97*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* had been applied towards management expenses. After summonses had been taken out against the trustees under Section 87 (3) for applying the said sum to purposes other than those expressed or directed in the rules of the Society the trustees restored the moneys in question to the proper fund, and the summonses were withdrawn on payment of costs.

V. PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACTS, 1897, 1900.

Three certificates were granted to new schemes in the year 1901, viz. :—

Scheme No. 68.—Lloyd's British Testing Company, Limited, Netherton and Tipton Workmen's Accident and Sick Benefit Club; for engineering works at Netherton. All the 107 workmen affected agreed. The payment upon death by accident to be 15*l.*, with 6*s.* per week to widow, and 1*s.* 6*d.* per week for each child up to 13 years of age. The payment for incapacity 10*s.* per week, with power to arrange for a composition to be fixed by a committee of the workmen. The extra benefits, payment on death, 10*l.*, and during incapacity 8*s.* a week, reduced to half-pay after 26 weeks, where such death or incapacity is not the result of accident. Maximum contribution of workmen, 2*d.* per week. Contribution of employer one-and-half times that of the workmen, with a guarantee of any deficiency. Actuarially reported upon by Mr. G. F. Hardy. Application first made, 13th March 1900; renewed, June 1901. Rules adopted after revision by Registrar, and certified 4th July 1901.

Scheme No. 83.—Council of the Metropolitan Borough of Woolwich, Parish of Eltham; employment in driving steam rollers, cleansing and constructing sewers and streets, sanitary, disinfecting, and other work for the Council. All the 12 workmen affected agreed. Compensation the same as in the Act. Additional benefits, sick pay and pension. No contributions by workmen. Application, 2nd April; Certificate, 18th April 1901.

Scheme No. 84.—Council of the Metropolitan Borough of Woolwich. Scheme for the workmen employed at the Council's baths and wash-houses. Agreed to by 13 out of the 14 workmen affected. Provisions the same as those of Scheme No. 83. Application 12th November; Certificate, 23rd December 1901.

Some complaints having been made under the Act in an informal way, it has been thought desirable to prescribe a form for such complaints, which will be found in Appendix C.

Returns for the year ending 30th June 1901 have been received in the prescribed form for the schemes which were in operation at that date. The following is a summary of the results:—

The two schemes entered into by railway companies were adopted by 40,431 out of a total of 43,044 workmen, who contributed to the aggregate 9,651*l.* during the year. The employers contributed 21,306*l.* The payments on death were 9,046*l.*; during incapacity 21,396*l.*; and for other benefits 184*l.* In one case there was a balance of 1,345*l.* at the end of the year. The number of deaths resulting from injury was 84, and in 79 of these 160 dependants were left. The number of cases of incapacity from injury was 4,979. The average contribution of each workman appears to be a little over 1*d.* per week.

Nineteen schemes in connection with factories of various kinds in England and Wales have been adopted by 19,588 workmen, out of a total of 19,991, who contributed in the aggregate 3,208*l.* during the year. The employers contributed 5,972*l.* The payments on death were 1,483*l.*; during incapacity 4,138*l.*; and for other benefits 1,472*l.* The balance of funds at the end of the year increased from 6,642*l.* to 7,947*l.* The number of deaths resulting from injury was 11, and in 10 of these 22 dependants were left, to some of whom pensions were granted, in addition to the money returned as paid. The number of cases of incapacity from injury was 1,512. The average contribution of each workman appears to be nearly 3*s.* 4*d.* per annum. In Scotland, two schemes in connection with factories have been certified. These have been adopted by 3,143 workmen out of a total of 3,144, and they contributed 442*l.*, or an average of 2*s.* 10*d.* per workman. The employers contributed 1,234*l.* The payments on death were 560*l.*; during incapacity, 676*l.*; and for other benefits, 10*l.* The balance of funds at the end of the year increased from 1,682*l.* to 2,417*l.* The number of deaths resulting from injury was three, and in two of them five dependants were left. The number of cases of incapacity from injury was 324.

Twenty-eight schemes certified in connection with mines have been adopted by 70,442 workmen, who contributed in the aggregate 35,873*l.* during the year. The employers contributed 49,481*l.* The payments on death were 6,138*l.*; during incapacity 29,992*l.*; and for other benefits 7,069*l.* The balance of funds at the end of the year was 111,307*l.*, being an increase of 36,227*l.* The number of deaths resulting from injury was 113 and in 75 of these 233 dependants were left, to whom pensions were granted in addition to the sums returned as paid at death. The number of cases of incapacity from injury was 13,530. The average contribution of each workman appears to be 10*s.* 2*d.* per annum.

In 28 returns information is given from which a comparison can be made between the amount of the payment made during incapacity and the maximum amount that would have been payable under the Act, assuming all the cases of incapacity to have been such as would have entitled the workman to claim under the Act. From this it appears that the actual payments exceeded the maximum payable under the Act by 72 per cent. This is largely accounted for by the provision made for the first two weeks of incapacity.

Although the Act provides that "no scheme shall be certified which contains an obligation upon the workmen to join the scheme as a condition of their hiring," yet in 40 schemes 100 per cent. of the workmen in the employment joined the scheme. In the remaining 11 schemes the percentages of the total number who joined were respectively 99, 99, 99, 98, 98, 95, 95, 88, 82, 80 and 56.

In the aggregate the 51 schemes certified and in operation in Great Britain on the 30th June 1901 had at that date been adopted by 133,604 workmen, who during the year contributed 49,174*l.* The employers contributed 77,993*l.* The payments on death had been 17,227*l.*; during incapacity 56,202*l.*; and for other benefits 8,735*l.* The funds had increased during the year by 38,598*l.* The number of deaths resulting from injury was 211, and in 166 of these 420 dependants were left, to nearly all of whom pensions were awarded in addition to the sums payable on death. The number of cases of incapacity from injury was 20,345.

Taking into account—

1. The other benefits, 8,735*l.*
2. The payments during the first two weeks of incapacity, and the subsequent payments in excess of those provided by the Act, which is estimated to be the same proportion as shown by the 28 returns above mentioned would exceed 23,000*l.*
3. The increase of funds, 38,598*l.*

It would appear that the workmen derived from these schemes a full equivalent for the 49,174*l.* that they have contributed.

VI. PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES ACT, 1893.

Section 4.—Registration of Societies.

The societies registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Acts in 1901 were 13 working men's clubs, 13 land societies, 15 agricultural and creamery societies, 11 other productive societies, and 47 distributive stores.

Section 13.—Audit.

Fifty-nine of the 104 Public Auditors were employed by 1,246 Industrial and Provident Societies, an increase of 57 over the previous year. Of these audits, 813 were made by seven Public Auditors, or an average of 116 each; 226 by eight others, or 28 each; leaving 207 for the other 44, or less than five each.

The following is a statement of the number of audits of societies under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act made by the Public Auditors during the last 10 years:—

Year ending 31st December	Number of Public Auditors.	Number of Audits.
1891	63	127
1892	63	145
1893	78	259
1894	88	487

1896	100	717
1897	102	769
1898	98	925
1899	98	1,021
1900	99	1,189
		6,163

Section 14.—Annual Returns.

The following is a summary of the liabilities and assets of the registered Industrial and Provident Societies, carrying on the ordinary co-operative trades and industries mentioned in my last Report as having made Returns for the year ending 31st December 1899. It relates to 1,351 societies, having 1,389,628 members (see page 24 of last Report).

Details for the several counties are given in Appendix (B.).

The number of returns received for the year ending 31st December 1900 was 1,604 ; 107 societies made no returns, but of these 13 were registered in 1900, 70 are in process of liquidation or dissolution, and 23 have had their registry cancelled.

The total number of members returned was—

In ordinary Co-operative Societies	-	-	1,466,558
In Societies for carrying on various businesses	-	-	38,590
In Land Societies	-	-	11,826
			1,516,974

an increase of 78,241 over last year.

In the ordinary co-operative societies the sales were 60,221,641*l.*, an increase of 5,816,090*l.* ; the stock-in-trade was 7,052,682*l.*, increase 673,655*l.* ; the share capital, 19,864,502*l.*, increase 1,435,370*l.* ; the liabilities to depositors and other creditors, 7,638,205*l.* ; the profits were 6,175,033*l.*, increase 469,127*l.* ; the losses were 15,549*l.*, increase 3,413*l.*

The number of societies for carrying on various businesses, such as that of a working men's club, including loan and banking societies, is 150 ; their total receipts, 1,684,758*l.*, a decrease of 58,279*l.* ; their share capital, 154,294*l.*, an increase of 24,127*l.* ; other liabilities, 295,827*l.* ; total assets, 517,636*l.*, an increase of 22,885*l.* ; balance of profit on the year's transactions, 19,801*l.*, an increase of 1,585*l.* ; balance of loss, 4,540*l.*, an increase of 68*l.*

One hundred and eight land societies received 289,393*l.* ; expended on land, 10,292*l.* ; on management, 7,251*l.* ; had 317,778*l.* share capital ; owed 437,935*l.* ; had a balance profit of 13,376*l.* ; and the value of their land and mortgages was 626,350*l.* ; of their other assets, 172,607*l.*

In 10 years the total number of societies making returns has increased from 1,216 to 1,604, the number of members from 949,000 to 1,527,000, the sales of the ordinary societies from 37,800,000*l.* to 60,200,000*l.*, and their profits from 3,600,000*l.* to 6,200,000*l.*

The following 32 societies had, at the end of the year 1900, more than 13,000 members, or sold for more than 313,000*l.* during the year, or made profit during the year exceeding 40,000*l.* :—

The number of societies with more than 13,000 members increased during the year from 11 to 13 ; the number selling for more than 313,000*l.* from 21 to 24 ; and the number returning profits for the year as more than 40,000*l.* from 25 to 31. The number of members increased by 76,930, the amount of sales by 5,816,090*l.*, and the profits by 469,127*l.* The year's working, therefore, showed a continuance of prosperity.

The societies which had more than 13,000 members in 1890 were only four in number ; those which had sold for more than 313,000*l.* in that year were only eight ; those which returned profits exceeding 40,000*l.* were 13, showing, in each case, a nearly threefold increase in 10 years. The 13 societies last mentioned have, in the 10 years, increased their profits from 751,058*l.* to 1,339,034*l.*, or nearly doubled them.

From the returns of the productive departments of 596 co-operative societies for the year 1900, it appears that the value of their productions was 6,360,953*l.*, the number of workmen employed 21,365, the wages paid 1,128,774*l.*, and the bonus to labour 12,025*l.* The societies giving bonus to labour were 113, producing 992,785*l.* by the labour of 4,527 workmen, who earned in wages 219,471*l.* The bonus, therefore, exceeded 5 per cent. The following are details of the various industries :—

The particulars for each county and further details relating to the societies giving bonus to labour are contained in Appendix (B.).

Section 49.—Disputes.

The following dispute was settled by me in 1901 :—

Nomination.

Thomas Wilson Barnes on 18th March 1898 nominated his wife, Mary Elizabeth Barnes, as transferee of the whole of his property in the St. Crispin Productive Co-operative Society, Limited. He died 9th October 1900, leaving a will which has been proved. His property in the Society then exceeded 100*l.* By Section 25 (1) of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act "a member may . . . nominate any person " or persons . . . to or among whom his property in the Society . . . shall be " transferred at his decease, provided the amount credited to him in the books of the " Society does not then exceed 100*l.*," and by Sub-section (2) "a nomination so made . . . shall not be revocable . . . by the will of the nominator." Held that the nomination took no effect, and the whole of the property was payable to the executor. Award accordingly. Barnes v. St. Crispin Productive Society, Limited, 24th April 1901.

VII. PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE TRADE UNION ACTS.

Section 6 of Act of 1871.—Registry of Trade Unions.

Of the 42 Trade Unions registered in 1901, three are Federations.

Section 16.—Annual Returns.

The following is a summary of the assets and liabilities of the 561 registered Trade Unions mentioned in my last Report (page 26) as having made Returns for the year ending 31st December 1899 :—

LIABILITIES.

Amount of the several funds	£.	3,350,551
Less deficiencies in sundry Unions	1,131
Net amount of funds, as stated in last Report	3,349,420
Other liabilities	3,204

Other assets	21,428	1
	3,352,624	100

Returns for the year 1900 were obtained from all the Trade Unions, as shown by the following statement :—

Returns received	573
Trade Unions registered in 1900, making no returns for that year.	5
Trade Unions cancelled, dissolved, or ceased to exist	25
Total Registered Trade Unions	603
Funds on 31st December 1899	£3,361,729
Ditto ditto 1900	3,957,435
Increase in the year	£595,706
Income for 1900	£2,148,539
Expenditure for 1900	1,552,833
Difference as before	£595,706
Number of members	1,497,527
Increase in the year	186,582

The average gross income per member fell to 1*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* and the amount of funds per member rose to 2*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.*

The following 16 Unions (three more than in the previous year) increased their funds by more than 10,000*l.* :—

	Total in 16 Trade Unions - - - - -	455,876

Thirty-three Trade Unions, being one more than in 1899, returned more than 20,000*l.* funds or income, or more than 20,000 members.

Three of the 33 had less than one year's income in hand.

Fourteen more " " two years' " "

Eight " " " three " " "

Three " " " four " " "

Five " " " five " " "

Upon the average of all the Trade Unions, the accumulated funds are a little less than two years' income. In six of the first 33, and on the average of all the 540 smaller unions, the accumulated funds are less than 1*l.* 8*s.* 5*d.* per member. The average in the 30 Trade Unions, which have funds exceeding 20,000*l.*, is 3*l.* 11*s.* 5*d.* per member. The gross annual income per member in those 30 Trade Unions is 1*l.* 14*s.* 11*d.*; that in the 543 other Unions is 19*s.* 2*d.*

On the average, the 33 large Trade Unions have funds per member 3*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*, a decrease of 10*s.* 3*d.* from last year; income per member 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, a decrease of 6*s.* 10*d.* as compared with last year. Thirteen Trade Unions exceed 20,000 in all three columns, three more than in the year before.

The following is a list of the 33 leading Trade Unions as above defined. The signs + and - indicate the cases in which an increase and diminution respectively are shown as compared with last year's Return, but the figures to which they are affixed are those of the aggregate funds, income, and number of members of each Trade Union.

VIII. PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE LOAN SOCIETIES ACT, 1840.

Section 4.—Rules certified.

The four new societies were all in London. Three new sets of rules for existing societies, and one partial amendment of rules, were certified.

Section 27.—Abstract of Accounts.

The number of accounts received for the year ending 31st December 1900 was 258, or 11 less than the previous year; the number of members 31,898, or 356 more. The number of applications for loans was 58,796, or 124 less; the number of loans granted, 55,419, or 1 less; and the amount of loans made 310,541*l.*, or 1,801*l.* less. The interest on loans and the inquiry fees earned during the year were 18,588*l.*; the expenses of management were 10,055*l.* The balance of profit on the year's transactions was 10,622*l.*; while 15 societies showed balances of loss, amounting together to 126*l.* The liabilities and assets were as follows:—

Liabilities.	Assets.
To balance of shares 197,556	Amount due from borrowers . . 191,379
To depositors and other creditors . . 35,625	Other assets 53,944
Undivided profits (in 218 societies) . . 12,393	Balances deficit (in 11 societies) . . 251
£245,574	£245,574

The number of summonses issued was 1,716 for 3,746*l.*, an increase of 26 summonses and a decrease of 186*l.* The amount recovered was 2,263*l.*, a decrease of 994/. The number of distress warrants issued was 256, a decrease of 8. The total amount of costs incurred by the societies in recovering loans was 500/, a decrease of 87/.; and the amount of costs repaid by borrowers or sureties was 310/., a decrease of 38/.

Sixteen societies (of which 12 were in London) returned more than 300 members, the largest continuing to be the "Surprise," Churton Street, Pimlico, with 1,414, an increase of 209 over the previous year. The next are the Crawford Street Society, with 670; the Gloucester Society with 630; the Camden Society with 622; and the Soho Society, with 554: all these five are London societies. The Chelmsford Industrial Society, Essex, has 530. Two societies have 400 and under 500; 8 societies 300 and less than 400 members.

Eight of these 16 societies have capital belonging to the members exceeding 3,000/. Only one of these, and 58 of the whole number of societies, have 10/. or more per member. The total number of societies with members' capital of more than 3,000/. is 9. Of these the Globe Industrial, Bradford, has 33 members and 4,200/. capital. Ten other societies (nine of them in Yorkshire) have capital exceeding 100/. per member.

A comparison of the number of summonses and distress warrants issued, with the amount of loans made during the year, continues to lend colour to the inference that these societies of small capitalists find it necessary to take more rigorous steps against their borrowers than are required by the generality of Loan Societies.

IX. PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE SCIENTIFIC SOCIETIES ACT, 1836.

Besides the 16 societies to which certificates were granted, applications were received from several societies which were refused. In one case, the South Shields High School, the society called upon the Registrar to certify the grounds of refusal, with a view to an appeal, but the result of the appeal has not been communicated to me.

X. PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE SAVINGS BANKS ACTS.

It will be observed that there is a continuous increase in the number of disputes submitted to this Office, and of the attendances to hear evidence thereon. They constitute a growing claim upon the personal attention of the Assistant Registrar for England, and of myself.

I observe in the Report of the Inspection Committee of Trustee Savings Banks, a statement of their appreciation of the value of the work done by Trustee Savings Banks in the cause of thrift throughout the Kingdom, in which I entirely concur, having given evidence to the same effect before the Committee of the House of Commons on Trustee Savings Banks in 1888. The Committee say, "We are more than ever convinced of the great value to the provident poor of these most useful institutions, and of the obligations of the public to the voluntary trustees and managers who devote so much time and attention to this important means of pro"moting the welfare of the people. With, in many cases, large and increasing deposits, on which the maximum rate of interest is allowed, with excellent, safe, and economical management, and with the personal interest and sympathy shown by many of the leading inhabitants of their respective neighbourhoods, they command and deserve confidence and support. We observe with special interest in several instances the care with which the rightful owners of deposit accounts of old standing, which might be in danger of being lost sight of through the death of the original depositors, are sought for and discovered." That the work of the Inspection Committee has greatly contributed to the better management of Trustee Savings Banks may be inferred from the fact that while the instances of neglect of statutory requirements enumerated in its fifth year's Report were 219, those noted in this, the 10th Report, are only 161, or 26½ per cent. less. Those in the first year of inspection numbered 608.

The 176 Penny Savings Banks in connection with the Liverpool Savings Banks had during the year ending 20th November 1901, 1,061,271 transactions. The balance due to the 70,469 depositors at that date was 11,663; and 2,065 accounts were transferred to the Liverpool Savings Bank during the year with 7,167*l.* to their credit.

XI. PROCEEDINGS UNDER VARIOUS RAILWAY SAVINGS BANKS ACTS.

The interest credited is equivalent to the average rate of nearly $3\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. on the mean amount standing to the credit of the depositors during the year.

It is interesting to observe that the offer by employers of a rate of interest exceeding by less than 1 per cent. the $2\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. which is payable on the public funds, is sufficient to induce 50,000 persons employed in this one branch of industry to intrust their employers with savings amounting to more than $4\frac{1}{2}$ millions of money.

APPENDIX (A.)

DISPUTES settled by the REGISTRAR under the TRUSTEE SAVINGS BANKS and POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANKS ACTS, in 1901.

ABSENT TRUSTEE.

1. The Rev. William John Cole and Mary Bennett are trustees for Frederick Davey in an account opened in 1894. Mary Bennett was then district nurse of the parish, but has left the neighbourhood, and her present whereabouts cannot be traced. Ten pounds being required for an urgent purpose, award for payment to the joint receipt of Mr. Cole and Mr. Davey, with or without the concurrence of Mrs. Bennett.—Liverpool Savings Bank re Davey's Trust. 1st February 1901.

CREDITOR.

2. On the death of Robert M. Richardson, a depositor, Margaret Richardson otherwise Mobbs, who had lived with him as his wife for 33 years, claimed 15*l.* of his deposit, which amounted to 26*l.* 14*s.* 10*d.* as her earnings, 2*l.* as having been paid by her for rent and other debts due by him, and 3*l.* for the erection of a tombstone. She produced a memorandum book containing entries in the depositor's handwriting in support of her claim. Depositor left no relatives. Award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank re Richardson. Hearing, 7th May; award, 8th May 1901.

3. Upon the conviction of Thomas Kilvington for felony, the Court, in pursuance of 33 & 34 Vict. c. 23, awarded 40*l.* to John Sherwood Stocker by way of satisfaction or compensation to him for loss of property suffered by him by means of the said felony, and ordered Kilvington to pay the same. The order not having been complied with, award for payment of 40*l.* to Dr. Stocker out of Kilvington's deposit.—Post Office Savings Bank re Kilvington ex parte Stocker. Hearing, 11th June 1901; award, same day.

4. On the death of Ruth Dunse otherwise Wright, George Dunse put in a claim for 12*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* funeral expenses, which would have been allowed to him under the regulations of the Post Office Savings Bank, and further claims exceeding the balance of the deposits. At the hearing three out of the six next-of-kin of the depositor appeared and admitted the claim. 12*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* and one-half of the remainder (81*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.*) or 40*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.* together amount to 53*l.* 11*s.* 9*d.*, which was awarded to be paid to Dunse, with liberty of further application in respect of the other half.—Post Office Savings Bank re Dunse. Hearing, 5th July 1901; award, same day.

5. Harry James Mutter, a depositor, had 6*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.* to his credit at time of his death. His aunt, Mary Ann Mutter, with whom he had lodged, claimed to be a creditor in respect of funeral expenses, destruction of bedding, board and residence to an amount exceeding the sum deposited. The brothers of the depositor opposed the claim, but evidence having been given in support of it, award for payment to Mary Ann Mutter.—Post Office Savings Bank re Mutter. Hearing, 18th June; award, 14th October 1901.

6. On the death of John Cartwright the guardians claimed 2*l.* 15*s.* and Robert Farrington, a creditor, 4*l.* 0*s.* 1*d.* The next-of-kin, if living, are Isaac Cartwright and a sister, whose present addresses are unknown. The nearest known relative is John Robert Cartwright, son of Isaac Cartwright. The balance after payment of debts is 3*l.* 5*s.* only. Award for payment of the sums claimed to the guardians and Mr. Farrington respectively, with a direction that the deposit book be handed to John Robert Cartwright on behalf of the next-of-kin, with liberty to apply for further Order if necessary.—Liverpool Savings Bank re Cartwright. Hearing, 8th October; award, 19th October 1901.

7. On the death of Mrs. Esther Phillips, her son, Thomas Phillips, claimed her deposits, 19*l.* 7*s.* 5*d.*, as a creditor. The claim was opposed by Selina Cavill, a daughter, and by Charles Harvey, widower of a deceased daughter, on behalf of his children. At the hearing Mr. Phillips's claim was reduced, after allowing for other property of the deceased which had come into his possession, to 16*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* Award for payment to him of 17*l.* 1*s.* 5*d.*, to Selina Cavill of 18*s.*, and of the remainder among the children of Mary Jane Harvey, deceased.—Post Office Savings Bank re Phillips. Hearing, 22nd November 1901; award, same day.

DECEASED DEPOSITOR.

8. The depositor had in his lifetime given his deposit books (one in his own name and the other as administrator of Martha Hilling) to Miss Hannah Maria Abel, and written a letter to a third person expressing in very clear terms his intention to benefit her by the deposits. After solicitors on both sides had been heard, the parties were strongly advised to come to an agreement, and the case was adjourned to enable them to confer. They consented to an equal division of the fund, and awards were made accordingly.—Norfolk and Norwich Savings Bank re William Hilling, deceased, ex parte William Woodrow, Administrator. Messrs. Johnson and Martin for Mr. Woodrow, Mr. Gover for Miss Abel. Hearings, 20th December 1900 and 10th January 1901; award, 11th January 1901.

9. Upon the death of Eliza Deleay on 26th April 1876, Charles Deleay, her only son, was under 21 years of age, and an award was made for payment of funeral expenses only. Charles Deleay now claimed the balance of the deposits, and an award was made for payment to him.—London Provident Institution re Deleay. Hearing, 16th December 1901; award, same day.

DEPOSIT BOOK.

10. John Langley, a depositor, having 14l. 16s. 1d. to his credit, was unable to produce his deposit book, it being wrongfully detained by his wife. As she showed no cause to the contrary, after notice given to her, award for payment to him with or without production of the deposit book.—Lambeth Savings Bank re Langley. 30th January 1901.

DEPOSITOR OF UNSOUND MIND.

11. Mrs. Harriett Cheadle was proved by medical certificate to be paralysed and incapable of acting on her own behalf, and to be in the care of Mrs. Mary De Ville. Mrs. De Ville, in the first instance, claimed the whole amount of Mrs. Cheadle's deposits as a gift, but when informed that such a claim could not be allowed, furnished particulars of expenses incurred by her on account of Mrs. Cheadle, including remuneration at the rate of 2s. 6d. per week for her own services, the total exceeding the amount deposited. Held that such remuneration could not be allowed for any period before the beginning of Mrs. Cheadle's illness, and award for payment out of the deposits of the sum of 36l. 9s. 6d. to Mrs. De Ville.—Post Office Savings Bank re Cheadle ex parte De Ville. Hearing, 30th October 1900; award, 15th January 1901.

EMBEZZLEMENT.

12. S. T. Chandler, in the employment of the Post Office, was charged with stealing post letters, convicted on his own confession, and sentenced to 12 months imprisonment. He had 22l. at credit in his deposit book, and counsel for the defence assented to this amount being handed over to the Postmaster-General towards meeting the claims of persons whose money orders he had stolen, amounting to about 40l., and urged this in mitigation of the sentence. The judge approved of this course being taken. Award for payment to the Receiver and Accountant-General.—Post Office Savings Bank re Chandler. Hearing, 8th February 1901; award, 9th February. Mr. Arnold for Post Office.

ERROR.

13. On the occasion of a deposit made on 31st May 1900, it was entered in the depositor's book as 2l., but returned to the office of the Controller as 2s. only. The clerk who received it declared that the correct sum was 2s., and the depositor did not attend the hearing or furnish any evidence in contradiction of the statement. Award that he was entitled to 2s. only in respect of the deposit.—Post Office Savings Bank re Gasson. Hearing, 28th June 1901; award, 1st July.

EXECUTOR.

14. Elizabeth Davies, a depositor, appointed her brother, David Davies, executor of her will, which he duly proved. James Davies, another brother, entered a caveat, but was unsuccessful. He then claimed the deposits, and alleged his intention to institute criminal proceedings. No such proceedings being commenced by him for three months from the date of his claim, award for payment to executor.—Post Office Savings Bank re Davies. 7th August 1901.

FORGERY.

15. Isabella Scott, a depositor, afterwards the wife of John Barker, allowed her grandfather to retain her deposit book. She signed, at his request, a notice of withdrawal, and upon attending at the post office to receive the money was informed that several previous withdrawals had been made. These she declared to have been made without her consent. On her return home, the grandfather was found to have committed suicide. On evidence that the withdrawals were obtained by forgery, award for payment of 6*l.* 15*s.*, the amount fraudulently withdrawn, with interest, together amounting to 8*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*, to Isabella Barker.—Post Office Savings Bank re Barker. Hearing, 6th September; award, 27th September.

FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

16. On 15th December 1897 the registry of the Loyal Sir William Milner Lodge, 1492, of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, Manchester Unity, was cancelled. Its trustees then had a deposit of 345*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* in the York Savings Bank. On 14th June 1898 the lodge was re-registered under the name of the Appleton Roebuck Friendly Society. Upon proof of the identity of the two bodies, award for payment to the trustees of the latter.—York Savings Bank re Loyal Sir William Milner Lodge ex parte Appleton Roebuck Friendly Society. Hearing, 3rd May; award, 6th May 1901.

FUNERAL EXPENSES.

17. On the death of a depositor, having 9*l.* 9*s.* 10*d.* in her account, it was shown that the funeral and other expenses, only 2*l.* of which had been paid, exceeded the amount of the deposit. The mother of the depositor opposed the claim, on the ground that the man with whom the deceased had lived had received burial money from a club. Held that whether or not he had so received money to which he was not entitled, and misapplied it, the expenses formed a prior claim on the deposits. Award for payment of 5*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* to T. Whenman, undertaker, 1*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* to T. Gunther, M.D., 2*l.* to Ellen Smith, nurse, and the balance to Silas Hayes, otherwise Scrivener, towards the 2*l.* paid by him on account.—Post Office Savings Bank re Hayes. Hearing, 20th June; award, 25th June.

18. Henry Morgan married Sarah Susannah Hardcastle in January 1858, and had by her children, of whom seven survive. In June 1899, he made a will bequeathing to Mary Garratt an insurance policy. In October 1900, he contracted a bigamous marriage with Mary Garratt, representing and describing himself as a widower. They lived together until his death, when Mary Garratt, or Morgan, paid the funeral expenses, 6*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*, exceeding the amount deposited, 5*l.* 17*s.* 2*d.* The will was not proved, but the assurance company paid her the 14*l.* insured. The first wife having claimed the deposit, and been heard in support of her claim, award for payment of the deposits to Mary Garratt, or Morgan, towards the funeral expenses; as the question of her right, on other grounds, to retain the whole or any part of the assurance money was not one for this Office.—Post Office Savings Bank re Morgan. Hearing, 11th October; award, 18th October 1901.

GUARDIANS.

19. Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Tooth, a depositor of 29*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.*, was chargeable to the Guardians of the Isle of Thanet Union from 21st September 1894 to 19th October 1900, and the sum of 101*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.* is due to them. She is now chargeable to the Guardians of Portsmouth. Award for payment to the Guardians of the Isle of Thanet.—Post Office Savings Bank re Tooth. Hearing, 21st December 1900; award, 21st January 1901.

20. A lunatic depositor had 27*l.* 0*s.* 1*d.* to the credit of his account. The Guardians obtained a Justice's order for 70*l.* The depositor's sister-in-law claimed 18*l.* advanced by her shortly after the removal of the depositor to the asylum, and applied to pay the rent and taxes due. Her claim was supported by the evidence of the depositor's wife. Award for payment of 18*l.* to Miss Florence E. Bower, and the remainder to the Guardians of St. Pancras.—Post Office Savings Bank re Langley. Hearing, 19th April 1901; award same day.

21. William Smith, deceased, who had an account in the Savings Bank amounting to 32*l.* 3*s.* 5*d.*, had been chargeable to the Holborn Union for nine years. By arrangement with his widow, the guardians claimed 20*l.*, and allowed her to receive the remainder. Award accordingly.—London Provident Institution re Smith. 7th May 1901.

22. On the death, in January 1901, of a depositor having 18*l.* 8*s.* to her credit, her only child, a daughter aged 22, became chargeable to the Guardians of Fulham, who have expended 7*l.* 11*s.* on her maintenance at the rate of 5*l.* 10*s.* per quarter. She is likely to continue so chargeable. Award for payment of 7*l.* 11*s.* to the Guardians, of a further sum of 5*l.* 10*s.* at the end of three months, and the balance at the end of six months if the child of the depositor remains so long chargeable.—Post Office Savings Bank re Johnson ex parte Guardians of Fulham Union. Hearing, 17 May 1901; award, 18th May.

23. William Spooner died 2nd November 1900 at the Hospital of St. John of God, Scorton, where he had been placed by the Guardians of St. Marylebone, London. He had deposits amounting to 20*l.* 4*s.* 5*d.*, of which 6*l.* 10*s.* was paid to the hospital for his funeral and medical expenses. The residue was claimed by the Guardians towards the cost of his maintenance, for which they had paid the hospital 6*s.* per week since 19th April 1888. The hospital also claimed it, but offered no evidence in support of their claim. Award for payment to Guardians.—Post Office Savings Bank re Spooner ex parte Hospital of St. John of God and ex parte Guardians of St. Marylebone. Hearing, 26th March; award 8th August 1901.

24. Annie Ryan, or Murphy, became chargeable to Stepney Union on 29th December 1900, and died on 6th April 1901. Her deposits amounted to 16*l.* 17*s.* 10*d.* The Guardians claimed 4*l.* 4*s.* under a Justice's order. Mrs. Johanna Callaghan claimed the balance for funeral expenses (7*l.* 10*s.*) and for the maintenance of two children of the deceased during her absence. Award accordingly.—London Provident Institution re Murphy ex parte Guardians of Stepney. Hearing, 16th July; award, 27th August 1901.

25. Mr. Philip Cudmore is chargeable to the Guardians of the Tendring Union as a lunatic, and they have incurred expenses on his account amounting to 10*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.* He is joint owner of a deposit with Mrs. Sarah Taylor, amounting to 117*l.* 16*s.* Mrs. Taylor not objecting, award for payment of 10*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.* to Guardians.—Post Office Savings Bank re Cudmore and Taylor ex parte Guardians of Tendring Union. Hearing, 15th October 1901; award, 16th October.

JOINT DEPOSITS.

26. Deposit in the joint names of Joe Marcus and Yetta Shapiro, both of the Jewish persuasion, made in contemplation of marriage. The engagement being broken off, Marcus claimed the whole of the deposits as his own. Miss Shapiro declined to join in the withdrawal, but did not claim any part of the deposits as her own or give any answer to his claim. Award for payment to Marcus with or without her concurrence.—Post Office Savings Bank re Marcus and Shapiro. Hearing, 18th December 1900; award, 6th March 1901.

27. Funds of the Greenwich Juvenile Foresters' Sick and Funeral Society, a registered Friendly Society, were deposited in an account opened in the joint names of Walter Cooper and Robert John Hamilton, as a personal account. On 6th September 1898, Walter Cooper was removed from office and William Henry Harris appointed in his place. Cooper declined to join in the receipt for withdrawal. Award for payment to Robert John Hamilton and William Henry Harris as trustees for the Society.—Post Office Savings Bank re Cooper and Hamilton. Hearing, 12th March 1901; award, 25th March.

28. Mrs. Judy Crooks in 1896 deposited 18*l.*, 12*l.*, and 20*l.* in her own name. In 1898 she deposited a further sum of 40*l.*, and added the name of her sister Alice Lees to the account, to prevent the money going to her husband or his children. Her husband died on 31st December 1898. Mrs. Lees now declines to join her in withdrawing the money, but does not assert that any portion of it belongs to her. Award for payment to Judy Crooks with or without the concurrence of Alice Lees.—Post Office Savings Bank re Lees and Crooks ex parte Crooks. Hearing, 15th March; award, 16th April 1901.

29. Deposits amounting in all to 30*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.*, stand in the joint names of James Duncan and Elizabeth Duncan. The husband underwent three months' imprisonment for assaulting his wife and she was granted a separation order. Upon inquiry into the circumstances in which the deposits were made, and other matters affecting the case, it appeared to be just that 5*l.* should be paid to the wife and the remainder to the husband. Award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank re Duncan. Mr. W. J. Hunter, solicitor, for the wife. Hearings, 10th April, 2nd May, and 20th May; award, 25th May 1901.

30. Upon an engagement of marriage between two persons of the Jewish persuasion, it was agreed that the father of the lady should provide a sum of money to be deposited in the joint names of the two. The engagement was shortly afterwards broken off, when the lady applied that the whole might be paid to her. The father assenting and the young man showing no cause to the contrary, award accordingly.—London Provident Institution re Berkowitz and Rosen ex parte Rosen. Hearing, 13th June 1901; award, same day.

31. On 24th April 1900, 50*l.* belonging to the estate of Francis William Shore, deceased, was deposited in the joint names of the executors, Francis William Shore, a son of the deceased, and Willis Shore, solicitor, a kinsman. Willis Shore having absconded, and Francis William Shore requiring the money to meet liabilities of the estate, award for payment to Francis William Shore with or without the concurrence of Willis Shore.—Post Office Savings Bank re Shore. Hearing, 1st November 1901; award, 2nd November.

32. Nathan Harris and Ettie Reuben, a minor, had an account in their joint names. Harris forged her name and withdrew 17*l.* 5*s.* He was convicted of forgery and sentenced to three years' penal servitude. She thereupon claimed one half of the amount withdrawn. It appeared that 13*l.* 4*s.* of the amount deposited was a sum borrowed from a loan office, for which Harris and Ettie Reuben's father gave security. As she, being a minor, could not be made responsible for this sum, it was held that she was not entitled to the half of it. Award for payment to her of 2*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*, being half of the amount withdrawn, exclusive of the 13*l.* 4*s.*—Post Office Savings Bank re Harris and Reuben ex parte Reuben. Hearing, 29th November; award, 30th November 1901.

LARCENY.

33. Depositor, on 19th December 1900, pleaded guilty, at the Greenwich Police Court, to stealing 7*s.*, the money of Henry Slaughter, and was sentenced to three months' imprisonment. After her release Slaughter gave evidence that the amount she had stolen exceeded 6*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.*, the amount of the deposit, and the depositor was unable to contradict it. Award for payment to Slaughter.—Post Office Savings Bank re Keeler ex parte Slaughter. Hearing, 2nd July; award, 2nd September 1901.

NOMINATION.

34. Ann Tonge opened an account in London in 1875. On 24th August 1885, she executed a nomination in favour of John William Tonge for the whole of her deposits, and it was witnessed by Louisa Wurzenrainer, of Eton Lodge, Don Road, Jersey. The deposits between 1885 and 1899 were made in Jersey. The depositor died in London, February 1901. After her death Mrs. Wurzenrainer, who was her daughter, applied on behalf of the two grandchildren of the deceased, that the deposits might be applied for their benefit, notwithstanding the nomination, and stated that such an application would be in accordance with the real wishes of the deceased. Held that the wishes of the deceased could only be ascertained from the nomination, and award for payment to nominee.—Post Office Savings Bank re Tonge ex parte Wurzenrainer. Hearing, 9th July; award, 10th August 1901.

35. Ellen Watson made a nomination in favour of Lucy Chaplin, in January 1900. She died in November 1900, leaving a will dated February 1888. The executors did not oppose payment to the nominee. Award accordingly.—York Savings Bank re Watson ex parte Chaplin, 11th November 1901.

REAL OWNER.

36. Alice Maud Armstrong paid 1*l.* 3*s.* to the credit of William Francis Berridge, to whom she was engaged to be married. The engagement being broken off, she claimed the money as her own. Berridge having furnished no evidence in answer to the claim, award for payment as claimed.—Post Office Savings Bank re Berridge ex parte Armstrong. Hearing, 31st July 1900; award, 18th January 1901.

37. In the case of Hammond (No. 43, of 1900), in which 10*l.* was awarded on 11th May 1900 to Mrs. Wood, with liberty to apply for further direction, Henry Hammond, who had then given no evidence in opposition to Mrs. Wood's claim, applied, through a solicitor, for an award directing the balance to be paid to him, and Mrs. Wood applied for a further award in her favour. These applications were heard on 13th December 1900, when Mr. Ellis appeared for Hammond, and Mr. Harris for Mrs. Wood. Hammond then stated that he had received from the Post Office a sum of 58*l.* 3*s.* 10*d.*, the property of Stephen Wood, and handed it to Mrs. Wood, who gave back to him 45*l.* only and not 50*l.*, as stated by Mrs. Wood; that 20*l.* of that was for payment of the funeral expenses, and whatever might be left of that 20*l.* was for Mrs. Wood's benefit, the remaining 25*l.* being a gift to Hammond himself in lieu of a wedding present, that the funeral expenses amounted to 5*l.*, and that the 50*l.* he had deposited in the Savings Bank consisted of the 25*l.* given to him and another 25*l.* belonging to himself and his wife, which they had in the house, and which did not include any portion of the other sum of 20*l.* entrusted to him by Mr. Wood. This statement was confirmed by Mrs. Hammond, who testified to an interview with the deceased, in which he spoke of the 25*l.* as a wedding gift. Mrs. Wood adhered to her original statement that the sum given to Hammond for her benefit was 50*l.*, and a statutory declaration by Mr. Edward Wickham, the local postmaster, was put in to the effect that Stephen Wood had stated to him that he wished to withdraw his money from the Post Office Savings Bank and to deposit the same in the name of his stepson, Henry Hammond, for the benefit of his widow after his decease. Mr. Ellis desiring to cross-examine Mr. Wickham on the declaration, the case was adjourned to 23rd January 1901 for that purpose, when it appeared that Mr. Wickham was not able to give any evidence that was inconsistent with Hammond's statement, and Mr. Wickham himself said he had a high opinion of Hammond's character. Held that as to the 20*l.* which Hammond admitted had been given to him for the funeral expenses and Mrs. Wood's benefit, as there was a clear conflict of evidence as to his having paid the funeral expenses, and no receipt for the same had been produced nor any evidence given as to what had become of the 8*l.* 3*s.* 10*d.* or 13*l.* 3*s.* 10*d.*, balance of Wood's deposits, he was not entitled to set off anything for those expenses, and she was entitled to an award directing payment of the balance of 10*l.* remaining due to her out of the deposits: but that as to the remainder of the deposits, in respect to which there was a direct contradiction between Mr. and Mrs. Hammond on the one side, and Mrs. Wood on the other, as the onus of proof rested on her, she had not established her claim, and it must be paid to Hammond. Award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank re Hammond ex parte Wood. Hearings, 13th December 1900 and 23rd July 1901; award, 12th February. Mr. Ellis, solicitor, Maidstone, for Mr. Hammond. Mr. Harris, solicitor, Tonbridge, for Mrs. Wood.

38. Deposit of 50*l.* made by Eliza Peel on 24th February 1900. Claim by Walter Peel, her father, supported by a statutory declaration, that 100*l.*, which was his property, had been taken from a box in his private drawer, and that "I am advised and believe that the money deposited by Eliza Peel was taken out of my savings." Statutory declaration by Eliza Peel in answer, denying knowledge of the private drawer, or of the existence of any money of the father in the house, and denying that the deposit was made out of moneys belonging to the father, or that any portion of it was her father's savings, and stating that it represented the savings of Eliza out of her wages earned as a busker during five years, the savings of her sister Polly as a weaver during 12 years, and the savings of her brother Fred as a spinner for 10 years, and that it was in consequence of the father taking any money he could get hold of, that they decided to put their savings together and deposit them in the Post Office Savings Bank; and by Fred Peel confirming the statement of his sister. No evidence in answer tendered by Walter Peel. Award that he is not entitled to the deposits.—Post Office Savings Bank re Peel. Hearing, 14th December 1900; award, 12th February 1901.

39. Deposits in the name of Susannah Cook, claimed by William Dunn, her father, about 90 years of age. He attended and was examined on oath. She furnished a statutory declaration. The case was adjourned to enable the parties to come to terms, and ultimately she consented to an equal division of the fund. Award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank re Cook ex parte Dunn. Hearing, 25th January; award, 18th February 1901.

40. On the death of Mr. William Gates, leaving a son and four daughters, all the daughters signed an authority for the son, George William Gates, to receive the money. He did so, and afterwards deposited it in his own name, adding a sum of 11*l.*, also derived from his father's estate. One of the sisters afterwards took out administration to her father's estate, and claimed as part of it the deposits standing in the name of her brother. She and one sister deposed that they had not intended to make a free gift to him of the deposits, but only that he should collect and distribute them. Two sisters deposed that that they intended their brother to have the whole of the money, in accordance with the wish of the father, who had written a paper to that effect, which had been signed in the presence of two witnesses, but could not now be found. Held that it had not been shown that the administratrix of William Gates was entitled to the deposits of George William Gates.—Post Office Savings Bank re Gates. Hearing, 19th March 1901; award, 25th March.

41. Thomas Chapman White had been in the habit of supplying his mother and sister with money for their support. Portions of this money were from time to time deposited by the sister, Ann Elizabeth, in the York Savings Bank. On her leaving her mother and marrying Robert Sells, T. C. White claimed the money as his own. Very voluminous evidence, correspondence, and accounts were tendered on both sides, but the general inference to be drawn was that the money, or at any rate the greater part of it had belonged to the brother, and had been entrusted by him for the common advantage of his mother and sister, and that it would be just to award him one-half of the amount remaining in the deposit account, which is 14*l.* 18*s.*—York Savings Bank re Sells ex parte White. Hearing, 21st December 1900; award, 18th April 1901.

42. Deposits in name of C. A. Vince, amounting to 4*l.* 0*s.* 7*d.*, claimed by administratrix of T. J. Neale. By agreement, award of 1*l.* to the solicitor for the claimant, and the balance to the depositor.—Post Office Savings Bank re Vince. Messrs. Milliken and Co., for depositor; Messrs. Bordman and Co. for Mrs. Neale. Hearing, 30th April 1901; award 1st May.

43. Upon the trial of Henry Lewis for feloniously receiving certain goods, it was made to appear to the Court that 50*l.* deposited by the convict in the Post Office Savings Bank in Commercial Road, and 10*l.* in that at Whitechapel were partly the proceeds of the conversion of the goods into money. Award for payment to prosecutors, Edward Clark, Arthur John Grice, and Edward Grice, trading as John Clark and Sons.—Post Office Savings Bank re Lewis, 24th June 1901.

44. Deposits in the name of a daughter who had left her home and could not be traced. Upon evidence that the father had previously refunded the money to her, award for payment to him.—Post Office Savings Bank re Morris. 25th June 1901.

45. Kate Atkinson opened an account at the West London Savings Bank, Farringdon Street, on 29th April 1879, by the payment of 9*l.* Further sums were paid in in 1882, 1883, 1886, and 1888 amounting to 44*l.* On the closing of the bank in 1889, the balance, 59*l.* 19*s.* 3*d.*, was transferred to the Post Office on a request signed "Kate Atkinson." She had, however, in 1882 or 1883, married one McKilvey, but no notice of that marriage was given to either bank. On 26th June 1889, 10*l.* was withdrawn, and the book has since then been in the possession of Jane Atkinson, now a widow, the mother of the depositor, who now claims the whole of the deposits as her money, placed in the name of her daughter, so as not to be known to her late husband, who was of drunken habits. Kate McKilvey recollected the first deposit, but had no recollection of any subsequent transaction; she did not deny that the money was her mother's, but alleged that it was a gift to her. Held, that with regard to the first deposit of 9*l.*, which the mother had allowed her daughter to declare to be her own money, the mother could not be heard now to contradict that statement, but that she was entitled to the subsequent deposits. Award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank re Atkinson. Hearing, 25th June 1901; award, 26th June.

46. Walter Brown, sergeant in the Army Service Corps, whilst on service in South Africa, transmitted sums of 15*l.*, 7*l.*, and 28*l.* to his brother Ernest William Brown, who deposited them in his own account. Ernest is now an inmate of the Fareham Lunatic Asylum, but was communicated with through the Medical Superintendent and raised no objection to payment of these sums to his brother Walter. Award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank re Brown. 11th July 1901.

47. H. E. Milner, a person in the employ of Bernard Edward Burgoyne, trading as Burgoyne and Co., received a cheque for 25*l.* 15*s.* on account of his employer, and instead of paying it over to him deposited it in the Post Office in the name of A. E. Burgoyne, a non-existent person. Upon the facts being discovered, Milner absconded, and his father delivered up the deposit book to Mr. B. E. Burgoyne. Award for payment to B. E. Burgoyne.—Post Office Savings Bank re Burgoyne. Hearing, 12th July 1901; award, same day.

48. In February 1899, on the request of George Brocklehurst, 50*l.* was transferred from his account to a new account opened in the name of his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Ann Powell. She withdrew 21*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.* in February 1900, and died 25th January 1901. After her death, Brocklehurst claimed the money as his own, and alleged that the husband of the depositor had paid him interest upon it. This was denied by Powell. After an opportunity had been given to the parties to come to terms, without effect, award for payment to Charles Powell.—Post Office Savings Bank re Powell. Hearing, 16th May; award, 19th July 1901.

49. On 23rd March 1900 George Stratton deposited 10*l.* Half of this was money of Alice Gurney, to whom he was engaged to be married and who gave it him for the purpose of buying things required for their new home. After an illness of one year and six months Stratton died in University College Hospital, London, having previously signed an authority to Alice Gurney to receive the deposits, but this lapsed at his death. She had expended upon him nearly 10*l.* during his illness. Award for payment to her.—Post Office Savings Bank re Stratton ex parte Gurney. Hearing, 9th August 1901; award, same day.

50. Henry Gould made a deposit of 50*l.* on 3rd April 1901. His sister, Adelaide Taylor, who had been partner with him in a farming business, claimed an interest in the deposit, but did not attend the hearing or furnish any evidence in support of her claim, though an opportunity was given her to do so. Award that Adelaide Taylor is not shown to be entitled to the deposit of Henry Gould.—Post Office Savings Bank re Gould ex parte Taylor. Hearing, 11th July; award, 22nd August 1901.

51. Emily Royston, a depositor, requested her deposits to be transferred to the account of Albert Bowness, but before the deposit books were despatched from the Savings Bank Department, applied by telegram to have the transfer cancelled. It having been already effected in the books of the Department, the telegram was too late. It was shown conclusively that Bowness had no title to the money. Award for payment and transfer to Emily Royston.—Post Office Savings Bank re Bowness ex parte Royston. Hearing, 19th July; award, 3rd October 1901.

52. Ellen Patchett, 18 years of age, entrusted her brother-in-law, William Charles Titley, with 35*l.* 4*s.*, which he deposited in his own name in the Post Office, believing that it would be advantageous to her not to have the control of it. Her uncle, J. B. Bourne, applied on her behalf for repayment out of the deposits to buy her an outfit for domestic service. Award for payment of 10*l.* out of the deposits to Ellen Patchett, with liberty to apply as to the remainder. Post Office Savings Bank re Titley ex parte Patchett. Hearing, 18th July; award, 3rd October 1901.

53. On 21st February 1901 Mary Ann Speller authorised her daughter, Ellen Jane Monk, to receive 54*l.* 15*s.* 11*d.*, the amount of her deposits. On March 29th she instructed Mrs. Monk to redeposit 50*l.* of the money, which she did in her own name. On a written acknowledgment by Mrs. Monk to that effect, award for payment to Mrs. Speller.—Post Office Savings Bank re Monk ex parte Speller. Hearing, 25th October 1901; award, same day.

54. Charles Whiteman, 16 years of age, had been employed by his father, a fruit salesman in Stratford Market, and while so employed in July 1901 deposited 2*l.* 16*s.* in his own name. In August he left his father's employment and went to work with another master in the same trade in the market. The father then stated that the deposits were the joint property of the depositor and his two younger sisters. The son applied to the Registrar and a time was fixed for hearing, but the father did not attend the hearing or furnish any evidence in support of his statement within a limited time allowed to him for doing so after the hearing. The boy deposed on oath that the money was entirely his own earnings, being given him by people for carrying packages. Award for payment to the depositor.—Post Office Savings Bank re Whiteman. Hearing, 29th October; award 6th November 1901.

55. On the death of Ellen Crowley in 1885, her husband, Denis Crowley, took out letters of administration to her estate, which amounted to 50*l.* He paid 10*l.* to one Brierley, retained 20*l.* for himself, and entrusted the remaining 20*l.* to the Rev. A. Police, a Catholic priest, and to Mr. McCann, the surety for the administration, for the benefit of his son, Denis Crowley the younger. They deposited it in the Savings Bank in their joint names, and are both now dead. No legal personal representative of the survivor can be traced. The deposit book, which Denis Crowley the elder retained, bears, apparently in the handwriting of the Rev. Mr. Police, the inscription, "Nota.—'Trust money in behalf of Denis Crowley, infant, No. 115, Bidder Street, Canning Town.'" Denis Crowley the younger is in the United States and is now of age. Award for payment to him.—London Provident Institution re Crowley. Hearing, 3rd August 1900 and 5th November 1901; award, 8th November 1901.

56. Kate McKiernan was convicted in February 1901 of stealing money belonging to her mistress, Elizabeth Haslam, and sentenced to four months' imprisonment. She had a deposit of 30*l.* 10*s.* in the Post Office Savings Bank, of which Mrs. Haslam claimed 20*l.* At the hearing, which was fixed for a date after the depositor's term of imprisonment had expired, she did not attend, and Mrs. Haslam furnished statutory declarations in support of her claim, copies of which were furnished to the depositor, but she made no declaration in answer. Award for payment of 20*l.* to Mrs. Haslam.—Post Office Savings Bank re McKiernan ex parte Haslam. Hearing, 14th June 1901; award, 16th November.

57. On 1st May 1899 Lydia Webb withdrew 81*l.* 6*s.* 5*d.* Shortly afterwards she requested her sister Emily to deposit 50*l.* in her own name. Emily died 31st August 1901. The other next-of-kin consented to payment of the deposit to Lydia, and furnished statutory declarations in support of her claim. Award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank re Webb. Hearing, 10th December 1901; award, same day.

ROBBERY.

58. Depositor was detected in stealing 6*s.* 6*d.* from his employer, and pleaded guilty. He acknowledged that he had stolen other sums amounting to 5*l.* Upon careful examination of his account, taking into consideration admissions made by him in cross-examination, it appeared evident that his peculations must have greatly exceeded that amount, and must, during the 19 months of his employment by the same employer, have exceeded 50*l.* Award for payment of that sum to the employer.—Post Office Savings Bank re Langley ex parte Sainsbury. Hearing, 5th September 1901; award, 7th September. Mr. W. M. Thompson, instructed by Mr. Crookes, for the depositor; Mr. Clarke Hall, instructed by Messrs. Ricketts and Son, for the employer.

59. William Steward deposited 30*l.* on 15th October 1900. On the 14th October, the "Fleece Inn," Kirkgate, Huddersfield, had been broken into and 63*l.* in money with other property stolen. At the Leeds Assizes in December Steward was charged with this and other offences, and having been convicted on one charge, the others were not proceeded with. An application was then made and assented to by the prosecutor, Mr. Paul Jackson, that 3*l.* of the deposits should be paid out to the prisoner's wife. The prisoner accordingly signed a notice of withdrawal for that sum, and Mr. Jackson applied to the Registrar for an award directing payment to him of the remainder, as being part of the proceeds of the robbery. The prisoner denied that it was so, but furnished no evidence in support of his statement, and after finishing his term of imprisonment in Leeds Prison was arrested on another charge and sentenced to another term of imprisonment in Wakefield Prison. He retained the deposit book. Award for payment to Paul Jackson, with or without production of the deposit book.—Post Office Savings Bank re Steward ex parte Jackson. Hearing, 19th February 1901; award, 28th March.

TRADE UNION.

60. The Feltham Branch, No. 9, of the Municipal Employees Association having been closed, award for payment to the General Trustees of the Association, pursuant to its Rules.—Post Office Savings Bank re Feltham Branch ex parte Municipal Employees Association. Hearing, 31st May; award, 27th September 1901.

TRUST.

61. A sum of 10*l.*, given by Mrs. Yeo towards building a minister's house for the Reformed Episcopal Church, was directed by the Select Vestry to be deposited in the joint names of the Rev. John Thornberry and Mr. John Flood Alford. The plan of building the house having been dropped, or, at least, indefinitely postponed, and dissension having arisen in the church, Mrs. Yeo requested that the 10*l.* might be applied towards paying arrears in the minister's stipend, and the Select Vestry resolved accordingly. Mr. Alford declined to join in the receipt, alleging that the Select Vestry were acting beyond their powers and that they were not duly constituted. As no evidence was given in support of these allegations, award for payment to Mr. Thornberry with or without the concurrence of Mr. Alford. Post Office Savings Bank re Thornberry and Alford. Hearing, 30th August 1901; award, 31st August.

TRUST ACCOUNT.

62. 30*l.* was deposited on 23rd February 1876 in the name of L. R. Cooper, as trustee of L. R. R. Cooper, her illegitimate daughter. The money was part of a sum paid upon the withdrawal of an affiliation summons. The child was maintained by C. Cooper, mother of L. R. Cooper, until August 1899, with some assistance from L. R. Cooper. Both L. R. Cooper and L. R. R. Cooper are now married, and C. Cooper applied for an award directing payment of the deposits to her towards recouping her the expense she had incurred in the maintenance of L. R. R. Cooper. The solicitor for L. R. Cooper and L. R. R. Cooper applied for an award directing payment of the deposits to the latter in execution of the trusts created by the deposit. The deposits now amount to 55*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.* Held that as the primary object of an affiliation summons is to secure the maintenance of the child, C. Cooper was entitled to a reasonable proportion of the deposits towards the expense she had incurred under that head, but as she had acquiesced in their being deposited in the name of the child and they had been accumulated in the Savings Bank for the child's benefit, the remainder of the deposits ought to be paid to L. R. R. Cooper. Award for equal division.—Post Office Savings Bank re Cooper's Trust. Hearing, 12th February 1901; award, 13th February. Mr. Cosgrave and Mr. Mullen, solicitors for the respective parties.

63. In February 1888 Mrs. Louisa Percy, the widow and administratrix of Charles Percy, made an investment of 50*l.* Stock in her own name as Trustee for Florence Emily Percy, his daughter by a former marriage. On leaving England in 1889 she handed the deposit book and investment certificate to Mrs. Ruth Robson, an aunt of the child, who undertook to maintain her. The child died in February 1901, one month before her 21st birthday. Mrs. Robson claimed 67*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* for doctor's bills and funeral expenses. The dividends not having been drawn, the deposit account is now 22*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* Letters of administration to the estate of Florence Emily Percy have been taken out by Mrs. Anne Jotcham, who claimed the whole amount, as belonging to the estate of the child. Held that the administratrix had no title as against the statutory title of the survivor in the account; but that such survivor took the fund, subject to the trust under which it was created, and that, therefore, Mrs. Robson's claim might be entertained. Mrs. Louisa Percy, now Chapman, resides in the United States. Award for payment of 67*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* to Mrs. Robson and the balance to Mrs. Chapman, the survivor in the account.—Post Office Savings Bank re Percy ex parte Jotcham. Hearing, 4th October; award, 5th October 1901.

WIDOW OF DEPOSITOR.

64. Mr. E. S. Thwaites, a depositor, died in July 1900, leaving a widow and six children by a previous marriage. Mrs. Thorne, one of these children, objected to the widow having her share on the ground that at the time of the marriage she had a former husband living, and alleged that the husband was still alive. Mrs. Thorne was unable, however, to produce any evidence in support of her assertion. Award for payment to Mrs. Susan Thwaites.—Post Office Savings Bank re Thwaites ex parte Thorne. Hearing, 8th March; award, 25th March 1901.

LAW CASES.

In re GRIFFIN.

Dec. 4.

Griffin v. Griffin.

Friendly society—Life policy—Assignment—Nomination—Friendly Societies Act, 1875
(38 & 39 Vict. c. 60), s. 15.

This was an appeal from Joyce J., which raised the question whether a policy of assurance effected by a member on his own life is legally assignable by him in any other manner than by a nomination under the provisions of the Friendly Societies Acts.

In May 1894, George Griffin, a member of the Royal Liver Friendly Society, took out a policy of assurance with the society for the sum of 30*l.*, payable on his death. In March 1895, George Griffin assigned this policy to the plaintiff for valuable consideration. No nomination in accordance with the provisions of the Friendly Societies Acts or the rules of the society was ever made by George Griffin in respect of the said policy.

In February 1901, George Griffin died. In March 1901, the plaintiff served the society with notice in writing of the assignment to him of March 1895. In August 1901, letters of administration to the estate of George Griffin were granted to his widow, the defendant. Both the plaintiff and the defendant claimed the policy moneys, and in order to decide the rights of the parties the present action was commenced, and the plaintiff applied for the appointment of a receiver of the policy moneys. Joyce J., without expressing any opinion of his own, but following In re Redman, Warton v. Redman, [1901] 2 Ch. 471, in which Kekewich J. followed a prior decision by Phillimore J. in Caddick v. Highton, [1901] 2 Ch. 476, n., refused the application, on the ground that, according to these decisions, a policy of this kind was not assignable than by means of a nomination. The plaintiff appealed. P. Ogden Lawrence, K.C., and Austen-Cartmell, for the plaintiff. Hughes, K.C., and J. M. Gover, for the defendant, the widow. Younger, K.C., and Mark Romer, for the trustees of the society.

THE COURT (Vaughan Williams, Romer, and Cozens-Hardy L.JJ.) allowed the appeal.

The following is an extract from the judgments of their Lordships :—

WILLIAMS, L.J.—In this case the question really raised is whether or not a policy issued by a friendly society governed by the Act of 1875 is or is not assignable, and I have come to the conclusion that it is assignable. Where a policy is taken out for a sum of money which is payable to the member who takes out the policy, or his personal representative, by virtue of the contract entered into, no one will deny for a moment that such a sum of money, prima facie, is part of the property of the member, or the estate of the deceased member, as the case may be. Therefore we must find something in the Act of 1875, or in the rules of the society, which prevents this particular property having this ordinary incident of property. Now, it is admitted on both sides that there is nothing whatsoever in either Act of Parliament or the rules which expressly prevents the moneys payable under this policy, or the policy itself, from being assignable. If, therefore, the policy is not assignable it must be from some implication arising under the statute. I do not propose to go through all the legislation upon the subject of friendly societies prior to 1875, or to deal with the arguments that Mr. Lawrence put forward, based upon the presence in these Acts of Parliament of words and phrases which seem to recognise the rights of persons not members of the society, claiming through members of the society. I think it is more satisfactory to decide this case upon the interpretation of the Act of 1875, and really only one section of the Act of 1875 has been referred to from which it could be argued that the statute takes away by implication the power to assign a policy issued by the society, and that is section 15, sub-section 3. It is said one ought to draw the inference from that provision, that the statute intended that the power of nomination given by that sub-section should be the only mode of alienation of moneys under a policy issued by a friendly society governed by this statute. I think we are not bound to draw any such conclusion, and that we ought not to draw it. In the first place, subsection 3 is apparently intended not to give so much a power of alienation as to give a testamentary power of disposition. It is a sub-section which enables the nominator to nominate a person to whom the moneys arising under the policy shall be paid at his decease. That power is by the express terms of the Act of Parliament a revocable power, but it is revocable only in a way provided by the statute; that is to say, by delivering a particular notice to the society. But why is it suggested that this sub-section 3 of section 15 takes away the power of alienation? All we have to decide now is in the case of a policy for 30*l.*, there being no nomination, whether or not an assignment executed by the member of the society who took out the policy in his lifetime is effective to transfer to the assign the right to this 30L., or whether it becomes part of his general estate; and I hold that it is effective to transfer to the assign that policy and the moneys under it.

ROMER, L.J.—I agree. As my Lord has pointed out, the policy moneys in question in this application are prima facie assignable. To make them non-assignable you must find some legislative enactment to that effect, either express or arising by necessary implication. After considering the various Acts to which our attention has been called, I can find no such legislative enactment. The case is really governed by the Act of 1875, and, far from finding any express enactment in that Act prohibiting assignment, there are expressions used in that Act, and provisions in it, which seem to me to militate against the idea that an assignment in such a case was not recognised by the Act. There is, for example, the definition in section 4 of the Act. That section defines “persons claiming through a member,” and says it includes “the heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns of a member, and also his nominees, where nomination is allowed.” The fact that in that definition both the assigns and the nominees are put together seems to my mind sufficient. And that section is followed up by several important sections where the expression I have referred to is used; for example, in section 21, sub-section 2, which gives a right of suing the friendly society to a “member, or person claiming through a member.” It provides that in legal proceedings “which may be brought under this Act by a member or person claiming through a member,” the society may be sued in a particular way. Now, the chief section relied on by the respondents in this case as supporting their contention is section 15. To my mind, that section may one of these days give rise to questions of some difficulty which fortunately do not arise on this appeal. And I should like to keep my mind free to decide those questions when they come before us. I mean questions which may arise between persons nominated under this section by a member to receive moneys payable on his death and the express assigns of that person who effected the policy. Also questions of this kind, as to whether, as between the member and his nominee, there might not be provisions, enforceable on behalf of some persons, which had made the nominee a trustee. I am not indicating any opinion one way or the other. I only say that these questions and similar questions may arise and may have to be considered hereafter. In the case before us there is no nomination; the member has not nominated any person to receive these policy moneys, so that the question is whether there is anything in section 15, subsection 3, which tends to show, or shows by necessary implication, for there is nothing express, that, in a case where there are no nominees under the section, an assign for value, or an assign from a member in his lifetime, should have no legal position, and could not have his rights in any way recognised or enforced. I am bound to say I cannot find in this section any such necessary implication. It appears to me that, even giving the fullest rights to the nominees, it does not follow that in a case where there are no nominees there should not be a right to assignment, and that the assigns should have no rights whatever. The mere fact that nominees have been provided for by the subsection does not, in my opinion, justify the argument, or the conclusion, that the Legislature intended that no other persons claiming through a member should be recognised than these nominees. It may well be when such questions, as I have before referred to, come to be considered that it may be held that these nominees are really only in the nature of assigns—assigns claiming under what is equivalent to an assignment which is revocable in a particular way; or that they are in the position only of assigns whose position, unless their position is revoked, is conclusive as between them and the society. It may well be that that is the proper view to take; I express no opinion upon it, for, as I have said, it does not arise here. But I can find nothing in the Act of 1875, even assuming that the nominees are in the position of persons who have titles for all purposes which negative, when they do exist, the rights of the assignees for value—even assuming that, I can find nothing that justifies the inference that when there are no such nominees you can have no other assignees at all. I should like to say, further, with reference to the judgment of Phillimore J. in Cuddick v. Highton (ubi sup.), to which our attention has been called, that I cannot see anything in the Policies of Assurance Act, 1867, which justifies the conclusion that Phillimore J. came to in that case. All that the Act of 1867 did was to give the assignees of most policies the right to sue on those policies at law. It excepted the policies of such a class as we have to consider on this appeal; but it appears to me that might well have been, because, if the last-mentioned policies were not excepted, it might have justified the argument that those policies could have been sued on in the ordinary way without being hampered or hindered in any way in the ordinary courts of law; whereas we know from the course of legislation on the subject of Friendly Societies that provisions more or less of a stringent character have been made to settle disputes before special tribunals, and I need not say now that those provisions compel disputes to be settled in a special way, and only render them enforceable in special cases. But it may well be that the Legislature in passing the Act of 1867 did not want to throw any doubt on the efficacy of those provisions in the case of policies of the kind we have to consider on this appeal. Lastly, I cannot find anything in the case of Bennett v. Slater which would justify us in allowing the contention of the respondents on this appeal. And for those reasons I agree in thinking that the appeal should be allowed.

COZENS-HARDY, L.J.: I agree. This is really an appeal from the decision of Phillimore J. in Caddick v. Highton (ubi sup.). He there decided in terms that policies of this nature cannot be assigned; they can only be nominated: and unless and in so far as they are nominated they vest both legally and beneficially in the legal personal representative of the deceased member. In order to establish that, it is important to remember how to approach an Act like the Friendly Societies Act, 1875. It is not necessary to find any clause enabling assignments to be made. If the view of Phillimore J. is correct, you must find some words preventing the owner of the property from disposing of that which did not belong to anyone else. I do not find any such words in this Act. I will not go through the sections my learned brothers have gone through, but I will refer to section 18, subsection 1, which seems to me strong to show as to this Act that the owner of the policy can deal with it as part of his property. It provides a mode in which the funds of the Society may be invested, and the Legislature said, in effect, that the funds of this society may be lent to members on personal security, with two satisfactory sureties to the amount of half the value of the policy; and that the amount due on the loan may be deducted from the policy when it matures. That seems to me consistent, and only consistent, with a view that this policy is a part of the property of the assured. Then reliance is placed on Bennett v. Slater; but that case when carefully considered seems to me to be a strong authority in support of the view that this is property subject to assignment, for the Lords Justices there held that although so long as there was a nomination in force and unrevoked the will of the assured had no operation on the policy, yet, if it had been revoked, the policy would have formed part of his estate and been subject to his disposition by will. We are not met here with the more difficult problem Phillimore J. had to deal with of assignment for value followed by nomination. I desire, as my learned brothers have, to keep that an open point. Here there was no nomination, and we have nothing but the policy, the assignment, and the death of the insured, and I have no doubt the assignment was perfectly good.

[From the Report of the Philanthropic Order of True Ivorites, St. David's Unity.]

The Jestyn ap Gurgant Lodge, Ystradgynlais District, resolved unanimously, with the exception of Mr. Thomas Thomas, who at the time was on the funds of the lodge, to divide the funds among the members. The valuer of the Unity fixed the amount due by the lodge to the Unity at 232*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.*, the value of Mr. Thomas's interest at 49*l.* 13*s.*, and his fee at 3*l.* 3*s.* The lodge paid the 52*l.* 16*s.*, but refused to pay the 232*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.* Upon proceedings being taken in the High Court, before Sterling J., his Lordship gave judgment against the lodge with costs.

The Glantwrch Lodge in the same district resolved to sever its connection with the Order, and to register itself as an independent society under the name of Cwmtwrch Ivorites Rose Society. The Order applied for an injunction against the trustees of the Glantwrch Lodge to prevent them using the moneys of the lodge for the objects of the Glantwrch Ivorites Rose Society, and to utilise them for the benefit of the Ivorites Unity. Kekewich, J., granted the injunction. After the long vacation the case came before the Court again, and the Judge was applied to for an order to transfer the whole of the property which belonged to the Cwmtwrch Lodge of Ivorites to the Unity because the lodge had ceased to exist as a branch of the Ivorite Unity. On 30th October 1901 the Judge granted the application, and made an Order that the whole of the property which belonged to the Glantwrch Lodge should be forthwith transferred to the Unity, and that the costs of the case be deducted from the same.

The Briatha Lodge of the Swansea District endeavoured to secede, but did not comply with the requirements of the rules. The trustees of the district sued the trustees of the lodge in the Swansea County Court for the contributions accruing due, and his Honour Judge Gwilym Williams decided in favour of the district. He consented, however, to state a case.

CASE DECIDED IN THE SUPREME COURT OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

[From the "Register, Adelaide," 8th February 1902. Communicated by Mr. H. D. Gouge, Public Actuary.]

At the Supreme Court on Friday morning the Chief Justice delivered his reserved judgment in the case of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and Others v. the Independent Order of Oddfellows Bon Accord Lodge, No. 11, and Others. In this case, the hearing of which was begun on September 3, the plaintiff order pleaded that the defendant lodge had rendered itself liable to punishment by the following acts, neglects, and defaults:—1. By having knowingly violated the rules or regulations of the order by having neglected to forward to the grand secretary of the Grand Lodge of the order the returns and statements required by the said Grand Lodge for the quarters ending respectively on December 31, 1899, March 31, and June 30, 1900. 2. By having knowingly neglected to make payment of its dues to the general funeral fund of the Grand Lodge for the quarters ending respectively on December 31, 1899, March 31, and June 30, 1900. 3. By having knowingly neglected to make payment to the Grand Lodge of the assessment levied on the defendant lodge towards the management fund of the Grand Lodge for the quarters ending on the dates mentioned. 4. By having knowingly neglected to make payment to the Grand Lodge of the assessment levied on the defendant lodge towards the benevolent fund of the Grand Lodge for the quarters referred to. The defendant lodge was duly charged with the said acts, neglects, and defaults on August 3, 1900, and the charge was duly investigated by the judicial committee of the Grand Lodge, and having been duly laid before the executive committee and examined by them (the said Grand Lodge being then in recess) they pronounced their decision thereon that the charge was proven, and that the defendant lodge be expelled from the order, and the defendant lodge was accordingly so expelled in accordance with the provisions of the said constitution on August 22, 1900. At the time of the expulsion the defendant lodge was entitled to certain real and personal property, including lands, moneys, securities, and other assets, a charter, initiation and degree books, working regalia, and other things which the plaintiffs claimed had been forfeited to the Grand Lodge, but which the officers of the Bon Accord refused to hand over to the officers of the Grand Lodge. The plaintiffs claimed:—1. A declaration that the defendant lodge had been duly expelled from the plaintiff order and had absolutely forfeited all claim and interest whatsoever to and in the funds, benefits, and privileges thereof and of the Grand Lodge thereof, and that it had forfeited absolutely to the Grand Lodge its charter, initiation and degree books, and its working regalia, and all its real and personal property whatsoever. 2. A declaration that the charter, initiation and degree books, regalia, and real and personal property were absolutely vested in the Grand Lodge, and formed part of the Grand Lodge management fund of the plaintiff order. 3. An order vesting the charter, books, regalia, property, and subsequent accretions thereto in the Grand Lodge, as trustees for the plaintiff order, or in the plaintiff order for all the estate and interest of the defendants therein, according to the nature and tenure thereof respectively. 4. That the defendant society be ordered to execute proper transfers and assignments of all the said property for all the estate and interest of the defendants therein. 5. An order that all moneys belonging to the defendant lodge in the defendant officers' hands or control be paid to the said Grand Lodge. 6. Possession of the charter, books, regalia, and other property of the defendant lodge. 7. All necessary accounts, enquiries, and directions. 8. An injunction to restrain the defendants from dealing with or disposing of the said property otherwise than in favour of the plaintiffs. 9. 200% damages against the defendants, Karl Henrich, Emanuel Wiener, T. J. Clark, W. J. Carroll, F. Seessle, H. S. Waterhouse, Francis Leane, George Powell, W. T. Lingwood-Smith, and R. J. Reid for the wrongful detention, conversion, and refusal to deliver possession of such property. 10. In the alternative the value of the charter, books, regalia, and real and personal property, and 200% damages. The defence was to the effect that the Bon Accord Lodge denied that the "laws and rules," so far as they purported to enact forfeiture to the Grand Lodge of the real and personal property of the expelled lodges, were either made in conformity with the Friendly Societies Act, or that they governed the society. The defendant lodge further denied that it was bound by the alleged provisions of the constitution quoted in the claim, and pleaded that the said provisions were illegal, and in contravention of the Act and of the part of the constitution relating to subordinate lodges. The defendant lodge denied that it was possessed of any working regalia, or that it was possessed of a charter or initiation or degree books. It admitted that at the time of the expulsion it was entitled to certain real and personal property, which was in the custody of the defendant officers, in accordance with the constitution of the plaintiff order. The allegations in the claim relating to the detention of the books, regalia, and property were denied, and a plea was entered that the rituals, books, regalia, and property mentioned in the claim were not the property of the plaintiff order. All money and other property which had come to the hands of the trustees or officers of the defendant lodge had been dealt with in the manner prescribed by the Friendly Societies Act, and were—subject to the equities affecting the same—held upon the trust created by virtue of the part of the constitution relating to subordinate lodges, and could not be forfeited to the Grand Lodge. The defendant further pleaded that the Grand Lodge had no power to expel the Bon Accord Lodge from the order, and that the claim disclosed no cause of action for detention of the ritual, regalia, and other property, inasmuch as the plaintiff society admitted that the property was not in the possession of the lodge. It was objected that the plaintiff order could not maintain an action against the "Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Bon Accord Lodge, No. 11," because by virtue of the Act they were one and the same body corporate. Also that the alleged provisions of the constitution relating to the property of expelled lodges, and the forfeiture thereof to the Grand Lodge, were in contravention of the provisions of the Act, and, being illegal, were not binding upon the defendant lodge. A defence of similar purport was filed by the defendant officers.

His Honour in giving judgment, after reviewing the legislation under which the order was constituted, said the present action had its origin in a difference which began in 1898 between the Grand Lodge and the executive committee on the one side and the defendant lodge on the other, with respect to the appropriation of the interest earned by the investment of the latter lodge's funds. The two principal funds of the subordinate lodges were the sick and funeral fund and the medical and management fund. In the Bon Accord and some other subordinate lodges there was a third fund, called the "contingent fund." Until 1898, in accordance with the practice of all the other lodges, the interest on the investments was divided between the two funds which had earned it. In that year, however, the defendant lodge, desiring to succour the necessitous medical and management fund, began to credit it with all the interest earned by the sick and funeral fund. They did this relying upon the somewhat loosely worded rules 24 to 26; but the new departure was expressly forbidden by the Friendly Societies Amendment Act of 1894, which provided that all moneys received on account of each particular fund must be kept separate and distinct, and not used for the advantage or benefit of another fund. This misappropriation of interest was objected to by the public actuary and by the finance committee of the Grand Lodge. The Bon Accord Lodge was requested by the executive committee to amend its balance sheet in that particular in August and November 1898, and by the Grand Lodge in March 1899. Failing compliance the disciplinary powers of the constitution were put in force, and the defendant lodge was suspended until it should comply with the resolution requiring the balance sheet to be rectified. It was not necessary at that stage to decide whether the Bon Accord Lodge was rightly suspended. In the dispute with the Grand Lodge it had in its favour the language of rules 25 and 26, less clearly expressed than they might have been, and it acted under pressure of the indebtedness of the medical and management fund, which was insolvent, and impoverishing the other funds of the lodge. On the other hand, the Grand Lodge was supported by the well-established practice of the order as well as by the requirements of an Act of Parliament, with which the rules had to be reconciled. What the defendant lodge should have done was to gradually reduce the indebtedness of the medical and management fund by a reduction of expenditure and by means of levies. Moreover, it was the duty of that body to submit to the decisions of the Grand Lodge, as the ruling authority and supreme tribunal of the order. If dissatisfied it was not left without redress, as it could appeal or go to arbitration, as provided by the rules. Whether it was rightly suspended or not, it was plainly the duty of the defendant lodge to continue to make returns and to pay its contributions to the funds of the Grand Lodge. The suspension was, in the words of section 8 of the Act, "from the benefits of the society," and not from its obligations. The suspension could not enable the subordinate lodge to take advantage of its own wrong, nor exempt it from the performance of its duties to the order. Unfortunately, instead of availing itself of the locus penitentiae afforded by its suspension, the Bon Accord persisted in its refusal to comply with the instructions of the Grand Lodge, or to fulfil its obligations, and endeavoured to sever its connection with the order, and to use the contingent fund for the purpose of aiding in the establishment of an independent lodge. At meetings held on December 13, 1899, and February 2, 1900, the members arranged to withdraw 336*l.* 7*s.* 9*d.* from the lodge funds and place it in the hands of six of the defendants for distribution among the members of good standing and for other specified purposes. In order to give effect to these resolutions the lodge realised upon what might be called its liquid assets to the amount of 556*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*, and after paying a bank overdraft handed over to the committee 305*l.*, in accordance with the resolutions referred to. The culmination of the proceedings was reached at a special meeting on June 22, 1900, when the members by 22 to 3 votes decided to sever their connection with the order. In the meantime the Grand Lodge, unless it was prepared to allow any subordinate lodge to secede at will and to relinquish its pecuniary and other obligations to the order, was driven to enforce the penal provisions of the constitution. Charges were laid against the branch, which did not attend the hearing. On August 22, 1900, it was resolved that the Bon Accord Lodge be expelled from the order. Referring to the contention that before the date of the expulsion the Bon Accord Lodge had severed its connection with the order, His Honour referred to the case of Schofield v. Vause, 36 W.R., 170, in which the Lords Justices held that the branch lodge could only secede in the manner provided by the rules. Assuming that rules 58 and 68 of the constitution implied a right on the part of the subordinate lodge to secede, what machinery was there to give effect to that right? He did not doubt that it was within the competency of the Grand Lodge to frame rules regulating secession of subordinate lodges, and it was not necessary to decide that there was no possible method of secession until such rules were made. But without such rules he saw no practical way by which a lodge could secede. At the special meeting held on June 22, 1900, the members present had no pretence that they had jurisdiction to represent the Grand Lodge, or the other subordinate lodges. The resolution passed by the 22 members who voted for it was an act of gross insubordination, and was altogether ineffectual to sever the connection of the Bon Accord Lodge with the order, or to compel the 73 absent members, some of whom probably were in receipt of relief, to exchange the security of the plaintiff order, with over 50 lodges and thousands of members, and of funds which had been accumulating for 22 years, for membership in a new lodge, with a handful of adherents and such problematical assets as might be wrested from the funds of the Bon Accord and not squandered in impending litigation. Even if it were established that the Bon Accord had a right to secede from the order, that would not be decisive of the case. The argument for the defendants would have to be carried further. It would be incumbent upon them to show that a seceding lodge could take away with it the funds contributed under the rules of the order. That this could not be done was clearly laid down in the case of Schofield v. Vause. It was further contended that the rules providing for the forfeiture of the property of expelled lodges were illegal, and contrary to the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act of 1886. It was admitted that when a member was expelled he forfeited all right to participate in the benefits of the order, and no fresh provision as to the disposal of the property, whether of the society or of the branch, was required. But when a branch and all its members were expelled from the benefits of the society some substituted disposition of the property of the branch became necessary, because without it there would be no beneficiaries to participate in the benefits of the funds of the branch. The second part of rule 64 provided that all real and personal property of a subordinate lodge should on its expulsion be vested in the Grand Lodge. If there had not been any statutory authority for this rule—as there was—he did not see why it should not be binding upon the members. It was simply a provision agreed to by the subscribers themselves. Every candidate for membership promised to subscribe to and comply with the rules and regulations, including that under consideration. The funds of the Bon Accord had become inapplicable to their original objects through the expulsion of the branch, and it would be nonsensical to hold that they could not be transferred so as to make them still beneficial to the order. His Honour overruled the objection that forfeiture might prevent possible creditors of the society from obtaining payment of their debts, and held that the Grand Lodge took the assets cum onere. He also dismissed the argument that the Bon Accord might be wound up under the Companies Act, and that in such circumstances the property would be distributed among the members. The answer to that contention was that the assets were disposed of in one way on its expulsion, and in another way in case of winding-up. Thirdly, it was contended that the contingent fund, amounting to 336*l.* 7*s.* 9*d.*, or at least 305*l.* of it, had before the Bon Accord was expelled ceased to be part of the property of the lodge. One could not help perceiving from the resolutions of the lodge, and from what was done after its suspension, that the dealing with the contingent fund was part of a scheme on the part of the members who had obtained ascendancy over the rest to throw off the authority of the Grand Lodge and to make the members of the Bon Accord an independent lodge. The resolutions, which took the management of the contingent fund out of the control of the lodge and prevented it from being used for the relief of distress and for other purposes as the lodge should determine, contravened the rules and regulations. The payment of 305*l.* to the committee was altogether unauthorised, and the money still continued, in spite of the unlawful dealing with it, to be part of the contingent fund. The payment of 305*l.* to the committee was an unsuccessful attempt to divest it of the trust with which the fund was clothed. At his suggestion the plaintiffs had agreed to allow the committee 32*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.*, which had been repaid to the defendant Seessle in respect of his payment to the surgeon of the Bon Accord Lodge. With respect to the contention that the action was improperly constituted on the ground that the Independent Order of Oddfellows could not sue the Independent Order of Oddfellows, Bon Accord Lodge, as they were both one corporation, His Honour expressed the view that if the objection were upheld, it would not be fatal to the action, as nearly all the relief sought could be given against the defendants. Moreover, as the defendants included the principal officers and trustees of the Bon Accord Lodge, they could probably by an amendment be made to represent the members of the lodge in the action. But the Act made it clear that the branches, or lodges, although included in the incorporation of the society or order, had a corporate existence of their own. They bore in some respects the same relation to the order as the states bore to the Commonwealth. The decision of the Court was as follows:—(1.) That the resolution of the Bon Accord Lodge of June 22, 1900, failed to sever the connection of the lodge with the order or to affect its property in any manner; (2) that the lodge was duly expelled on August 22, 1900, and that all its property was thereupon forfeited to the Grand Lodge under rule 64, which he held to be valid; (3) that 305*l.*, part of the contingent fund, was improperly withdrawn and paid over to the committee, and must be restored; (4) that the action was properly constituted. The plaintiffs, therefore, were entitled to judgment in terms of paragraphs 1 to 8 of the claim. The plaintiff order waived the account mentioned in paragraph 7 of the claim, and Mr. Murray on its behalf claimed judgment for 310*l.* 0*s.* 7*d.*, which was the balance shown upon the admissions as to the state of the account, after giving credit for 32*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* repaid to Mr. Seessle on account of his advances to the surgeons of the Bon Accord Lodge. These admissions, however, are as to the state of the accounts at the end of 1899, and not at the date of the expulsion, and there may have been payments lawfully made between those dates. In those circumstances he deemed it safer to give judgment only for the 305*l.* paid out of the contingent fund to the committee of six, and for which they and the other defendants were liable. From this would be deducted 32*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* reimbursed to Seessle if the defendants satisfied him (His Honour) that there were no other lodge funds properly available for that purpose. The judgment would be against all the defendants for the 305*l.*, or if reduced, as mentioned, for 272*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* With the possible exception of the defendant Powell, every one of the defendants participated in the wrongful withdrawal of the contingent fund from the Bon Accord Lodge, and all of them except Powell and Carroll voted for the resolution of June 22, 1900, and Carroll was a member of and voted on the committee, and, like four other members of that body, was a trustee of the Bon Accord Lodge, and therefore bound to protect its funds. The defendant Reid presided as Noble Grand at the lodge meeting on December 13, 1899, and was present at the meeting of February 2, 1900, and voted for the resolution for the withdrawal of the contingent fund. The members of the committee would be directed to pay over 112*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.* standing to their credit at the Savings Bank to the plaintiffs suing on behalf of the Grand Lodge on account of the 272*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*, and the interest carried by the former sum would also have to be paid over. There would be a similar order as to the 1*l.* 8*s.* 1*d.* in the Savings Bank to the credit of the Bon Accord Lodge. The trustees—Wiener, Clark, Carroll, Seessle, and Waterhouse—would be directed to deliver the two certificates of title to the plaintiffs, and if the plaintiffs consented the Registrar-General would be directed to correct the entries in the register book by making the plaintiff order instead of the Bon Accord Lodge, No. 11, the registered proprietors. The defendants—Lane, Powell, and Lingwood-Smith—would severally be directed to deliver the seal, charter, rituals, and minute and other books in their possession to the plaintiffs, except such books and documents as might have been produced at the trial. There would be an order against all the defendants, with the possible exception of Powell, for payment of the plaintiffs' costs, but he would hear Mr. Anderson as to Reid's liability to pay costs. He would hear both parties at a later stage as to what judgment there should be against Powell beyond an order for delivery of the cash book, and as to the question of deducting 32*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* referred to. The present interim restraining order would be maintained until the judgment was signed.

At the conclusion of his judgment the Chief Justice said: "Looking at the consequences to every member of the Bon Accord Lodge one cannot but regret that some modus vivendi was not discovered to prevent this action being fought out to the end. It was urged that the rules giving the powers of expulsion and forfeiture are harsh and unjust. The policy of the legislature both here and in England has been to allow friendly societies to regulate their own affairs, subject to certain precautionary provisions to secure the safety of their funds and the stability of their benefits. The rules complained of have been in force for 18 years at least, and were probably introduced at the time of the establishment of the order in South Australia in 1878. If there had been any unjust or tyrannical exercise of the powers in question, they would long since been restricted or abolished. As it is, there are checks against their abuse in the popular constitution of the Grand Lodge as well as in the right of appeal, and of going to arbitration, which the rules secure. Although there was much to be said in the defendants' favour up to the suspension of the lodge, since then they have been wholly in the wrong. Upon the evidence before me—and none of the defendants entered the witness box to qualify it—there is no foundation for the statement in the resolution of June 22, 1900, attributing 'continued and gross injustice' to the Grand Lodge. The Bon Accord Lodge was not suspended until it had failed for more than a year to comply with the direction to rectify the balance sheet, and credit the interest to the right account. The Grand Lodge did not proceed to expulsion until nine months later when the Bon Accord Lodge had failed to make its returns and pay its dues for three successive quarters, nor until it had paid 305*l.* to an unauthorised committee, avowedly to 'withdraw it from the lodge funds,' and had passed a resolution to sever its connection with the order. The final catastrophe is due not to the harshness of the rules, nor to the injustice of the Grand Lodge, but to the wilfulness and obstinacy of the malcontents into whose hands the control of the Bon Accord Lodge has fallen. Their temper so far got the better of their judgment that rather than amend the balance sheets by crediting the few pounds of interest to the fund which had earned it, they induced the lodge to pass a resolution to secede from the order, and thus voluntarily surrendered all interest in its funds, which had been accumulating for more than 20 years, and to which the defendant lodge had been contributing since its establishment in 1882. Through the same perverseness the lodge has lost all its own accumulated funds and property to the amount of 1,100*l.* The loss would be deplorable if it had to be borne only by those who are morally responsible for it. The pity is that it falls on the blind as well as upon the leaders of the blind; upon working men who have for years been striving to make such small provision against sickness and death as they could spare out of their earnings, and who now have to suffer for their misplaced confidence. Happily, the mischief can be mitigated to those members of the lodge who have not been party to the misconduct by reason of which the lodge has been expelled, under the powers given by rule 66 of re-establishment, and of voting to them part of the money forfeited. I trust that the Grand Lodge, having vindicated the authority of the rules, will now act magnanimously, and that a good many of the 120 members may, as innocent of any default, receive a substantial reimbursement from the lodge funds which have been lost through the misguided conduct of others." The Attorney-

General intimated that the defendants would probably appeal to the Full Court, and asked that the time during which notice of appeal could be given be extended to one month. The request was granted, and an order was made that the bank book and the certificates of title held by defendants should be lodged in court without prejudice to any lien that the solicitors of the defendant lodge might have upon them for costs. Mr. Anderson applied for costs to his client, Reid, in respect of an amendment allowed during the hearing of the case. After argument His Honour said he thought Reid was entitled to some costs, and he would allow the matter to stand over for argument when the other reserved points mentioned in the judgment were considered.

VICTORIA.

The Victorian Year-Book, 1895-98, p. 1128, by Mr. J. J. Fenton, Government Statist, gives the following information :—

Old Age Pensions.

"In March 1897 a Royal Commission was appointed to make inquiry and report as to the desirability of provision being made by or under the control of the State for the maintenance of the aged poor, and as to the best method of securing such a desirable object. Mr. J. W. Kirton, M.L.A., was appointed Chairman of the Commission, which concluded its labours and presented its report in May 1898. The chief causes of the distress proposed to be remedied were held to be (1) Industrial conditions, such as intermittent employment, insufficient remuneration, sweating, &c. (2) Moral infirmity, such as intemperance and improvidence. (3) Physical infirmity, such as sickness, and premature and senile decay. The first was deemed to be the most prolific cause. From estimates furnished by the Government Statist, the number of persons in the colony over the age of 60 years was 83,424, and the number over 65 was 49,912; and of the former it was estimated that about 10,000 were in poor circumstances. A universal pension of 10s. per week to all persons over 60 years of age would thus absorb 2,169,024*l.*, and to persons over 65 years, 1,297,712*l.* annually. The Commission would divide the poor into two classes, viz., the deserving and the less-deserving. The former comprises those who have exercised care and prudence in their affairs, and whose conduct has been good; those who have shown a spirit of self-help by becoming members of friendly societies, or who have attempted to provide an annuity for themselves, or who have been depositors in a savings or other bank for a number of years; and those who have reared families in a respectable manner. The latter comprises those who have been intemperate, extravagant, indolent, improvident, lawless; and generally those who have made no reasonable effort to provide for the future. The Commission recommended that assistance should be limited to persons who have reached the age of 60 years, except in the case of those whose occupations are conducive to premature decay, who should receive special consideration; that a responsible body should be created to investigate all applications for relief; that there be two classes, viz., the deserving class A, and the less-deserving class B, the former to receive a pension, and the latter to be cared for in an institution under State supervision. It was proposed that those in class A should receive a pension of 10s. a week, or 15s. per week for married couples living together, if altogether without incomes; but if they possessed incomes of less than the amounts named, then a sum sufficient to bring their incomes up to the amount fixed, it being provided that the recipient should have resided in the colony at least ten years immediately preceding application. It was suggested that class B should comprise persons who have not been resident ten years, as well as those who are either mentally or physically unfitted to take care of themselves, and those who have made no effort to provide for themselves, or are unfit to be trusted with the expenditure of money. The Commission estimated the number of recipients and the cost to be as follows :—

	Estimated Number of Recipients.	Probable Annual Cost.
Class A - - -	2,800	£54,600*
„ B - - -	2,700	35,100†
Total - - -	5,500	£89,700

Suggested Taxation for Old Age Pensions.

“The Commission recommended that the revenue might be obtained from one or more of the following sources:—(1) State monopoly in the manufacture of tobacco. (2) A tax on earnings. (3) A tax on the unimproved value of land. (4) A tax on house rents. It was further suggested that the Friendly Societies Act, 1890, should be amended to provide for the abolition of sick pay after the age of 60 years; that every member joining should assure for a superannuation allowance or pension of at least 5s. per week, to commence after the age of 60; and that all moneys paid into any society for such pension benefits should be kept separate from other moneys and invested only in Government securities. Legislation somewhat on the lines recommended by the Commission has since been passed, and is to come into force from the 1st January 1901; and 75,000*l.* has been voted for the first six months of that year for this purpose.

Friendly Societies.

“Friendly societies are associations chiefly of working men, whose object is to provide, by means of small periodical payments, for medical and monetary relief during sickness, and for defraying the funeral expenses of themselves or their wives. The following is an abstract of the particulars furnished respecting the Victorian societies :—

Liability to Disablement annually.

“The returns of the Census of 1891, the census day being accepted as a normal one in point of the illness prevailing, show that in this colony men between 20 and 30 years are liable to be laid up by reason of sickness or accident for something less than 3, and men between 30 and 40 for about 3½ working days in the year; whereas men

* Average of 7*s.* 6*d.* per week per head.

† Average of 5*s.* per week per head.

between 40 and 50 would probably be laid up for $5\frac{1}{2}$ working days in the year, men between 50 and 60 for $9\frac{1}{2}$ such days, men between 60 and 70 for $17\frac{1}{2}$ such days, and men of 70 and upwards for $42\frac{3}{4}$ such days.

Sickness higher in Friendly Societies than outside.

"The average number of working days for which members of Friendly Societies received sick pay in 1891 was 10·45. Assuming the census day to have been a normal one in point of the prevalence of illness, the average number of such days during which men of 20 years and upwards might expect to be laid up in twelve months would be 7·05. The period of sickness for which payment was claimed by members of Friendly Societies was thus considerably higher than that experienced by the male portion of the general population living at the period of life named, although the average age of members of Friendly Societies was almost identical with that of the men living at that period; whence it follows that members of Friendly Societies were disabled for a longer time than might have been expected from the results of the census. The result, however, is the reverse of that experienced in 1881, when the census gave 9·3 working days as the period of disablement which might be expected during the year for men of 20 and upwards, or a day and a half more than the time for which sick pay was claimed by members of Friendly Societies in that year.

Paralysis included with Sickness.

"It is probable that sick pay is in many cases allowed by Friendly Societies to paralysed persons, as well as to those suffering from ordinary illness, but even if such persons (returned separately at the census) be added to the sick and injured, the number of working days' disablement experienced according to the census by men aged 20 and upwards (7·58) would be found to be much less than the average number of days' sick pay disbursed by Friendly Societies in 1891."

The Report of Mr. G. B. Vasey, acting Registrar of Friendly Societies, for the year ended 31st December 1900, shows that 25 branches of Friendly Societies, two Friendly Societies (the Central Medical Benefit Society and the Australasian Woman's Association) and three Provident Societies were registered during the year, while 4 defunct Building Societies were struck off the register. His other acts of registry were 350 in number.

Mr. Vasey gives the following interesting information:—

"A judicial interpretation of section 16, sub-section (viii), of the Friendly Societies Act, 1890, was given during the year 1900, in the first instance by Madden, C.J., and afterwards by the Full Court (Madden, C.J., Holdroyd and Hood, J.J.) The sub-section referred to is in the following terms:—'If any person obtains possession by false representation or imposition of any property of a society or branch or having the same in his possession withholds or misapplies the same or wilfully applies any part thereof to purposes other than those expressed or directed in the rules of the society or branch and authorised by this Act he shall on the complaint of the society or branch or of any member authorised thereby or the trustees or committee of management of the same, or of the Registrar or any person authorised by the Registrar be liable on summary conviction before any two justices to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds and costs and to be ordered to deliver up all such property or to repay all moneys applied improperly and in default of such delivery or repayment or of the payment of such penalty and costs aforesaid to be imprisoned with or without hard labour for any time not exceeding three months, but nothing herein contained shall prevent any such person from being proceeded against by way of indictment or presentment if not previously convicted of the same offence under the provisions of this Act.' In the case of Duncan v. Greenwood (6 Argus Law Reports, 68; 25 Victorian Law Reports, 634; 21 Australian Law Times, 236) the defendant, an officer of the United Friendly Societies Dispensary, was charged under the above section with applying the sum of 12l. 8s. 9d. to purposes other than those expressed or directed in the rules of the society, and authorised by the Friendly Societies Act, 1890, to wit, to the payment of the cost of a supper given in celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the said society. The magistrates imposed a fine, ordered the money expended to be repaid, and in default of payment of the penalty and costs, ordered the defendant to be imprisoned for one month. This decision was brought before the Supreme Court for review, on the ground, inter alia, that there was no proof of fraud or wilful misconduct on the part of the defendant. Madden, C.J., held that the words 'wilfully applies' in this section mean wilful in the sense that the party charged knew that he was doing a thing that was wrong, and in the course of his judgment said:—'On the present occasion, under instructions of the committee, the defendant joined with others, authorised to draw the money from the bank, in drawing a cheque, with the proceeds of which the banquet was paid for; therefore, it cannot be said that there is any evidence there that they were conscious of doing an illegal or forbidden thing, or that they had any wicked intention in doing what was very likely illegal in this sense, that they themselves

' might, out of their own pockets, have to make good to the fund the moneys expended. But that is very different from convicting them criminally under section 16 (viii.) for ' a thing in which they had no guilty minds. On that ground I have no difficulty in ' making the order (to review) absolute with costs.' In the other case of Duncan v. Keper (6 A.L.R., 103; 26 V.L.R., 182; 22 A.L.T., 8), on facts almost identical with the former, the defendant was charged under the same sub-section. The justices dismissed the case on the authority of Duncan v. Greenwood, and an application for an order to review their decision was refused by A'Beckett, J. From this refusal the informant appealed to the Full Court. The Full Court held that the view taken by Madden, C.J., in the former case was correct. ' In the present case,' said Madden, C.J., delivering the judgment of the court, ' the magistrates followed a decision which held ' that, on facts similar to those here, or nearly so, where the whole of the evidence ' showed that the act of the trustees and secretary of the society, though wholly ' unauthorised in the sense that they had no right to do it so as to bind the society by ' the application of those moneys—that nevertheless that act of application, though ' wholly wrong, was done bonâ fide, they thinking that they had the right to do it. It ' was, therefore, not a quasi-criminal act within sub-section (viii.), but one as to which ' they would be personally liable to refund the money to the funds of the society. The ' magistrates, therefore, were right in their view, and we refuse to grant the order nisi.' From these decisions it therefore appears that the offence under section 16, sub-section (viii.), of the Friendly Societies Act, 1890, of wilfully applying the property of a Friendly Society to purposes other than those expressed or directed in the rules of the society, and authorised by the Act, is not complete unless it is shown that such application of property was done malâ fide, and with a guilty knowledge.

"By the Friendly Societies Act, 1900, which was passed by Parliament on the 17th day of October 1900, several important amendments of the law relating to Friendly Societies were introduced. The nature of the securities in which trustees of Friendly Societies were at liberty to invest trust funds vested in them was limited by section 16 (1) of the Friendly Societies Act, 1890. The area of securities for investment has now been considerably enlarged, by extending it so as to include the securities which trustees have power to select under section 22 of the Trusts Act, 1896 (No. 1421). The Amending Act also extends to trustees of Friendly Societies the provisions of sections 22, 23, 25, 26, and 28 of the Trusts Act, 1896, which relate to the purchase by trustees of Government and Public Stock, &c., at a premium, the appointment by trustees of agents for the receipt of money, the duties of trustees with regard to loans on property, the liability for loss by reason of improper investments, the power to insure buildings against loss or damage by fire. It frequently happened that trustees of Friendly Societies, having lent money on the security of freehold property, found themselves compelled to go into possession of such property as mortgagees, or to foreclose. Under such circumstances they found that the law would not permit them to expend any of their benefit funds—generally known as the Sick and Funeral Fund—upon municipal or other rates, repairs, commission for collecting rents, or the sewerage work required by the Melbourne and Metropolitan Board of Works. The fourth and sixth sections of the Amending Act of 1900 were intended to meet the difficulty in which trustees thus found themselves. Section 4 provides that—

" ' Where the trustees of a society or branch have invested any portion of any benefit fund in mortgage of freehold property and such property has come into their possession by foreclosure or otherwise, the said trustees may with the consent in writing of the committee of management of the society or the central body expend out of such fund such moneys as may be necessary for repair of the said property or for work directed to be done on such property by the Melbourne and Metropolitan Board of Works.'

And section 6 provides that—

" ' Nothing in any Act contained shall be deemed to prohibit the payment out of the income derived from any property in the possession of the trustees of a society or branch, either as mortgagees or otherwise, of commission for collecting rents thereof, of insurance premiums thereon, or of any rates, taxes, or charges payable in respect thereof under or by virtue of any Act of Parliament.'

These provisions may operate favourably in enabling trustees to preserve securities, and thus obviate, or at least minimise, the loss that may occur when the same are realised. But how far the additional expenditure of benefit funds thus authorised may affect the adequacy of contributions is a question which may have to be considered by societies which avail themselves of the authority thus given. Power is given by section 5 of the Amending Act of 1900 to trustees to sell, under certain conditions, foreclosed properties for less than the amount advanced upon them. The section runs thus :—

" ' Where any property has come into the possession of the trustees of a society or branch by foreclosure or otherwise the trustees may with the consent in writing of the committee of management of the society or central body sell the same for a less sum than that advanced upon such property.'

It may be a question how far the control of the committee of management is to be exercised in this matter over trustees of branches, inasmuch as no penalty is imposed in the case of a sale at a loss being effected without the consent as required by the section having first been obtained. The Act was, however, passed so shortly before the end of the year under review that it is hardly possible yet to form an opinion as to its operation generally."

The 22nd Annual Report of Mr. Evan F. Owen, Actuary for Friendly Societies, is for the year 1899, and shows that at the end of that year there were 29 societies having 1,105 branches and 93,700 members, and increase during the year of 17 branches and 4,974 members, making an increase in three years of 13,009 members. The contributions paid during the year were 270,448*l.*, equal to 3*l.* 9*s.* 10*d.* per member. The sick pay was 114,816*l.*, equal to 1*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.* per member; the funeral money 23,384*l.*, equal to 6*s.*; medical attendance and medicine to members and their families 95,714*l.*, equal to 1*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.* per member. The total capital of these societies at the end of 1899 amounted to 1,257,362*l.*, equal to 13*l.* 8*s.* 5*d.* per member. (These equivalents relate to effective members only.) The interest realised was 3·61 per cent., having steadily fallen since 1891 when it was 5·30 per cent.

The same officer has presented his Fifteenth Annual Report on Trade Unions, which is for the year ending 31st December 1900. Six unions furnished Returns, having 36 branches, 9,756 members, and 1,804*l.* funds.

QUEENSLAND.

According to the Sixteenth Report of Mr. Robert Rendle, the Registrar of Friendly Societies, Building Societies, and Trade Unions, the income of Benefit Friendly Societies for 1900 amounted to 105,500*l.*; the payments for benefits, 65,600*l.*; and for management, 17,400*l.* The capital at the end of the year was 245,937*l.*, and the number of members 30,076 (of whom 1,651 were females). The increase in the 10 years 1890-1900, is 88 per cent. in the number of members and 114 per cent. in the amount of funds. The average sickness experienced was six days per member. Mr. Rendle expresses the opinion that it might be to the advantage of societies to combine for the purpose of investing moneys, and that there is great need for improvement in the keeping and auditing of the accounts of the societies. The average rate of interest earned is 2·8 per cent. The number of societies on 31st December 1900 was 357. More than one-third of the members and of the capital of all the societies belongs to branches of the Manchester Unity. The Ancient Order of Foresters comes next in the number of members, and the Protestant Alliance third, but it exceeds the Foresters in amount of capital. The Hibernian Catholic Society is fourth in membership, but also exceeds the Foresters in capital. Other societies consist of Rechabites and Druids. The low rate of interest earned is accounted for by the fact that as much as 58,458*l.* is invested in practically unremunerative properties. Of the total capital, 37 per cent. is invested in banks, 30 per cent. in mortgages, 24 per cent. in land and property, and 9 per cent. remains uninvested. There are 13 Building Societies and 24 Trade Unions. Of these latter 7 are unions of employers and 17 of workmen.

NEW ZEALAND.

From the 24th Annual Report of Mr. Edmund Mason, the Registrar of Friendly Societies and Trade Unions, relating to the year 1900, it appears that 2 friendly societies, and 19 lodges, courts, or tents, were registered in that year. The total number on the register is 36 societies, 549 branches, and 14 clubs. The number of returns received was 468, showing 38,202 members and 728,249*l.* funds, of which 564,930*l.* was invested at an average rate of interest of 5½ per cent., and 121,902*l.* is the value of land and buildings.

Societies, upon application to the Registrar, may have their valuations made free of cost.

The following interesting table shows the ratio to the total of the sickness in the first six months, in the second six months, and after twelve months respectively, in quinquennial age-periods:—

Age.	Ratio (per Cent.) to Total Sickness.
	First Six Months.	Second Six Months.	After Twelve Months.

60-65	33·	8·	59·
65-70	25·	8·	67·
70 and upwards	16·	7·	77·

The number of registered Trade Unions was 37.

Mr. Mason is also the Registrar of Old Age Pensions in New Zealand, and in that capacity has presented his Third Report, which is for the year ending 31st March 1901. He states that during the year the number of pensions in force increased from 11,285 for 193,718*l.* to 12,405 for 211,965*l.* The cost of administration was 2,415*l.* 202 applications for renewed pension certificates were rejected. Of the total number of pensions in force, 10,356 (or 83½ per cent.) were for the full amount of 18*l.* Assuming that the same conditions were to prevail in the United Kingdom, the cost of old age pensions would exceed 15,000,000*l.* The experience of New Zealand therefore affords striking confirmation of the conclusions drawn by Sir Edward Hamilton's Committee.

DOMINION OF CANADA.

The returns of Friendly Societies to Mr. J. Howard Hunter, the Inspector of Insurance and Registrar of Friendly Societies for Ontario, for the year ending 31st December 1900, are abstracted by him under two heads, as follows :—

The women of full age were 18 per cent. of the whole number, and of these $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. were married, $2\frac{1}{2}$ widows, and 10 per cent. unmarried.

By a law of 10th February 1900, married women were enabled to deposit independently of their husbands. The effect of this law is shown by the following table :—

Percentage of Women opening Deposit Accounts.

	1895-1899.	1900.
Married - - - - -	13	80
Widows - - - - -	16	14
Unmarried - - - - -	71	55
	100	100

The total number of deposit accounts was 1,757,906, being an increase of 66 per cent. in six years. The amount standing to the credit of depositors was 26,460,315*l.*, an increase of 55 per cent. The proportion of individual depositors to the whole population had increased in the same time from 16 per cent. to 26 per cent., i.e., from 1 in 6 to 1 in 4. In the province of Namur, it is as high as 32 per cent., or 1 in 3.

Of the deposit accounts, 61 per cent. are for 4*l.* or under; 19 per cent. between 4*l.* and 20*l.*, and 20 per cent. above 20*l.*

There are 7,942 school savings banks, having 366,671 depositors, who have accumulated 343,751*l.* Thirty-four per cent. of the boys and 31 per cent. of the girls in elementary schools are depositors in these banks.

The total funds invested increased during the year from 25,517,783*l.* to 27,296,685*l.*

In addition, a sum of 7,403,680*l.* has been invested in the public funds on behalf of 40,855 depositors, showing an increase in the year of 540,548*l.* on the sums invested, and 3,233 in the number of depositors investing.

Of the invested funds, $35\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. are in the State funds or obligations guaranteed by the State, 29 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. in obligations of local and public undertakings, 5 per cent. in advances on workmen's dwellings, 1 per cent. in agricultural loans, and 29 per cent. in temporary investments.

Pension Fund.

The operations of this fund have considerably increased during 1900, the new accounts opened being 136,384, as against 66,712 in the previous year, or more than double. The number of friendly societies affiliating their members to the fund increased from 1,887 to 3,604. The law of 10th May 1900 allowed of employers affiliating their workmen to the fund, and this has been done in some cases, including some large establishments, but not in so many as might have been expected. Arrangements are made with societies for quarterly contributions in bulk, by means of a "livret global." Out of the total of 295,947 accounts opened for individuals during the 10 years 1891-1901, 259,399, or 88 per cent., belong to the class of manual workers. The State grants a "prime d'encouragement" of 9 francs for each person paying 15 francs, and of 14 fr. 40 c. for each person above 40 years of age paying 24 francs. It also grants to every society 2 francs for every member paying 3 francs, on condition that the management and accounts of the society have been found regular. An annual allocation of 65 francs is allowed to every workman or past workman residing in Belgium aged 65 years, and finding himself in need. The provincial authorities also are empowered to grant allowances in aid of contributions made after 1st January 1901. Of the new accounts, 42,726 or 31·3 per cent. were opened by men, 9,068 or 6·6 per cent. by married women, 898 or 0·7 per cent. by widows, 18,704 or 13·7 per cent. by unmarried women (making 28,670 or 21 per cent. for all women) and 64,988 or 47·7 per cent. by children. The ages were from 6 to 9 years, 15 per cent.; 10 to 20 years, 34 per cent.; 21 to 30 years, 19 per cent.; 31 to 40 years, 15 per cent.; 41 to 50 years, 10 per cent.; 51 years and over, 7 per cent. The slight discrepancy here shown may arise from persons under age being included among the workmen. The total premiums for the year were 204,842*l.*, of which 102,650*l.* were payments on the non-returnable scales, and 102,192*l.* on the returnable scales. In addition, 62 men and 180 women purchased immediate annuities by payment of 53,521*l.* The number of annuitants is 3,937, and the amount of the annuities 57,491*l.*

Assurance Fund.

A royal Decree, of 4th December 1899, regulates this fund, and gives many facilities for effecting assurance with it. It provides, for example, that Friendly Societies may effect aggregate assurances on the lives of all their members. The number of contracts increased during the year from 11,198 to 13,289, and their amount from 1,051,192*l.* to 1,263,950*l.* The premiums received increased from 51,954*l.* to 61,961*l.* Three per cent. of the proposals made for assurance were refused. The number of lives assured is 12,730 of whom 215 are women (63 married, 66 widows, 86 unmarried.)

The Labour Department of the Ministry of Industry of Belgium publishes annually a collection of the laws regulating labour passed in various countries. This office has been favoured with a copy of the volume for 1900, from which is extracted a brief notice of the principal enactments made during that year. In GERMANY, a law of 30th June 1900 modified the laws of assurance against accidents (1884 to 1887). It amends the principal Act by unifying the jurisdiction for assurance against accidents and for assurance against invalidity. It introduces new categories of industries and of persons assured, and raises the wage limit of compulsory assurance from 2,000 marks to 3,000 marks. It more clearly defines the risks insured and the civil responsibility of the employer, somewhat raises the scale of indemnity, and introduces some amendments into the financial working, by augmenting the reserve funds, upon the recommendation of a commission, to two years expenses. This involves an increase of contributions and other financial consequences, indicated by the rapid growth of the pension claims, so that a reserve fund which should stand at 80 marks per person assured is now only 20 marks. It is expected to reach the higher figure by 1921. This proposal met with some opposition. The law on the subject has now been consolidated and modified into five statutes. Another law of the same date modified the Industrial Code, first promulgated in 1845, and amended in 1849 and subsequent years, again codified in 1869 and since frequently amended. This is also published in the form of a codified text. In BELGIUM, a law of 10th March 1900 relates to the contract of labour, and introduces some new provisions into the relations between master and workman, and as to the rights of married women and persons under age to engage in work and receive wages. A law of the 10th May concerns old age pensions. This was referred to at length in my last Report. In DENMARK, a law of 3rd April 1900 relates to the production of witnesses before tribunals of arbitration, and another of the same date to the assurance of Danish fishermen in case of accidents. In FRANCE, a law of 30th March 1900 modifies that of 1892 upon the labour of children, girls, and women in industrial establishments, which itself was an amendment of previous legislation dating back to 1841, and had given rise to many complaints. It reduces the eleven hours day after two years to 10½, and after two years more to 10 hours.

In SWEDEN, a law of 17th October 1900 concerns the labour of women and youths in industry. Laws relating to the labour of children and fixing the minimum age of apprenticeship at 14 years date back as far as 1621. In 1881, a decree established an educational and medical test for the employment of children under that age. A Commission of 1892 recommended certain amendments in the law, which have resulted, after much delay, in the passing of the present Act.

GERMANY.

In the preface by Professor von Halle to the official Catalogue of the Exhibition of the German Empire at the International Exposition at Paris in 1900, it is stated that the number of savings bank books in Prussia more than doubled in the 15 years between 1882 and 1897, when they amounted to 7½ millions, or 1 in every 4 of the population, whereas in 1882 the ratio of population was only 1 in 8. The amount saved has tripled, and in 1897 had grown to 250 million pounds. 28½ per cent. of this consisted of deposits of less than 3*l.*, one-sixth went up to 7*l.* 10*s.*, nearly one-seventh from that to 15*l.*; only about 4 per cent. exceeded the limit of 150*l.*

In the savings banks of Saxony the number of current accounts increased between 1879 and 1895 by 125 per cent. to 1,940,000, or 51 to, say, 100 inhabitants. The sums deposited increased by 133 per cent. to 37,000,000*l.*

In Württemberg the deposits grew 2 per cent. yearly, and 1 person in 5 possesses a savings bank book.

The rise in wages is indicated by the proportion of the various classes of wage-earners who contribute to the insurance societies for old age and sickness :—

There are 17,000 local co-operative societies in Germany, of which about 9,000 are agricultural, and number more than a million peasants.

The industrial and trade unions have 586,500 members.

Dr. H. Albrecht, in his introduction to the collective Exhibit of Social Welfare, remarks that Germany is the country in which the law provides the greatest protection to the workmen. The State takes a large share in this. It is assisted by unions for the public welfare. Employers also, in their own interest, make provision for their workmen. There are many institutions for self-help. Among the different kinds of provident institutions are those for the benefit of children and young people; those which aim at the regulation of the relations between workmen and their employers; those for the raising of the economical and social position of the workmen; those for the furtherance of higher civilisation; and those providing for especial cases of distress.

Dr. Zacher, in his introduction to the Exhibit in the Congress Palace, gives particulars of the Imperial insurance system:—Sickness insurance, regulated by laws of 1883 and 1892; accident insurance by a law of 1884; and invalidity and old-age insurance by a law of 1889. According to the statistics for 1897, the sickness insurance relieved 2,964,937 sick persons on 51,513,783 sick days by a sum of 6,000,000*l.*; the accident insurance 581,995 persons, by 3,600,000*l.*; and the invalid insurance, 662,000 persons by 3,300,000*l.*; altogether, in one year, over 4,000,000 persons and 13,000,000*l.* relief. The Invalidity Law has, in 12 years, granted to 31,486,243 persons 85,000,000*l.*; the employers have contributed 67,000,000*l.*; and the workmen 59,000,000. The reserve capital has been used for purposes of public utility, having regard especially to the benefit of the masses.

ITALY.

It appears from the "Bollettino di Notizie sul Credito e sulla Previdenza," for 31st May 1901, issued by the Ministry of Agriculture, Industry, and Commerce, that a Bill presented by the Minister for amending the law of 17th July 1898, by which a National Provident Fund for Workmen in Sickness and Old Age was established, was referred to the Central Office of the Senate, in the session 1900-01. That body reported, on 7th May 1901, that on the 31st December 1900, there were 8,074 men and 2,206 women subscribers to the fund, and that in 5,360 contracts the premiums were returnable; and recommended certain amendments in the Bill. It was approved by the Senate on 14th May, and presented to the Chamber of Deputies on the 16th. By the 15th Article, the Government is authorised to embody the amendment made by the Bill in future copies of the Act of 1898.

A Bill presented by the same Minister for regulating tontine societies was referred to a Committee of the Chamber of Deputies on 13th December 1900, and reported on at the sitting of 11th March 1901. It requires these societies to submit their rules to the Minister, and limits their investments to the public funds, securities having State guarantee, and bonds of authorised credits foncier; the Committee having struck out a provision for investment on mortgage of real estate. It subjects the societies to the vigilance of the Ministry, exercised by means of Prefects, and the Ministry is to examine their annual balance sheets, and to make a general inspection every two years and a special inspection whenever the Minister thinks fit. A fine of from 10 to 50 lire for every day's delay in presenting the balance sheet is imposed. Temporary provisions are made with regard to existing societies.

Productive co-operative societies have a right of appeal to a central Commission from decisions of local authorities; four such appeals are recorded, two of which were successful.

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES ACT.

Of the total of 112 prosecutions, 73 were for breaches of section 27 of this Act, requiring the transmission not later than the 31st May each year of the Annual Return made out to the preceding 31st December. During the year 1901, 1,366 societies out of 6,924 on the register were in default for the 1900 Annual Return, and these were dealt with in the result shown in the table given below. In the year 1900 the number originally in default was 1,557.

Of the total number of 1,366, 95 were found to have ceased to exist, and communications addressed to the registered offices were in most cases returned through the post. The individual officers were then communicated with and the necessary steps taken by them either to carry out the proper dissolution, or to apply for cancelling of registry under section 77 of the Act.

SHORT PARTICULARS OF PROSECUTIONS UNDER FRIENDLY SOCIETIES ACT.

130, Beds. Friendly Society (Roxton).

Last Annual Return, 1897. On investigation it was found that there had been a difficulty with the secretary as to the accounts, and an alleged deficiency which had caused the default.

Summonses were taken out against the Society and the secretary for failing to furnish the Annual Returns for 1899 and 1900, and also for failing to furnish the quinquennial valuation, the Society not having been valued since the 1875 Act came into force. The secretary was removed from office, the moneys were afterwards made good, and, in these circumstances, on the returns being furnished, process was withdrawn on payment of costs.

It also appeared that the Society had adopted amended rules without having the same registered, but in the circumstances no action was taken in regard to this, on the understanding that application would at once be made to register them.

365, Beds., W.M.C. Clapham Club.

Last Annual Return, 1897. The later returns had been repeatedly promised, and proceedings had been withheld in consequence. On investigation it appeared that the secretary had left the question of audit to one of the auditors, who did not appear to have understood the importance of the matter. Proceedings were taken. The secretary was fined, with costs, 3*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*

366, Beds. Wrestlers' Friendly Society of Langdon.

No reply having been received to the application for the 1899 Annual Return, the case was investigated and informations laid in support of process. It appeared that the default arose from the neglect of the secretary, but that the accounts had been audited. The Return was made before the hearing and on the defendants' application the summons was withdrawn on payment of costs.

208, Berks. Hope Benefit Society.

Last Annual Return, 1897. The subsequent returns had been repeatedly promised without being sent in, and summonses were taken out in August of this year for failing to furnish the Annual Return for 1899, and also the quinquennial valuation for the five years ending 31st December 1900. The secretary, at the Maidenhead Petty Sessions, was fined 1*l.* and costs, he undertaking to furnish the returns as soon as possible. It appeared to have been a case of neglect.

298, Berks. Bracknell Juvenile Foresters' Friendly Society.

Last Annual Return, 1898. Summonses were applied for in respect of Returns for 1899 and 1900 after numerous applications had been made.

It appears that the affairs of the Society were practically in the hands of William Mundy alone. The last return gave the funds of the Society as 176*l.* The secretary was fined 3*l.* and 3*s.* special costs.

307, Berks. Wickham Sick Benefit Society.

Last Annual Return, 1897. The subsequent returns, although repeatedly promised, had not been furnished. On investigation it was found that the cause of the default arose from the secretary losing his sight.

On summonses being taken out he obtained the necessary assistance enabling the accounts to be completed, and on payment of costs the summonses were withdrawn.

128, Cumberland. Cumberland Life and Accident Friendly Society.

Shortly before the Annual Return for the year 1900 became due, communications were received from members complaining that the office of the Society was closed, that no steps had been taken to dissolve under the Act, and that communications addressed to the secretary were not replied to.

The two registered trustees were in consequence communicated with, and in reply they stated the Society had closed its office from want of funds, and that they had desired their manager and secretary, Mr. Walter Marsh, to do what was necessary to comply with the Act.

The secretary afterwards wrote stating he had resigned, but that he would prepare the Annual Return for 1900, which had then become due.

This was not transmitted, the valuation return, considerably overdue, had not been received, and no Instrument of Dissolution had been submitted for registration.

In these circumstances proceedings were instituted to recover the statutory penalties attaching to default under the Act, and convictions obtained against the secretary, Walter Marsh.

Five summonses were applied for, one under Section 90 of the Friendly Societies Act, 1896, for aiding in the dissolution of the Society otherwise than as in the said Act is provided, two for failing to furnish the Annual Return for the year 1900 on two separate dates, and two for failing to transmit the quinquennial valuation of the Society for the period ending 31st December 1899, the defendant being fined 10*l.* and costs.

Under the rules 75 per cent. of the first year's contributions were applicable to management expenses, and the Annual Returns show that many members each year were deprived of their membership by forfeiture. Even the 75 per cent. of the first year's premium was not sufficient to meet the management expenses, and sums amounting in all to some 1,600*l.* were subscribed by members of the Board towards the funds of the Society.

The society was registered on the 14th November 1894, and the returns for the years 1895-99 show the following figures of receipts and expenditure under the respective headings :—

During the five years the payment for management absorbed over 83 per cent. of the members' contribution, or 71 per cent. of the total receipts, and the deficiency in the management fund, on the 31st December 1899, amounted to 133*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.*

Having regard to the fact that the principal business of the society was life insurance, it will be seen that, with an increasing liability, the society was accumulating nothing from the contributions to meet the future claims.

The directors were men of position in Whitehaven, but appear to have had no knowledge of insurance business, and to have been misled by the secretary as to the prospects of the society.

The returns show that during the five years (1895-99) no fewer than 20,233 ceased to be members under notice of forfeiture. No explanation was given as to the circumstances under which these notices were given.

After the office was closed, the defendant, in the month of May, applied in his own name for the cancelling of the registry of the society under section 77 of the Friendly Societies Act, on the ground that it had terminated and that all its members had withdrawn from the society, and that it had no funds or liabilities.

The application not being signed by the trustees was refused.

The secretary appears to have been at this time negotiating for the transfer of the business to another society.

In consequence of the action taken by this office the directors ultimately furnished accounts and the registration was cancelled.

It afterwards appeared that the secretary and William Collins, formerly treasurer of the society, had started an unregistered society at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, under the name of the British Temperance and General Collecting Society, and contribution books were issued and subscriptions received in respect of this society from the 3rd June 1901.

Complaints were received from certain of the insured, who did not know what their position was. It was found on investigation that Walter Marsh had endeavoured to transfer from the one society to the other the members, and in so doing had committed breaches of section 14 (1*b*) of the Collecting Societies and Industrial Assurance Company's Act, 1896.

Proceedings were taken both against Walter Marsh and Wm. Craggs, who was district superintendent of the two societies, to recover the statutory penalties in seven cases within the district of the Durham County Court. After a lengthy hearing the defendants were each fined the maximum penalty of 35*l.* and the costs of the prosecution. The amount of the penalty against the defendant, William Craggs, was afterwards reduced.

This society had an annual membership of some 10,000. Many of them were stated to have ceased to be members before the expiration of the first 13 weeks, while one member in communication with the office stated he had paid in more than 20*l.*

Loyal Rose of Langley Moor Lodge, 667, A.N.O.U.O.F.B.U., of Langley Moor, Durham.

This lodge was registered as a branch of the Ancient Noble Order of United Odd Fellows, Bolton Unity. Some difference arose between the officials of the branch and the district and the Order. The lodge desired to secede but refused to comply with their rules and the rules of the Order. Eventually, without obtaining a certificate of secession, the persons forming the lodge registered a new society under the name of the Rose of Langley Moor Independent Friendly Society, on 15th March 1900, stating on the form of application for registry that the Society had not been previously registered. When this statement was put to the meeting, the registry of the Independent Society (No. 1602) was cancelled, on the ground that the certificate had been obtained by fraud or mistake, and the annual return was required from the Lodge under the Branch registration which was still subsisting. This the officers refused to furnish. Informations were laid under section 27 against John Cooper, John Robson, George White, and Thomas Jennings on behalf of the Lodge. The summons were returnable before the Bench at the Durham County Petty Sessions. Mr. Clark, of Newcastle, represented the defendants and advised them to plead guilty, undertaking to do all that was necessary to comply with the Act. On this assurance the Court fined the defendants the nominal amount of 1s., with 5l. 5s. costs, the prosecution not opposing this course.

Durham, 1590, S.A.L., Stockton and Thoresby Mutual Aid Society.

Registered 23rd May 1898. No Annual Returns received. On investigation it was found that the place of meeting had been changed without notice being given pursuant to the Act, and that the secretary, primarily responsible for the default, had recently resigned.

Summonses were taken out against the Society, represented by its trustees, Charles Evetts, senior, Harry Glenwright, under section 23, for failing to give notice of removal and against the Society, and Charles Evetts, junior, for failing to furnish the Annual Return for the year 1899.

After issuing of process the officers at once took the matter in hand and furnished the returns in question, and process was withdrawn on payment of costs.

Lees Economical Burial Society.

Information was received from the Registrar of Deaths for the District of the payment by this Society on the death of the child named Wilfred Chantler, of a sum in excess of the amount allowed by the Act. The child was insured in the Prudential Assurance Company for 3l., and for a further sum of 6l. in the above-named Society. The first certificate issued by the Registrar, under section 63 of the Act, was in respect of the assurance by the Company and a second for 3l. for the payment by the Society. The 6l. was, however, paid by the Society, and was entered in the books of the Society as follows:—

John Broadbent was the agent through whom the insurance was effected.

The insurance in the Prudential was effected by the parents, but the Policy for the 6l. was taken out by the grandmother of the child without the knowledge of the parents.

Informations were laid under section 62 of the Act against the Society and against Daniel Wormold, Thomas Savill, Turner Townley, John Jewitt, and Edward Smith, members of the committee of management of the said Society.

The case came before the Oldham Petty Sessional Court on 24th April 1901. When the Society was fined the maximum penalty of 5l. and costs. Each of the committee the sum of 5s. and costs. The total of the fines and costs came to 10l. 17s. 6d.

1483, Lancs., Catholic Sick Society of Kirkham.

No Annual Return since that for 1896, although repeated applications had been made. Summonses were taken out against the Society, represented by its trustees, W. M. Tomlinson and Robert Wilson, for failing to furnish annual returns for the years 1897-98-99, and also a summons against the Society, under section 25, for failing to give notice of the appointment of a new trustee. After the investigation, when the informations were laid, the defendants took immediate steps to comply with the Act, and at their request process was withdrawn on payment of costs.

7261, Lancs., Queen Victoria Lodge of Free Gardeners.

Last Annual Return, 1897. Repeated application. The Secretary stated that the accounts were in the hands of Mr. Farnworth, of Preston, which subsequently appeared to be untrue.

At Chorley Sessions the secretary was fined 2*l.* and 2*l.* 2*s.* special costs for the first offence and 5*s.* on the second, the Society being fined 5*s.* in each case.

The following is a report of the proceedings, taken from the "Chorley Standard" :—

Before Mr. W. C. Wood (in the Chair), Mr. C. Gidlow Jackson, Mr. J. Kirkman, and Major Anderton.

"The Queen Victoria Lodge of Free Gardeners, of the Hare and Hounds Inn, Withnell, and Mark Leigh, of 4, East View, Bolton-road, Withnell, the secretary of the Society, were summoned by Mr. George Dudley Barlow, of Westminster, on behalf of the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies, for failing to send to the Chief Registrar a return of the accounts of the Society for the years 1898 and 1899. The defendant Leigh pleaded guilty. The Society was represented by Frank Moss, Thomas Miller, John Moseley (trustees), and Robert Baxendale (treasurer), who pleaded not guilty. Mr. Barlow explained that those proceedings were taken under section 27 of the Friendly Societies Act of 1896, which provided that, not later than the 31st May each year, a return of the accounts of every registered friendly society for the previous year should be sent to the Chief Registrar. This was provided for solely in the interests of the societies themselves. The accounts of a Society were bound to be audited every year, and a return sent in, so that the members were given a guarantee that the Society was carried on, so far as the law could possibly make it, in a satisfactory manner. With regard to first charge, the accounts should have been sent in by 31st May 1899. The last account which had been received from this Society was for the year 1897, which was received in June 1898, was sent back for correction, and was again received in August of 1898. Several applications had been made for the returns, but since that date none had been received. During last year several letters of a more or less peremptory nature were written to the Society, but to no purpose. Witness wrote in July of last year, and, in reply, he received a letter from the secretary, dated 25th July, saying that the accounts had been put into the hands of Mr. Farnworth, of Preston, as some alterations had to be made, and they would afterwards be sent on. Witness replied that they must be sent at once, but they had not yet been received. On 23rd March of this year another application was made to defendants, but no reply was made to that letter. Seeing that those proceedings were taken in the interests of the Society, he had to ask for a substantial penalty. Mr. Moss said that the balance sheets for the Lodge had always been got out and given to every member of the Lodge. He had received the two balance sheets for the years 1898 and 1899. They knew nothing about the applications which Mr. Barlow said had been made for these returns. They had seen no communications on the matter. The Chairman: Why have these returns not been made?—Mr. Moss: That is for our secretary to answer. The Chairman (to Leigh): Why have you not sent these returns?—Defendant: It has been neglect; I have neglected it. The balance sheets have been got out, and I have neglected sending the returns in. In answer to a question from the Bench, Mr. Barlow said that the Society's rules provided that it should be the duty of the secretary to send these returns to the Chief Registrar. The Chairman said that the Act existed in the interests of the societies, and such neglect as was evident in that case should not have been allowed by the Society. It was a case of gross neglect, and he did not see that there was a shadow of excuse for defendant. Had the offence existed for only a few months, it would have been less serious, but defendant had neglected his duty in the matter persistently. Leigh would be fined 2*l.* and costs for the first offence, and 5*s.* for the second. It should be a lesson both to himself and to the Society. The case against the Society would be dismissed."

7498, Lancs., Edge Lane Excelsior Tontine Society of West Derby, Liverpool.

Last Annual Return, 1894. On investigation it was found that the Society had moved without the statutory notice being given, although it was admitted that communications had reached the secretary.

Summonses were taken out against the Society and the secretary, John Gough, for failing to furnish the Annual Returns for the years 1897, 1898, 1899; against the Society for failing to furnish a copy of the Resolution appointing Enoch Gronow trustee, pursuant to 25 (3) of the Act; and against the Society for failing to give notice of the change of office, under section 24 of the Act.

At the City Justices Court on the 26th April, convictions were obtained against the secretary, who was fined with costs, in all, the total sum of 8*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.*

7596, Lancs., Right Sort Sick Burial and Dividing Society.

Last Annual Return, 1897. On investigation the secretary admitted the default in regard to the 1899 Return, but stated that he had sent the one for the previous year. It had not reached the Central Office, and summonses were taken out in respect of the Annual Returns for the years 1898 and 1899. The secretary was fined 1*l.* in each case with 2*l.* 2*s.* special costs.

Lincoln, 455, Port of Grimsby Stokers' Mutual Aid Society.

Last Annual Return, 1895. On investigation, it appeared that the Society was in a dying condition, and there was no one looking after its affairs.

Summonses were taken out against the Society and secretary for failing to furnish the Annual Returns for the years 1896 to 1899, when the secretary put the matter in the hands of his solicitors, who furnished the Returns and took steps to cancel the registration. Process was then withdrawn on payment of costs.

London, 672, W.M.C. Bow and Bromley Progressive Club.

Last Annual Return, 1897. Repeated application was made, and the Returns from time to time promised. In July summonses were taken out for the three years' default, and the defendant was fined, with costs, 2*l.* 8*s.* The Returns were received before the case came into court.

The fine was not paid. Distress warrants were issued. Defendant had no goods, and as it was ascertained he was already in prison; further action was not taken in the matter.

Norfolk, 240, Amicable Society of South Lopham.

Last Annual Return, 1898. The secretary, Samuel Downing, had previously been summoned for similar default. Proceedings were again taken now for the years 1899 and 1900. The Returns were sent in before the hearing, and on payment of costs process was, on the defendant's application, withdrawn.

Norfolk, 1119, Aldborough Juvenile Foresters' Friendly Society of Aldborough.

Last Annual Return, 1898. No reply had been received to the communications from this office and the case was investigated and summonses applied for. Proper Returns were then made by the secretary, and on payment of costs process was withdrawn.

*Nottingham 787, S.A.L. Meadows 2*l.* 10*s.* Loan Society.Nottingham 800, S.A.L. Duke of Cambridge 2*l.* 10*s.* Loan Society.720, United Order of Odd Fellows, Basford Unity, Friendly Society.*

In the first two cases Annual Returns had not been received for two years, and in the last case, a small Order, no Returns had been received for a number of years. The Loan Societies complied with the Act before the summons were returnable, and on payment of costs process was withdrawn. The Order were summoned by their committee, John Spencer, George Mason, Thomas Spencer, William Hancock, Henry Lee, J. S. Wilson, A. Elson, E. Swain, Thomas Wright, Henry Stone, William Pritchut, G. H. Garton, T. Stone, W. Parkin; and by their trustees, Amos Haywood, James Ratcliffe, Charles Franklin, and John Thornton. The defendants were represented by Mr. Day, of Nottingham, who stated that the accounts of the Society had been in the hands of their secretary, who had been very ill and was not now expected to recover. He said the defendants would at once take steps to comply with the Act, and asked for an adjournment for the purpose. The Bench agreed to this, and on the Returns being made and the costs paid, a conviction was not pressed for. The following is a report of the case taken from the "Nottingham Guardian":—

"In the Summons Court at the Nottingham Guildhall yesterday, Mr. J. B. Walker and Mr. J. T. Spalding sat specially to hear summonses against the officers of a number of local friendly societies, laid on the information of George Dudley Barlow, of Westminster, on behalf of the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies, for omitting to send to the Chief Registrar not later than May 31st the Annual Return of their receipts, expenditure, funds, and effects, as audited. The organisations concerned were the Meadows 2*l.* 10*s.* Loan Society (secretary, Edward Murrell); the Duke of Cambridge, Union Road, 2*l.* 10*s.* Loan Society (secretary, Frederick Bostock); the New Basford Industrial Co-operative Society, Limited; and the United Order of Odd Fellows (Basford Unity) Friendly Society. Mr. G. D. Barlow appeared to prosecute, and Mr. H. P. Day was present on behalf of the Basford Unity of Odd Fellows.

Mr. Barlow said that in each case the Friendly Societies mentioned had for two years, 1899 and 1900, failed to send in their Returns, and applications had been made before the summonses were taken out. He was now able to say that the Returns had been sent to the Registrar, who had consented to the application of the defendants that the summonses should be withdrawn, subject to the consent of the magistrates. That applied to Meadow 2l. 10s. Loan Society, the Duke of Cambridge 2l. 10s. Loan Society, and the Basford Co-operative Society, which were registered under the Friendly Societies Act. In each of these cases the fact of taking out the summons had induced the defendants to realise their position and to make the Returns. The other case was that of the United Order of Odd Fellows (Basford Unity), for which Mr. Day appeared, and he asked for an adjournment to enable the defendants to comply with the Act, and the Registrar agreed to that course.

"Mr. Day said that one of the chief reasons why his clients had not made their return was that the secretary had been for the last two or three years in a bad state of health, and he had a doctor's certificate to show that at present he was in a critical condition and unable to transact any business. Under the circumstances, the members of the Society, who were working men, did not like to deprive him of the office, but they accepted the responsibility and had instructed somebody else to make out the Return.

"The Chairman presumed that if the defendants complied with the Act there would be no further proceedings.

"Mr. Barlow said that was so. There were 30,000 friendly societies registered under the Act, and it would be a very serious thing if they had to summon them all before they sent in their Returns. They were not wanted for departmental work, but to ensure proper transactions being kept.

"The cases were adjourned for a month, it being understood that if proper Returns were made in the meantime no further proceedings would be taken."

580, Somerset, Court Selwood Foresters' Friendly Society.

Last Annual Return, 1896. On investigation it appeared that there had been several changes in the post of secretary, and that the committee had not insisted upon the proper returns being made.

Summonses were taken out against the Society, represented by its trustees, John Feltham, William Edmund Morgan, John Fricker, Elisha Gowen, and Charles Browning, the last secretary, for failure to furnish the Annual Return for 1899, and further summons against the Society, by its trustees, for failing to furnish the 1898 Return. It appeared that in this case the accounts had been made up to the 1st April, although they had been sent in on the form of Return as being made out up to the 31st December.

After the issuing of process steps were taken to comply with the Act, and the proceedings were withdrawn on payment of costs.

1889, Surrey, Star of Sutton Juvenile Foresters.

Last Annual Return, 1894, which showed the funds to amount to 37l. only, and the number of members 13. Repeated applications had been made for the Annual Returns, but no proceedings had been taken on account of the smallness of the Society.

This year summonses were applied for against the Society, and C. J. Barltrop, the secretary, Messrs. Young and Garner, trustees, were called as witnesses.

The present secretary practically admitted his default in not sending the Annual Returns, 1899, and gave as a reason that the books had not been entered up.

At the Epsom Petty Sessions, on the 8th July, he was fined the sum of 1l. 18s. with costs.

Sussex, 537 (Benevolent), Brighton Good Samaritan Philanthropic Society.

No Annual Return had been received since that for the year 1897. Summonses were applied for against the Society and the secretary, W. Millon. The Returns in default were received before the hearing, and on payment of costs process was withdrawn.

612 (Benevolent), Rock Philanthropic Society of Brighton.

No Annual Return since 1897. On investigation it was found the Society had ceased to carry on business, but the registration not having been cancelled under the Act it was contended the officers remained liable for any default, and summonses were taken out against the Society, represented by its trustees, Fred. J. Hill and Thomas E. Nye. Before the hearing the defendants took steps, under section 77 of the Friendly Societies Act, to secure the cancelling of the registration, and process was then withdrawn on payment of costs.

1652, Warwick (Collecting), British General Friendly Society of Birmingham.

The Annual Return of this Society for the year 1899 had not been received in June 1901, and summonses were taken out against the Society and James Turnbull for failing to furnish the Return for the year 1899. It was received before the hearing of the summonses, which, on defendants' application, were withdrawn on payment of costs.

British United Thrift Collecting Society of Birmingham, registered 1st January 1900.

The 1900 Annual Return in this case showed that the sum of 97*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*, contributions received for benefits, had been applied towards management expenses, and informations were laid in support of summonses against the trustees, under section 87 (3), for applying the said sum of 97*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* otherwise than in accordance with the rules. The defendants then at once took steps to restore the money to the proper fund. On payment of costs process was withdrawn.

Wilts, 171, Triennial Friendly Society of Corston.

Last Return received was for the year 1896. On investigation it was found there had been a change in the post of secretary and that the present one was hardly equal to the keeping of proper accounts. After the summons had been taken out a gentleman in the district came to the assistance of the club and made out the Returns for them. In the circumstances process was withdrawn on payment of the Court fees.

Worcester, 544 (Collecting), The People's Family Life Assurance and Sick Benefit Society.

An information was laid against the Society and against W. T. Thompson, the secretary of the said Society, and Thomas Pugh, Henry Higgins, D. O'Dowd, William Small, members of the committee of management of the said Society, for failing to furnish the quinquennial valuation for the period ending 31st December 1900. These summonses were adjourned from time to time as the Society was in a state of dissolution. An amalgamation was afterwards carried out with the British United Thrift Collecting Society, and in the circumstances, on the payment of costs, process was withdrawn.

Yorks, 1281, Court Wharton, 462, A.O.F. of Gilling, Richmond.

Last Annual Return, 1896. Repeated application had been made for the Annual Returns, and although from time to time promised by the secretary, Wm. Metcalfe, they had not been sent in. Summonses were taken out in respect of the four years' default. On investigation it appeared the management of the Society, which was not a branch of the A.O.F., had been in the hands of the secretary and treasurer, and that there had been no proper committee appointed. The case came before the Petty Sessional Court at Richmond, Yorks, on 7th December, when the defendant secretary was fined 1*l.* 5*s.* on each summons, or together 5*l.*, with 5*l.* special costs.

Yorks, 1969, Brotherly Society, Wetherby.

Last Annual Return, 1895. A written account had been sent in but not the Return required under section 27 of the Act, and the officers had in effect declined to comply with the Act. There had been several changes in the secretaryship, and summonses were taken out against the Society and Thomas Johnson, the last secretary, in respect of the year 1899 and 1900. On 5th December 1901, before the Petty Sessional Court at Wetherby, the Society was fined 1*l.* in each case, including costs, the defendants having undertaken to at once comply with the Act.

Yorks, 3393, Rumbolds Moor Friendly Society of Odd Fellows of Ilkley.

Last Annual Return, 1897. On investigation it was found there had been several changes in the secretaryship, and the committee had not appreciated their responsibility in the matter. Summonses were taken out against the Society, and the former secretary, Benjamin Burland, in respect of the 1899 Return, and against the Society and Herman Coultis, the present secretary, in respect of the 1900 Annual Return. The chairman took the matter up, wrote on behalf of the Society and furnished the Returns, when, on the defendants' application, process was withdrawn on payment of costs, 4*l.* 4*s.*

Yorks, 4097, Cottingham United Friendly Society of Cottingham, near Hull.

Last Annual Return, 1893. In that year an application was made by the Society to register a partial amendment of rules; this was not proceeded with by reason of the Society being in default in regard to the quinquennial valuation. Notice of this was given to the Society, they failed to comply with the Act, and were in consequence suspended from time to time under section 12 of the Act of 1875, and the Registry under that procedure would have been cancelled for default, but that protests were received from a section of the Society to the effect that they desired to retain the privileges of registration, and soon after this date an application was made to the Registrar by one-fifth of the members for the appointment of an inspector or the calling of a special meeting pursuant to section 23 of the Act of 1875. This application had to be returned to the members for alteration, and for the deposit of the necessary sum to cover the cost. It was apparently the difficulty in providing for the costs that was the cause of this application not being proceeded with, although this Office was in communication with the solicitors on the subject. The difference between the members being one that would be more conveniently dealt with by an inspector, proceedings were not taken in respect of the failure to furnish the Annual Returns till this year, when summonses were applied for against the Society and Moses Shores, the secretary, for failing to furnish the Annual Returns for 1894 to 1900, and against the Society and against Wallis Richardson, R. Wilson, Henry Russell, T. Stephenson, George Hatfield, John Johnson, Peter Clark, and Henry Boynton, members of the committee of management of the Society. The issuing of process caused the officers to reconsider their position, and when the case came into Court they expressed their intention, through their solicitor, of complying with the Act. It was pointed out to the Bench that the present intention did not affect the past default, and convictions were pressed for. The secretary and the committee were severally found guilty. The former was fined 5*l.*, each of the committee 1*l.* The club to pay 4*l.* 4*s.* advocate's fee, in addition to the other costs. The following is a short account taken from the "Eastern Morning News":—

"Yesterday, at the East Riding (Hull) Police Court, before Mr. Ringrose Voase and other magistrates, Moses Shores, secretary of the Cottingham United Friendly Society, was summoned for not sending a return of the valuation, assets, &c., of the Society to the Registrar of Friendly Societies for the years 1894 to 1900, inclusive. W. Richardson, R. Wilson, H. Bursell, T. Stephenson, G. Hatfield, J. Johnson, P. Clark, and H. Boynton, members of the committee of management of the Society were similarly summoned.

"The offences were admitted.

"Mr. G. D. Barlow (Westminster), who appeared for the Registrar of Friendly Societies, explained the sections under which the proceedings were taken, and then went on to say that there appeared to have been some differences amongst the members of the Society. Application was made to register a number of amended rules, and, according to the practice of the Registrar, inquiries were made as to whether the valuation returns had been made for the previous five years, and it was found they had not. Notice was given that the amendment to the rules would not be registered until section 28 of the Act had been complied with. That notice was not complied with, and they were suspended under a certain section of the Act for failing to comply, and they were subsequently told they would be cancelled. Application was made by some of the members for the appointment of an inspector, in order that the position of the Society might be gone into. A certain fee had to be paid for that, and the papers were sent back to the applicants for the fee, but it was not forwarded, and no further steps were taken. Mr. Barlow added that the amended rules had been issued by the members without having been registered, and that was a serious offence under the Act. The object of sending in the Returns was solely in the interests of the members. The greatest possible pressure had been put on the Society, and they had defied the Registrar to the last moment. That being so, he contended it was a case for penalties.

"Mr. Locking, who appeared for the defence, said that they were quite willing to furnish all the accounts as required by law. According to Mr. Barlow's own statement, the officers had had considerable difficulty in carrying on the affairs of the Society. There were between 300 and 400 members, and they had been divided in their opinions; and it was not easy for the officers to carry on the affairs of the Society. The summonses ranged over seven years, and the defendants were charged with offences committed by committees which were extinct, and some of the members of which were dead. It would be manifestly unfair to punish individual members of the Society for faults for which the whole of the members were responsible. In 1894 the Registrar gave them notice of his intention to cancel the registration of the Society, and, rightly or wrongly, the committee considered that by the issuing of that notice the registration of the Society was cancelled. It was quite true that periodically they had notices from the Registrar requiring the accounts, and pointing out they had not been delivered, but they thought that referred to their default in the past. He urged that any penalty should be imposed upon the club, and not upon the defendants individually. He also asked that the penalty should be a small one.

"The magistrates, after consulting together, came to the opinion that Shores had been very much to blame, and they fined him 5*l.* and costs. The other defendants had been very negligent in the matter, and they would be fined 1*l.* each and costs."

Yorks, 4319, Improved Order of Odd Fellows, Yorkshire Unity.

A small Order registered in 1889. No Annual Return had been sent in, as it was stated no business had been transacted by the Society. On investigation it was found that a branch had been formed which had worked under the registered rules. It was not quite clear what the form was, but in order to put the matter right, the officers applied to cancel the registration of the Order and to register the so-called branch as a separate friendly society. Summons had been taken out, but on these steps being taken, process was withdrawn on payment of costs.

Yorks, 4464, Halifax Offspring of Virtue Friendly Society of Halifax.

Last Annual Return, 1897. On investigation it was found the Society had moved its place of meeting, and had not given notice in the prescribed form under the signatures of its trustees. The secretary admitted he was aware of the rule which provided in terms for this notice, and he knew of the requirement of the Act as to the Annual Return. Three summonses were taken out in respect of the years 1898, 1899, and 1900. The secretary was fined 3*l.* 16*s.* in each case, including costs, or 11*l.* 8*s.* in all, and the Society 1*l.* 1*s.* in each case, or 3*l.* 3*s.* in all.

The following is a short account of the case taken from the "Halifax Courier":—

"The Halifax Offspring of Virtue Friendly Society and Tolson F. Gledhill (Milton-street, the secretary), were summoned on three informations, at the instance of the Chief Registrar, under the Friendly Societies Act, for breaches of the Act of 1896. Mr. George Dudley Barlow represented the Chief Registrar, and Mr. Mackrell, on behalf of defendants, pleaded guilty. Mr. Barlow stated that registration under the Friendly Societies Act was not compulsory, but all societies of better standing were registered, because it gave them a proper constitution and considerable advantages. They were not obliged to come under the Act, but when they did they had to comply with its provisions. The Society in question was registered, and the summonses were taken out against the Society and secretary for failing to send a statement of the accounts of the Society for the years ending December 31st, 1898-99-1900. Those Returns were not required for any departmental purpose, but were required, under the Act, to be sent in order to ensure the proper keeping of accounts by the societies. The Returns must be sent in the form supplied by the Registrar, with a certificate signed by two auditors and the secretary and one of the trustees. The present proceedings were not taken until every other effort had been made and failed. In this case application had often been made to the secretary and the committee of the Society, addressed to the registered office of the Society, but no answer had been received. The reason given for there being no answer sent was that the Society had removed its place of meeting, and had not received the letters, but Mr. Barlow replied that there was provision in the Act for the registration of the office or place of meeting of the Society and for the notice of any change. Mr. Barlow was informed that a letter was written to the Office, giving the notice of the change. If that were so, the letter would be acknowledged and the usual forms returned. The officers of the Society were familiar with the requirements of the Act, as the particulars had been sent up to the end of the year 1897. Since the summonses were taken out the statements had been sent to the Chief Registrar, and the Society was in a good financial condition. There were something like 30,000 societies on the register, and it would be quite impossible for the Registrar to carry out the Act if societies failed to send Returns until after prosecution. The penalty for such an offence, according to section 89 of the Act, was not more than 5*l.* Mr. Barlow asked the Bench for their decision and for an allowance on account of the costs. Mr. Mackrell said the most serious question was, why had the Returns not been sent up every year? The Society formerly transacted its business at the King's Head and about 2½ years ago removed to Weymouth-street. Up to that time the Society had been in existence a considerable number of years, and had always rendered its Returns to the Chief Registrar up to the time mentioned in the summonses. With removing, the forms must have been sent to the King's Head and then returned as "unknown." If the Chief Registrar in 1898 had made some inquiry as to where the Society had gone he would have ascertained. The secretary had no doubt forgotten about the Returns, simply because he had not had the usual reminder. The magistrates' clerk (to Gledhill): How long have you been secretary? Gledhill: Twenty years or more. Mr. Mackrell, continuing, said the offence had not been done wilfully—it had been due to the want of a reminder. The Returns had since been received by the Chief Registrar, and he was perfectly satisfied with them. The Society was in a good condition, and the Returns were not purposely withheld, as the Society had nothing to hide. He asked the Bench to deal as leniently as possible with the case. The Bench retired to consider their verdict, and on returning the Chairman said they looked upon the cases as a very serious offence in the sense that if anything had gone wrong the members of the Society would have suffered. The clause in the Act was to protect as much as possible the investors and members. Fortunately, as far as the Bench could see, there was nothing wrong with the balance sheets in question. The Bench had decided to impose a penalty on Gledhill of 3*l.* and 16*s.* costs in each case, making a total of 11*l.* 8*s.*, and the Society would have to pay 5*s.* and 16*s.* costs in each case, a total of 3*l.* 3*s.*"

INDUSTRIAL AND PROVINCIAL SOCIETIES ACT.

Under section 14 of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act the Annual Returns have to be sent in by the 31st March in each year. After this date societies are advised of their default and that proceedings will be taken to enforce the statutory penalties unless the Act is complied with, or a sufficient reason given for postponement of such action. At the date the defaulters for the year 1900 were dealt with, there were 53 societies which had made no Returns as against 132 last year.

Of these 37 complied with the Act under notice of proceedings. Against three societies summonses were taken out; these are given below with a short account of the proceedings in each case.

The following is a summary of the result of the proceedings :—

No. 914, Notts, The New Basford Industrial Co-operative Society, Limited, of 61, Duke-street, New Basford.

The Return had not been received in October when the case was investigated, and it was found the default arose from a change of secretary. The retiring one should have made it, and summonses were taken out against him and the Society. Before the hearing the Return was made, and the summonses were withdrawn at the defendants' request on payment of costs.

No. 3364B, Notts, Workop Working Men's Club and Institute, Limited, of Workop.

This case was investigated at the same time, and it was found the cause of the default was the same, namely, a change in the office of secretary. The present officers at once took the matter in hand, the Return was made, and on payment of costs process was withdrawn.

2321B, London, Ball's Pond Secular Hall Society, Limited.

A Return had been sent in this case in July and was sent back for correction. Repeated application was made for it, and ultimately a summons had to be taken out. The Society was made a defendant with George Shore, the secretary. The Act was complied with before the hearing, and on payment of costs, and on an undertaking by the defendant to make the Return by the 31st March in the future, process was withdrawn.

TRADE UNIONS ACTS.

Thirty-five Trade Unions failed to make their Annual Returns for the year 1900 under section 16 of the Act of 1871, and after notice were placed on the rota for prosecution. Formal information was then sent that summonses would be applied for to enforce the statutory penalties if the Act was not complied with, and it will be seen from the summary given below that this was sufficient without process having to be issued. Thirteen were found on investigation to have ceased to exist and were cancelled and two had amalgamated.

In the case of the International Bakers Union (No. 1029) proceedings were taken last year against the Union and the secretary for failing to furnish the Annual Return, and they were fined together 7*l.* 3*s.*, including costs. There was considerable difficulty in enforcing payment of this sum; 3*l.* 12*s.* was sent to the Court by Caplan, the secretary, in payment of his fine and half the costs. When application was made to the Union for payment of their fine they stated that a collection had been made by Caplan among the members for payment of the fine of the Union, and it was this money that had been paid to the Court. In these circumstances summonses were taken out against Caplan under section 12 of the Act of 1871 for misapplying the sum of 3*l.* 12*s.* so sent by him, a further summons for withholding a sum of 1*l.* so used, and a third summons for withholding from the possession of the Union the books which he had had as secretary, and which he refused to deliver up when he had ceased to represent the Society. The summonses were returnable at Thames Police Court on 21st June 1901. There was a considerable conflict of evidence as to the circumstances under which the money had been collected by Caplan, whether it was not paid as a general levy towards the payment of the whole sum of 7*l.* 12*s.*, or whether it was collected solely in respect of the share of the Society. The magistrate eventually adjourned the two summonses dealing with the two sums of 3*l.* 12*s.* and 1*l.* sine die, holding the evidence then produced did not support a fraudulent withholding within the meaning of the section, and fined the defendant 1*l.* for withholding the books. No order was made for delivering them up, secretary having given up possession before the adjourned hearing of the said summons.

(²) Of this number, 11 Societies were registered in 1901. Of those registered previous to 1901, 2 Societies are dissolved; 5 Societies are said to have ceased to exist; 1 Society has amalgamated with another; and 6 Societies have had their registry cancelled.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

Under section 14 of the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, the Annual Returns have to be sent to the Registrar by the 31st March in each year. After this date Societies are advised of their default, and that proceedings will be taken to enforce the statutory penalties unless the Act is complied with, or a sufficient reason given for a postponement of such action. At the date the defaulters for the year 1901 were dealt with, there were 92 Societies which had not made their Returns, a list of which is given below. Of these 82 complied with the Act under notice, and 10 were found to have ceased to exist, and were formally removed from the Register. No summons had therefore to be applied for.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

Thirty-two Trade Unions failed to make their Annual Returns for the year 1901 under section 16 of the Act of 1871 within the five months allowed by the Act, and, after notice, were placed on the rota for prosecution. Formal intimation was then sent that summonses would be applied for to enforce the statutory penalties if the Act was not complied with. Returns were subsequently received from 27 of them, and 5 were found on investigation to have terminated, and the necessary steps were taken to dissolve or to apply for cancelling. They were thus all accounted for without proceedings having to be instituted. The following is a list of the Trade Unions in question:—

SIR,

I HAVE the honour to present herewith the Ninth Annual Report of the Labour Department on Changes in Rates of Wages and Hours of Labour in the United Kingdom, dealing with the changes which took place in 1901.

For the first time since 1895 a decline in wages has to be recorded. In 1896 an upward movement began which culminated in 1900, when the general level of wages stood higher than in any other year for which statistics exist. It was, however, stated in the introductory note to the Eighth Report that towards the end of 1900 signs were not wanting that the period of rising wages was drawing to a close. The statistics given in the present Report confirm this forecast.

In the industries for which it is possible to obtain definite statistics it is found that about 430,000 workpeople received advances during the year amounting to £41,000 per week, while 493,000 sustained decreases amounting to £118,000 per week. The net weekly decrease for 1901 was accordingly £77,000, which compares with increases of £209,000 in 1900 and of £91,000 in 1899.

The decline is accounted for mainly by the fall in Miners' wages, the rise in which was the predominant feature of the statistics for the years 1898-1900. The fall in wages in this industry accounted for over 80 per cent. of the total weekly decrease in 1901. A considerable decline also occurred in the metal trades, but in the remaining industries the net result for the year was a slight increase.

It is estimated that, taking into account the various dates at which the changes came into operation, the net decrease in the wages bill of 1901 due to changes recorded in this Report was about £1,584,000. This compares with a net increase of £6,000,000 in 1900.

As regards the methods by which the changes have been arranged, it is satisfactory to note the increased tendency to settle changes in wages by conciliation or arbitration. During 1901 only 2 per cent. of the workpeople whose wages were changed were engaged in disputes on this account. This percentage is the lowest recorded. In the case of three-fourths of the workpeople, the changes were arranged by Conciliation, Arbitration, Wages Boards, Sliding Scales, and similar machinery. This fact is, of course, connected with the prevalence of agencies of this kind in the coal and iron trades, which were those most affected by wages-changes in 1901.

During the first half of 1902 the fall in wages in the mining industry has continued and become even more widespread, the total number of miners affected by reductions in this period having been no less than 625,000. On the other hand, the fall in wages in the metal trades has been much less noticeable than in 1901, and no other groups of trades show a decline.

I am, &c.,

H. LLEWELLYN SMITH.

CHANGES IN RATES OF WAGES AND HOURS OF LABOUR IN 1901.

GENERAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTION.

THE present volume is the ninth of a series of Annual Reports, presented to Parliament, dealing with the changes in the market rates of wages and recognised hours of labour of work-people in the United Kingdom for a full week's work, exclusive of overtime.

In previous reports* changes in rates of wages have been very fully defined, both as regards what is, and what is not, included under the term. It will be sufficient to say here that only those changes are included which indicate a rise or fall in the market price of the same quantity and quality of labour. Consequently, changes in wages, owing to changes in the nature of the work to be performed, or owing to the increased length of service or experience of the worker, are excluded. It may also be repeated that the report does not deal with changes in average earnings arising out of variations in the extent of employment offered. Changes in rates of wages may frequently correspond to changes in earnings, and, in the long run, approximate thereto. Rates of wages are, however, not necessarily the same thing as earnings, as they tend in bad times to be somewhat above earnings, and in good years to be somewhat below.

The sources of information referred to in previous reports have all been drawn upon in the preparation of the present volume. The Department received returns from employers and employers' associations, trade unions, its own correspondents, and from official sources. The daily and trade papers were searched for references to any movements in wages or hours. As soon as there was any reasonable ground for believing that some change had taken place, forms of inquiry were issued to the parties concerned. Both employers and workpeople, or their representatives, were invited to state the facts, and as a general rule they willingly complied. These statistics may, therefore, be said to rest on the basis of the replies received at first hand from those best able to furnish exact particulars at a time when the facts were fresh in their memories.

For the purposes of this Report it has been found that the changes in wages affecting a few large bodies of workpeople dominate the net result of all the changes during the year, and in the following table, in which the changes in 1901 affecting 50 of the principal bodies of workpeople are compared with all other changes, this fact is clearly shown. Changes affecting agricultural labourers, railway servants, and seamen are not included in the table.

* Including workpeople affected by changes during the year, but whose wages stood at the same level at the end as at the beginning.

It will be seen that the 50 principal bodies of workpeople affected by changes in wages numbered 844,805 persons, or over 90 per cent. of the total number. An examination of the figures showing the computed amount of the changes also reveals clearly that the changes affecting the 50 principal bodies of workpeople had an overwhelming effect upon the net result of the changes during the year.

Accordingly in the detailed tables (pp. 2-18) it has not been thought necessary to give particulars of any changes except those affecting the 50 large bodies of workpeople referred to.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS OF INQUIRY.

Changes in Rates of Wages.

During 1901 wages declined from the high level which they had reached in the course of the preceding year. The net reduction in the weekly wages bill amounted to £74,423,* as compared with increases of £214,771* in 1900, £114,656* in 1899, £95,114* in 1898, and £45,000* in 1897. Spread over the total number employed in the trades dealt with, the average change per head amounted to a reduction of 1½d. per week in 1901, as compared with increases of 5½d. in 1900, 2½d. in 1899, 2½d. in 1898, and 1d. per week in 1897.

It will be apparent, therefore, that the fall in 1901 bears but a small proportion to the total rise in the four preceding years. It will, of course, be understood that these totals and averages represent the computed change in the nominal weekly rates of pay, not in the total earnings of the working classes, still less in their real purchasing power, which is affected by other circumstances, such as variations in the prices of commodities.

The fall in wages in 1901—in those trades for which the numbers affected were obtainable—was confined to the Mining and Quarrying and the Metal, Engineering, and Shipbuilding groups of industries. The total net reduction in these trades was £83,756. The changes in the other groups of trades resulted in net increases, which, although they are small as compared with the corresponding totals in 1900, amounted to £6,413.

The following table shows for each group of trades (other than Agricultural Labourers, Seamen and Railway Servants), the average net increase or decrease per week in the wages of those directly affected :—

Groups of Trades.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net amount of Increase (+) or Decrease (—) per week in Wages.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
		£	s. d.

Employees of Public Authorities.	27,628	+ 1,833	+ 1 4
Total	932,126	— 77,343	— 1 8

* These figures include the estimated effect of changes affecting Agricultural Labourers, Seamen and Railway Servants. Exact figures for these three employments cannot be given, as, so far, it has not been found practicable to ascertain accurately the number of individuals affected by changes in rates of pay.

It appears that, apart from agricultural labourers, seamen and railway servants, 932,126 workpeople had their wages changed during 1901. The net result after balancing increases against decreases was a reduction of £77,343, equal to an average decrease of 1s. 8d. per head in the weekly wages of these workpeople. In the previous year 1,135,786 workpeople were directly affected by wages changes, and the net result was an increase of £209,373 in weekly wages, equal to an average of 3s. 8½d. per head. Measured by the total amount of the computed decrease in 1901 the fall was greatest in the mining and quarrying industry, in which the weekly wages bill was reduced by £62,635, or an average of 1s. 8½d. per head of the 725,750 workpeople affected. Measured, however, by the greatest amount of decrease per head of those involved, the fall was heaviest in the metal, engineering, and shipbuilding trades, in which 103,216 workpeople sustained an average net reduction of 4s. 1d. per head.

In 1900 the changes in wages were practically all in the upward direction; in 1901, however, 429,715 workpeople received increases, and 492,518 sustained decreases.

Included in the former total are 305,470 coal miners in the Federated Districts of England and Wales, 9,900 London compositors, 15,000 London bricklayers, and 6,500 London engineers and pattern makers. Apart from the coal mining change above-referred to, the principal increases in 1901 were in the Metropolis.

Among those affected by decreases in 1901 were 37,000 coal miners, &c., in Northumberland, 107,500 in Durham, 135,000 in South Wales and Monmouthshire, and 90,000 in Scotland. Blastfurnacemen, &c., to the number of 17,000, and 51,000 iron and steel workers in various parts of Great Britain, also sustained decreases.

The figures for each group of trades are given in the following table, the increases being distinguished from the decreases:—

* Exclusive of the workpeople (9,893) affected by changes during the year, but whose wages stood at the same level at the end of the year as at the beginning.

Reading this table in connection with the previous one it will be seen that in those groups of trades in which the result of the changes during 1901 was a net decrease, viz., the mining and quarrying, and the metal, engineering, and shipbuilding groups, there was, nevertheless, a considerable number of workpeople who received increases. In the first of these groups 325,249 received advances, and 392,023 sustained decreases, but while the former averaged 1s. 11½d. per head the latter averaged 4s. 10d.

Similarly, in the metal, &c., group, the decreases were very heavy as compared with the increases — 87,469 workpeople sustaining reductions averaging 5s. 1d. per head, the 14,467 workpeople who received advances obtaining only an average increase of 1s. 6½d. per head.

It will be seen that, while the total numbers affected by increases and decreases respectively were not widely divergent, the average decrease per head was two-and-a-half times as great as the average increase.

In the following table the numbers of workpeople affected by changes in rates of wages and the computed total weekly amount of such changes, distinguishing increases from decreases, are shown for each of the nine years 1893–1901 :—

* Inclusive of workpeople affected by changes during the year, but whose wages at the end of the year stood at the same level as at the beginning.

Reference to the decrease columns shows that the number of workpeople affected by reductions in 1901 was greater than in any previous year, whilst the computed amount of the reductions was more than the total of the reductions recorded in the previous eight years.

It is interesting to connect the upward and downward movement of wages shown in the above table with the general state of employment and trade of which some indications are afforded in the following statement which relates to the numbers of unemployed, the average number of days per week on which employment was offered in collieries, and the total value of imports and exports.

1899	2.4	5.5	750
1900	2.9	5.5	814
1901	3.8	5.1	802

* Cannot be stated.

It will be seen that the fall in wages in 1901 corresponds with a decline in the value of imports and exports and the number of days worked by collieries, and an increase in the percentage of unemployed.

The total net fall in the weekly wages bill, due to the recorded changes of wages in 1901 was £77,343, but as the changes took place at different dates during the year their effect on the total amount of wages paid during 1901 was, of course, less than would be obtained by multiplying the above figure by 52. The best estimate that can be framed, having regard to the dates as well as the amounts of changes, shows that the decrease in the wages bill of 1901 due to changes in rates of wages alone (apart from any variations in the number of the labouring population) was about £1,584,000. The decrease in the wages bill of the mining and quarrying industry was £1,075,000, and in the metal, &c., industry £760,000.

Against these totals have to be set estimated net increases in other trades, aggregating £251,000. The net result—a decrease: of £1,584,000—compares with a net increase of £6,000,000 in 1900.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS OF INQUIRY.

In the following table the percentage proportion of the industrial population affected by changes during each of the years 1896-1901 is shown. In this, and in the subsequent tables, agricultural labourers, seamen and railway servants are excluded for reasons already stated. (See * Note on p. xi.)

It will be seen that in 1901, as in previous years, only a very small proportion of the total number of workpeople employed was affected by wages-changes.

In the Building Trades the numbers affected showed little variation during the years 1896-1900, but in 1901 the proportion affected fell to about one-half of the average for the preceding years.

In the Coal Mining Industry nearly all the workpeople employed are seen to have been affected by changes in each of the last four years. In the Metal Trades the largest numbers were affected in the years of rising wages 1896-98, the numbers whose wages were changed in 1901 being slightly greater than in 1900, but less than in any of the years 1896-99.

In the Textile Trades a large number of operatives were affected in 1899 and 1900, but for the other years included in the table no alterations were made in the wages of any considerable body of workpeople in this group.

From the following table, which distinguishes the workpeople affected by changes arranged without strike from those affected by changes preceded by strikes, it will be seen that there has been an increasing tendency during recent years to arrange alterations in wages by conciliatory methods. During 1901, out of every 100 persons whose wages were changed only two were concerned in strikes and lockouts. This is the lowest recorded percentage.

1901	917,573	98	14,553	2	932,126

The 14,553 workpeople whose changes in wages were preceded by strikes were all involved in small disputes. The largest occurred in the London (Jewish) boot and shoe trade, as a result of which 1,560 workpeople secured an advance.

In the following table the workpeople affected by changes in the years 1896-1901 are classified according to the agencies by which the changes were arranged. These agencies have been divided into three classes—(1) sliding scales, under which wages change automatically at fixed periods according to the ascertained price of the product; (2) conciliation boards, joint committees, and other established agencies for settling wages questions by conciliation and arbitration; and (3) direct negotiation between employers and workpeople or their representatives.

In 1901 changes in wages took place under every known sliding scale, the total number affected (191,205) including 135,000 coal miners, 41,041 iron and steel workers and 14,667 blastfurnacemen. The total of 507,355 workpeople whose changes in rates of wages were arranged by conciliatory methods includes 481,366 miners and quarrymen, 12,820 metal &c. workers, 1,100 textile operatives, 9,900 compositors, and 600 seagoing engineers. The large increase in the percentage of workpeople whose wages were settled by conciliation boards, &c., is mainly due to the formation or re-establishment of such Boards in the mining industry. In every important coal mining district (with the exception of South Wales) a Conciliation Board for the regulation of general wages questions has now been established, consisting of representatives of the organized employers and organized workpeople.

Changes in Hours of Labour.

With the exception of the year 1895, the reductions in hours of labour were less in 1901 than in any other year for which statistics have been collected. The comparative figures for the past nine years are given in the following table :—

Year.	No. of workpeople affected.			Aggregate amount of reduction in hours per week.	Net average reduction in hours per week per head of those affected.
	Increase.	Decrease.	Total.
1893	1,530	33,119	34,649	68,937	1.99

1901	586	28,690	29,276	58,728	2.01

It will be seen that during 1901 only 29,276 workpeople were affected by changes in hours of labour, of which total 586 had their working hours lengthened and 28,690 had them shortened. The net result was a reduction of 58,728 hours per week or an average of 2 per head of those affected. It need hardly be pointed out that 58,728 hours is quite an infinitesimal fraction of the total working hours of the industrial population. In fact the total reductions in hours reported during the nine years, aggregating slightly less than 1,300,000 hours, represent, when spread over the total industrial population, an average reduction of less than 10 minutes in the weekly working hours.

In the following table the changes in 1901 are classified by groups of trades :—

Groups of Trades.	No. of workpeople affected.	Aggregate amount of reduction in hours per week.	Net average reduction in hours per week per head of those affected.

Other Trades ...	2,349	4,678	1·99
Total ...	29,276	58,728	2·01

It will be seen that the principal changes in 1901 were in the printing trade. Included in those affected by changes in hours in this trade are 12,923 compositors, readers, machine minders, bookbinders, mechanics, &c., employed in the London printing trade. Previous to the change the standard hours of labour for London compositors were 54 per week, but under the award of Mr. Askwith, an arbitrator appointed by the Board of Trade, they were reduced to 52½. The letterpress printers and bookbinders and machine rulers of Glasgow, to the number of 3,060, also secured a reduction in their working hours of 2½ per week (52½ to 50).

In the coal mining industry, 450 haulage enginemen in Durham had their daily shift shortened by half-an-hour (11 to 10½), and in Scotland, 552 winding enginemen had their weekly working hours reduced from 84 to 70. The only other change affecting a considerable body of men was a reduction of half-an-hour per night shift in the hours of labour of 1,410 glass bottle makers in Lancashire.

PRELIMINARY FIGURES FOR FIRST HALF OF 1902.

Changes in Rates of Wages.—During the first six months of 1902 the main features of the changes in wages have been generally similar to those of the preceding year. During this period about 681,000 workpeople were affected by the changes in rates of wages reported, viz., 32,000 by increases and 649,000 by decreases. Of the latter 625,000 were employed in mining and quarrying and 23,000 in the metal trades. These are the same groups of industries in which the decline took place in 1901, but it will be noticed that while the fall of miners' wages has been more widespread in 1902 than in 1901, that of wages in the metal trades has been much more restricted. The figures for each group of trades are shown in the following table:—

Groups of Trades.	Number of Workpeople Affected.			Net Average Amount of Change per Head per Week in the Wages of those affected.

Changes affecting employees of Government Departments, the police, agricultural labourers, seamen and railway servants are not included in the above figures.

Changes in Hours of Labour.—So far as reported, 12,617 workpeople have had their weekly hours of labour changed, the net result of all changes being an average decrease of about 1½ hour per week.

DETAILED REPORT.

In the preceding General Report, Changes in Rates of Wages and Hours of Labour have been dealt with as a whole. It may, however, be convenient to those who are specially interested in particular groups of trades to have the more important facts respecting changes in these trades brought together. Further figures with regard to each group will be found in the Summary Tables on pp. xlv to lxxxv.

PART I.—GROUPS OF TRADES IN WHICH THE NUMBERS OF WORKPEOPLE AFFECTED BY CHANGES ARE KNOWN.

Building Trades.

CHANGES IN RATES OF WAGES. — The most noticeable feature of the changes in rates of wages in 1901 was the continued fall in wages in Scotland. Over 9,000 workmen sustained reductions in that country, as compared with 8,697 in the previous year. The increases in both years were insignificant. In England and Wales the steady rise, which has characterised wages in the Building Trades since the changes have been recorded, continued throughout 1901. Over 29,000 operatives received advances, and less than 1,000 sustained decreases. Although the workpeople receiving increases were not so numerous as in the years 1896–1900, they exceeded those in the years 1894–5. In Ireland wages were stationary during the year. These facts are brought out in the following Table, which shows for the principal divisions of the United Kingdom the number of building trade operatives affected by changes in

* Including a few changes in the Isle of Man.

† Excluding workpeople affected by upward and downward changes during the year, but whose wages at the end of the year stood at the same level as at the beginning, viz., 274 in 1894 and 40 in 1900.

The 9,231 workpeople whose wages were reduced in Scotland in 1901 included 4,200 operatives at Glasgow, 2,680 at Edinburgh, and 700 at Dundee. Masons, bricklayers and plasterers were the classes principally affected. The figures for England and Wales include 15,000 bricklayers in London and district who received an advance of $\frac{1}{2}d.$ per hour.

In the following Table the net results of all the changes in these trades in the United Kingdom during the last nine years are summarised :—

Year.				Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Increase per week in Wages.
					Total.	Average per head of those affected.
1893	44,538	£ s. 3,302 19	s. d. 1 5½
1894	32,993	2,334 0	1 5
1895	24,431	2,066 11	1 8½

1899	66,242	6,640 3	2 0
1900	78,600	6,640 7	1 8½
1901	39,687	1,943 5	0 11½

The number of workpeople affected by the wages-changes in 1901 was 39,687, or nearly 5 per cent. of the total number engaged in these trades according to the census of 1891.* If the net aggregate advance (£1,943) were spread over the total number employed the average weekly advance would be about $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per head. The result to the 39,687 who were directly affected was an average rise in their weekly rates of wages of $11\frac{1}{4}$ d.

From the following Table, which shows the distribution of the changes in each of the principal Trades, it will be seen that while bricklayers and masons account for the bulk of the workpeople affected, the net increase per head of those affected was highest among painters and decorators and plumbers. The net result for plasterers and masons was a reduction of 1s. $8\frac{1}{2}$ d. and 1s. $3\frac{1}{4}$ d. respectively in their net weekly rates of wages per head.

Occupation.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Average net weekly Increase (+) or Decrease (—) per Head of those affected.

Masons	8,091	—1 $3\frac{1}{4}$
Painters and Decorators	4,078	+2 0 $\frac{1}{4}$
Carpenters and Joiners	3,979	+1 $3\frac{1}{2}$

CHANGES IN HOURS OF LABOUR.—There was a further marked falling off during 1901 in the reductions of hours of labour in the Building Trades. For some years past there has been a considerable movement for the limitation of the number of hours constituting a full week's work exclusive of overtime. That movement reached its height in 1898, since when it has rapidly declined. The total computed reduction in 1901 was less than 4,000 hours per week, which when spread over the total number employed in the industry gives a quite insignificant result. The total number affected by changes in hours of labour and the computed total and average decrease per head per week are shown in the following Table :—

* The results of the recent census are not yet available, but it may be assumed that the total number employed in the Building Trades has increased since 1891.

1900	9,111	8,016	0·88
1901	4,499	3,719	0·83

Of the 4,499 workpeople affected, 4,261 had their hours reduced on an average by 0·90 per week, and 238 had them increased by 0·44 per week, the average of all the changes being a net reduction of 0·83 hours per week.

The occupations most affected by changes in hours were the carpenters and joiners and bricklayers. The figures are as follows :—

MINING AND QUARRYING.

Coal Mining.

CHANGES IN RATES OF WAGES.—During 1898, 1899 and 1900 practically all the coal miners in Great Britain received in each year advances of wages. The increases given in 1900 were very large, and averaged 4s. 3d. per head of all the coal miners employed. In 1901 the upward movement was checked, and wages declined in sympathy with the fall in the selling price of coal. The average decrease in wages was 1s. 5½d. per head of all coal miners employed. The figures relating to those affected by changes in each year since 1893 are shown in the following Table :—

Year.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Increase (+) or Decrease (–) per week in Wages.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
1893	291,647	+ 14,850	+ 1 0½
1894	526,095	– 46,179	– 1 9
1895	313,617	– 31,720	– 2 0½
1896	202,837	– 5,660	– 0 6½
1897	240,331	+ 6,553	+ 0 6½
1898	659,919	+ 56,594	+ 1 8½
1899	652,654	+ 51,164	+ 1 6½
1900	680,518	+ 164,474	+ 4 10
1901	704,681	– 57,081	– 1 7½

Although the net result was a considerable decrease the fall in wages was not uniform throughout the country. In the greater part of England miners' wages rose, the result of an arrangement made on 10th August 1900 under which the miners in the Federated Districts received a 10 per cent. advance in two instalments during the months of February and March, 1901. Nearly 340,000 miners are employed in the Federated area, and from the following Table, showing the effect of the changes by districts, it will be seen that the number of workpeople affected in districts in which wages rose was nearly 322,000 as compared with 383,000 affected in districts in which they fell :—

† In Cumberland 7,000 workpeople were affected by changes during the year, but of these only 22 sustained a net decrease, the wages of the remainder being at the same level at the end of the year as at the beginning.

The greatest reduction took place in Scotland, where over 90,000 men sustained an average decrease of nearly 10s. in their weekly wages. In the Northern Counties of England the reduction averaged 4s. 7d. per head of those affected. The advances gained in the Federated Districts averaged nearly 2s. per head.

General changes in coal miners' wages are calculated by percentage additions to or deductions from the standard rates of wages. The standard rates are those prevailing at some given time, e.g., in 1888, in the cases of the Federated Districts and Scotland, in November 1879 in the cases of Northumberland and Durham, and in December 1879 in the case of South Wales.

The following Table shows the percentage net rise or fall in coal hewers' wages in the principal coal fields during 1901, and the point above the standard at which their wages stood at the end of the year :—

* Includes Yorkshire, Lancashire, Cheshire, Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire, Leicestershire, Shropshire, parts of Staffordshire and Worcestershire, Warwickshire and North Wales.

The total reduction of 22½ per cent. in Northumberland was made up of falls of 13½ per cent. in April and of 8½ per cent. in July. In Durham the miners sustained four reductions, viz., 1½, 11½, 7½, and 5 per cent., intervals of three months intervening between each decrease. In South Wales, where wages are governed by a sliding scale, there was an advance of 5 per cent. in April which was followed by four successive reductions aggregating 12½ per cent. In Scotland a decrease of 25 per cent. in March by decision of the Conciliation Board was followed by two reductions of 12½ per cent. in June and September on the award, in the first case, of Lord James of Hereford, and in the second, of Sheriff Jameson, who acted as neutral Chairmen of the Board.

Other Mining and Quarrying.

In the other mining industries, the workpeople lost during 1901 considerably more than they had gained in the preceding year. The figures are as follows :—

Year.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Increase (+) or Decrease (—) per week in Wages.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
1900... ..	17,418	+ £ s. + 3,758 8	+ s. d. + 4 3½
1901... ..	16,098	— s. d. — 5,255 2	— s. d. — 6 6½

Included in the total for 1901 are the ironstone miners of Cleveland to the number of 6,800, whose wages were reduced by 29 per cent. off the “standard” rates of 1879, leaving wages 22½ per cent. above “standard” at the end of 1901.

In the Quarrying industry 4,971 workpeople were affected by changes, the net result being a decrease of £298 in weekly wages.

The total effect of combining the several trades included in the mining and quarrying group is shown in the following Table, which also illustrates the preponderating influence of the coal mining figures on the general average.

Trades in Group.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Decrease per week in Wages.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
Coal mining	704,681	£ s. 57,081 1	s. d. 1 7½

Quarrying	4,971	298 9	1 2½
Total	725,750	62,634 12	1 8½

CHANGES IN HOURS OF LABOUR.—The changes in hours reported were confined to the mining industry. The workpeople whose working hours were shortened, numbered 1072. They were all in the Northern Counties of England and in Scotland, and included 450 haulage enginemen in Durham and over 600 winding enginemen in Scotland.

Metal, Engineering, and Shipbuilding Trades.

The general results of all the changes in rates of wages in this group of trades are shown in the following summary :—

Year.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Increase (+) or Decrease (—) per week in Wages.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
1893	121,256	£ 5,466 3	s. d. — 0 10½

1899	156,621	+ 20,440 12	+ 2 7½
1900	95,285	+ 16,285 2	+ 3 5
1901	103,216	— 21,121 5	— 4 1

It will be seen that for the first time since 1894 the net result of wages-changes during the year has been a reduction. This reduction amounted to an average of 4s. 1d. in the weekly wages of the workpeople affected by wages-changes. Owing to the existence in a large section of these trades of sliding scales and other conciliatory agreements these changes have been in most cases arranged without recourse to strikes.

The extent to which the different sections of the metal group of trades have been affected by these changes may be seen in the following summary :—

Trades in Group.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Increase (+) or Decrease (—) per week in Wages.

METAL, ENGINEERING AND SHIPBUILDING TRADES. xxix

In 1899 and 1900 the workpeople engaged in the production of iron and steel shared to a greater extent in the general advance of wages than those in the other sections of this group; in 1901 they sustained the greatest decreases in wages. In this branch, wages, being mainly regulated by sliding scales, are most closely affected by the movements of the markets.

In the Pig Iron Industry the fall in wages in 1901 was computed as equal to a decrease of £4,595 in weekly wages as compared with an increase of £2,229 in 1900. The principal centres of this trade being few in number the amount of the percentage decrease in wages can be readily shown.

District.	Number of Blast-furnacemen affected.	Percentage of Wages above Standard at end of		Percentage decrease on Standard during 1901.
		1900.	1901.
Cleveland and Durham...	5,500	46½	17½	29½

South Staffordshire ...	1,000	—	—	27½
South Wales	1,250	34½	12½	22½
West Scotland	3,500	35	20	15

In the Manufactured Iron and Steel Trades wages fell heavily. Over 52,000 workpeople sustained net reductions averaging 6s. per week. The aggregate net decrease amounted to £15,748, and compares with an increase of £12,537 in 1900. In the following Table the percentage reductions in 1901 in the wages of men employed in the production of manufactured iron are shown.

Northumberland, Durham, and Cleveland.	5,450	17½
Midlands (including parts of Lancashire and Yorkshire).	20,000	27½
West Scotland	3,500	23½

The reductions in the case of the steel workers were equally large. In South Wales they sustained reductions amounting to 22½ per cent., in Scotland to 20 per cent., and in the North of England to sums varying from 10 to 36 per cent.

In the Engineering and Shipbuilding Trades, over 12,000 workpeople received increases averaging 1s. 4½d. per head, and slightly less than 9,000 sustained decreases averaging 1s. 1½d. per head. The decreases were practically confined to Scotland, and are the first of any importance that have taken place since the beginning of the upward movement in wages in 1896. The increases include an advance of ½d. per hour or of 1s. per week to the London engineers. London wages had not been changed during the years 1896-7-8 when the wages in every other important engineering centre were increased.

In the Tinplate Trade employment improved during 1901, but wages remained practically unchanged.

In the Miscellaneous Metal Trades over 10,000 workpeople had their wages reduced. Nearly all of these were employed in the Birmingham metal, wire, tube and bedstead trades.

CHANGES IN HOURS OF LABOUR.—The changes in hours of labour reported were few and unimportant. About 300 workpeople had their working hours lengthened, and 1,470 had them shortened.

Textile Trades.

CHANGES IN RATES OF WAGES.—During 1901 wages were practically stationary in the Textile Trades. In the linen and jute industry, no change was recorded, and, in the cotton trade, only 7 quite insignificant re-adjustments of prices in small establishments which affected altogether 179 workpeople out of the total of over half a million employed in the industry. Including the woollen and worsted and the minor textile trades, altogether a total of 3,098 workpeople were affected in this group. Their distribution among the various branches of the industry is shown in the following Table :—

Trades in Group.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Increase per week in Wages.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
Cotton spinning ...	82	£ s. 2 16	s. d. 0 8½

Dyeing, bleaching, &c.	238	22 4	1 10½
Total ...	3,098	290 10	1 10½

Included in the Minor Textile group are 1,100 hosiery workers at Leicester, who secured a considerable increase in earnings.

In 1900, fifty per cent of the workpeople engaged in the spinning branch of the cotton trade received advances. In this branch wages are governed by two important lists of prices, known as the "Oldham" and the "Bolton" lists. General changes in wages are regulated by percentage additions to, or deductions from, these lists. In the following Table the percentage of wages above or below list prices is shown for the end of each year since 1893 :—

Clothing Trades.

CHANGES IN RATES OF WAGES.—In this group of trades changes affecting 5,409 workpeople took place during 1901. The numbers affected and the amount of change in each branch of the industry are shown in the following Table :—

Trades in Group.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Increase per week in Wages.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
Boot and shoe trade ...	4,444	£ s. 588 0	s. d. 2 7½
Clog manufacture ...	44	8 16	1 8½
Tailoring trade ...	921	99 8	2 2
Total ...	5,409	691 4	2 6½

Advances were made in the wages of boot and shoe operatives in East London, Northamptonshire (Army boot makers), and Bramley.

In order that the changes in this group of trades for the last nine years may be readily compared the following summary table has been prepared. It will be seen that both the number affected and the amount of increase in 1901 exceed those of any of the previous years except 1900. The total numbers affected by changes in all the years included in the table formed, however, but an insignificant proportion of the total number employed.

Miscellaneous Trades.

CHANGES IN RATES OF WAGES.—The changes in the Miscellaneous group of trades were less numerous and important than in the previous year, when over 91,000 workpeople secured advances, amounting to £8,567 per week. The net results of the changes during 1901 in the various trades included in this group are shown in the following table :—

Trades in Group.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Increase per week in Wages.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
		£ s.	s. d.
Printing, &c.	14,930	1,019 15	1 4½
Woodworking, &c.	1,355	66 11	0 11½

Other trades	2,352	109 9	0 11½
Total	27,338	1,655 13	1 2½

The Printing trade is the only one in which the figures show an increase over those for 1900. Of the 14,930 persons affected by wages-changes in this trade, 9,900 were compositors in London who secured advances by the award of an arbitrator appointed under the Conciliation Act.

In the Woodworking and Glass trades the changes reported were unimportant. In the Food and Tobacco totals is included an advance of 10 per cent. to 1,500 tobacco workers at Liverpool.

As regards Dock and Riverside labour 1,191 workpeople received advances, and 1,288 sustained decreases. The latter were coal trimmers on the Tyne and at Blyth.

Included in the Other trades section are 600 marine engineers on the North-east Coast, who sustained a reduction in their monthly or weekly rates of pay.

CHANGES IN HOURS OF LABOUR.—The changes in hours of labour reported in this group were mainly confined to the Printing trade. In the following table the figures for each trade are shown :—

Trades in Group.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Decrease per week in Hours.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
Printing, &c., trades	17,920	30,220	1·69

Glass and Chemical trades ...	1,463	1,868	1·28
Food, &c., trades	809	2,643	3·27
Other trades	12	24	2·00
Total	20,842	35,750	1·72

During the year the recognised hours of labour for the London printing trade were reduced to 52½ per week. About 13,000 workpeople benefited by this arrangement.

Employees of Public Authorities.

CHANGES IN RATES OF WAGES.—During 1901 changes affecting 27,628 workpeople in the employ of Public Authorities were reported. In the following Table the effect of the changes in the wages of workpeople in the employ of Government

Departments, Local Authorities, and in the Police Service are shown separately :—

Employment.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Increase per week in Wages.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
Government employees	10,119	£ s. 524 11	s. d. 1 0½

Police	11,608	790 17	1 4½
Total	27,628	1,832 13	1 4

The number of Government employees affected was larger than in any year for which statistics have been recorded, with the exception of 1897. The workpeople affected were mainly in the employ of the Admiralty, including 4,536 shipwrights, and 4,870 labourers.

In the last Annual Report attention was drawn to the improved scales of pay which had been granted to the Police in various districts, including those in the Metropolis. From the following Table it will be seen that the improvement continued during 1901.

Year.	Number of Police* immediately affected by the changes in scales of pay in each year.	Net Amount of Increase per week in Wages.

* Constables, Sergeants, and Inspectors.

EMPLOYEES OF PUBLIC AUTHORITIES. XXXV

The total of 11,608 police affected during the year includes 9,419 constables. The average weekly increase to the men in each rank affected is shown in the following statement :—

				s.	d.
418 Inspectors	2	8½
1,771 Sergeants	1	6½
9,419 Constables	1	3½

Distinguishing between County and Borough Forces, it will be seen from the following Table, that the advances were more numerous among the former.

	County Forces.	Borough Forces.
Established Strength	15,700	16,800
No. affected by advances in wages	7,056	4,552
Percentage of Established Strength	44·9	27·1

The following Table summarises the advances in the wages of workpeople in public employment during recent years.

Year.	Number of Workpeople affected.	Net Amount of Increase per week in Wages.
		Total.	Average per head of those affected.
1893	10,167	£ 795 9	s. 1 d. 6½
1894	9,329	660 16	1 5½
1895	6,985	558 17	1 7½
1896	14,523	882 0	1 2½
1897	20,982	1,513 19	1 5½
1898	12,139	856 11	1 5
1899	19,534	1,147 19	1 2
1900	31,743	2,592 7	1 7½
1901	27,628	1,832 13	1 4

The advances during the nine years represent a total increase of £10,861 in weekly wages, of which £3,396 went to employees of Government departments, £3,043 to the police, and £4,422 to the employees of Local Authorities. The increase was in fact greater than these figures indicate, as they take account only of workpeople affected in the year in which the change took place. In consequence of the prevalence of scales of pay for workpeople in public employment, it happens that in some cases a proportion of the workpeople do not benefit until a considerable period has elapsed from the date of the change, and these persons are not included in the Tables.

CHANGES IN HOURS OF LABOUR.—The changes in hours of labour reported were not important. Altogether 874 workpeople were affected, 828 by decreases and 46 by increases. Of the former 525 were employees of Local Authorities and their working hours were reduced on the average by $6\frac{1}{4}$ per week.

PART II.—TRADES IN WHICH THE NUMBERS OF WORKPEOPLE DIRECTLY AFFECTED BY CHANGES ARE NOT KNOWN.

Agricultural Labour.

ENGLAND AND WALES.—Information as to the current rates of weekly cash wages in January and June, 1901, of ordinary agricultural labourers in most of the Rural Districts in England and Wales has been obtained, mainly from the Chairmen of Rural District Councils. By comparing these rates with those returned for the corresponding months of 1900, certain changes have been disclosed, which will be found set out in detail on pages 54-61. The rates given are exclusive of piecework earnings, extra payments for hay and corn harvest, and of all extra allowances in cash and kind.

The figures do not include rates of wages paid to men exclusively employed in taking charge of animals, such as cattlemen, carters, horsemen and shepherds, who are generally paid higher wages and obtain more perquisites, but for the purpose of arriving at a general conclusion, the principle adopted in previous reports has been followed, which is to assume that where a change took place in the predominant rates of wages of ordinary labourers in any district, a similar change occurred in the wages of the other classes of agricultural labourers. This assumption is not absolutely correct, but may be regarded as being not very far from the actual fact.

In the following Table the results are given of combining the ascertained changes in the weekly rates of wages in the Rural Districts with the total number of agricultural labourers of all classes (according to the Census of 1891) employed in the Poor Law Unions in which the Rural Districts are situated* :—

—	1895.	1896.	1897.	1898.	1899.	1900.	1901.
Total number of Labourers in Districts in which the predominant rates of wages—

Decreased ..	92,334	40,751	4,932	2,740	248	..	13,086
Average amount of change in weekly cash wages per head of the labourers in Districts affected—
Increases ..	d. 6½	d. 8½	d. 7½	d. 8	d. 8	d. 8½	d. 8½

Net result—Increase (+), decrease (—).	- 5½	+ 1	+ 8½	+ 3	+ 3	+ 8½	+ 5½

These figures show that, although the improvement in the rates of wages which began in 1896 has continued, the rate of increase was lower in 1901 than in any year since 1896.

The number of agricultural labourers in districts in which wages were reported to have changed in 1901 was 172,542 as compared with 281,262 in 1900. Of the 172,542 labourers affected in 1901 the wages in districts containing 159,456 were increased, and in the case of 13,086 wages were reduced. There were no reductions reported in 1900.

The net increase per week in the districts reported on amounted to a general rise of 5½d. per week per head of those affected, or 3d. less than in 1900.

Calculated on the total number of agricultural labourers in England and Wales, the rise per head in 1901 amounted to 1½d. per week, compared with 3½d. in 1900.

The following Table (which is continued on the next page) shows the net effect of the yearly changes arranged in groups of counties :—

* When only a part of the Poor Law Union was affected by the change, the number of agricultural labourers in the Rural District affected has been estimated.

* (+) = Increase ; (-) = Decrease.

The greater number of the changes reported, both increases and decreases, occurred in the Eastern and Midland counties, which are the principal corn-growing counties of England. The number of farm labourers in districts affected by changes in wages in this group of counties was 95,935 or 55·6 per cent. of the total number affected in all districts. Of these 95,935 persons, 83,744 were in districts in which there was an average increase of 6d. per head per week, and 12,191 in districts in which wages fell 9½d. per head per week. The net effect of all the changes reported in the Eastern and Midland counties was an average increase of 4d. per head per week compared with 8½d. in 1900, and 8½d. per week in 1899.

In the Southern and Western counties the districts which were affected by changes contained 50,628 agricultural labourers, or 29·3 per cent. of the total number affected in all districts. Of these, 49,733 were in districts in which wages rose, and 895 were in districts in which decreases were reported. The average rise in these counties amounted to 6½d. per head per week, compared with 7½d per week in 1900, and 7½d. per week in 1899.

In Yorkshire, Lancashire and Cheshire the number of labourers in districts in which there was a rise of wages was 11,208, and the average increase in weekly wages was 8½d. per head, compared with the same amount in 1900, and with 7½d. in 1899. No decreases in wages were reported in these counties in 1901. In the Northern counties the changes reported affected 11,701 agricultural labourers, the average rise being 9½d. per head per week. In 1900 there was an average rise of 10½d. per week, and in 1899 a rise of 8d.

Information has again been received from various parts of Wales as to the wages of the labourers who are hired by the year or half-year, and who are generally single men and live and board in the farm-houses, as well as of the married labourers who live in cottages and who are paid a weekly wage either entirely in cash or partly in food. It is not possible to compute, from the information obtainable, the number of hired men in the different classes who have been affected by changes, and therefore the changes in the wages of the married men have been applied to all classes, as in previous Reports. In 1901 the total number of labourers in districts in which there was a change of wages was only 3,070 and the average increase in weekly wages was 8½d. per head.

SCOTLAND.—Information as to rates of wages in Scotland was obtained by the Department from a correspondent, based on information obtained from hiring fairs and from a number of representative employers.

At the hirings held between February and July, 1901, the increased rates of wages obtained in the previous year were, generally speaking, well maintained, and in many cases wages rose still further, particularly in the case of women and of men having "women workers" in their families.

At the hiring fairs held during the latter half of the year there was but little change in wages, and in nearly every district farm servants who remained in their places got their former rates, but those who sought new places not infrequently had to accept slight reductions. A report from Aberdeenshire is as follows:—"As a rule the attendance of farm servants at the fairs was larger than in most recent years. For once it could be said that the supply of servants, notably of ploughmen, was more than equal to the demand. As a natural result, there was a slight fall in wages for servants shifting places. For men the fall ran in most cases from 10s. to 20s. for the half-year. Servants remaining in their places got their old wages." In a few districts wages had an upward tendency. In Stirling a report states that "The best class of married ploughmen and dairymaids was scarce, and both looked for, and often got, a slight increase in wages."

Women at the hirings were generally scarce and their wages showed an upward tendency.

IRELAND.—Returns received from 68 correspondents in various parts of Ireland show that although there has not been a general movement in agricultural wages in 1901 there has been an upward tendency in a number of districts. The wages of hired men who are lodged and boarded in the farmhouses showed the greatest number of changes, the rates paid to this class being frequently £1 to £2 per annum (and in a few districts up to £4) higher in 1901 than in 1900. In districts where other classes have obtained higher rates the amount of increase has been generally 1s. per week in the case of odd men (or casual labourers) and ordinary farm labourers attached to the staffs of farms, and 1s. to 2s. per week in the case of herds, ploughmen and carters, and cattlemen.

A number of reports ascribe the upward movement of wages in Ireland to the growing scarcity of labour partly caused by emigration.

Seamen.

The rates of wages of seamen given in the following table are based upon returns furnished by Superintendents of the Mercantile Marine in the various ports of the United Kingdom. They show the number of engagements of seamen and the monthly rates at which they are engaged. Individuals are thus counted as often as they enter into an engagement. Therefore, an undue weight is given in the averages to those running short, as compared with long, voyages, and for this reason the average monthly rates of wages given below may be slightly too high.

The changes in the average rates at which seamen were shipped in 1901 as compared with 1900 are accurately determined by this method. It should be understood, however, that a change in the average rate does not necessarily imply a change in predominant port rates or voyage rates. In 1901 practically no change occurred in predominant rates, the slight differences shown in the average rates given in the table below being due to a variation in the numbers shipped at the various rates in the two years.

In the following Table the results of averaging the rates of able seamen and firemen shipped at the principal ports during 1900-1901 will be found, each man being counted as often as he entered into an engagement :—

Steamships.—During 1901 the wages of seamen on foreign going steamships remained practically stationary—the average monthly rate for A.B.'s and for firemen and trimmers showing an increase of 1d.

In the following summary the average amount of change in each of the six years 1896-1901 is shown :—

For seamen shipped at weekly rates average increases took place at all ports except those of Scotland, where the average rates remained the same as in 1900, and in Bristol, Newport (Mon.), Cardiff, and Swansea, where the average rate per week for firemen and trimmers fell 1d.

Sailing Vessels.—During 1901 a decrease of 2d. took place in the average monthly rates of A.B.'s on sailing vessels. The number of engagements, which from 1896 to 1899 had steadily decreased, was less than that of 1900.

Comparative figures for A.B.'s on sailing vessels for the years 1896-1901 are given in the following Table :—

Railway Servants.

As a rule the remuneration of railway servants is regulated by graduated scales of pay. At the same time continual alterations take place in the nature and amount of work to be done, and thus it is difficult to state the number of persons whose rates of remuneration for the same work have been changed during the year. Therefore, for the purposes of the present report, as for those of the three previous years, a special mode of procedure has been adopted. Application has been made by the Department to the principal railway companies for information as to the total number of workpeople employed in their coaching, goods, locomotive, and engineers' departments, and also the total amount of wages paid to those workpeople in the first week of December, 1901. The intention is to indicate the total effect of all changes in the earnings of railway servants whether arising out of—

- (a) Real changes in the scale of pay,
- (b) Ordinary advances under existing scales,
- (c) Overtime or short time.

Thus, the method followed in respect to the wages of railway servants differs from that adopted for other groups of trades inasmuch as it takes into account actual earnings rather than changes in rates of wages, and does not show the number of workpeople actually affected by changes during the year.

Twenty-seven railway companies, employing over 90 per cent. of the total number of railway servants in the United Kingdom, have supplied the information on which the following summary has been based :—

Period to which the figures relate.	Number employed in one week.	Amount paid in wages in one week.	Average weekly earnings per head.
First week in December :—		£	s. d.
1896 ...	380,114	456,380	24 0½
1897 ...	398,108	485,470	24 4½
1898 ...	412,304	507,912	24 7½
1899 ...	431,858	545,270	25 3
1900 ...	440,347	551,942	25 0½
1901 ...	440,557	551,114	25 0½

The Table shows that in the first week of December, 1901, the average earnings of the railway servants included in the returns were practically the same as in the first week of December, 1900. Some caution is, however, necessary in drawing inferences from this comparison as regards general changes in the average weekly rates of pay of railway servants during the year 1901. The return is a statement of earnings, not of rates of wages, and would be affected by changes (e.g., in the amount of over-time worked) independently of any variation in weekly rates.

Moreover, it refers to earnings in one week only in December, 1900 and 1901, respectively, and though this week has been chosen in consultation with the Railway Companies so as to avoid as far as possible any abnormal conditions, the period is too short to warrant the certainty that there may not have been some difference of circumstances in the two weeks.

For example, the absence of fog one year and its prevalence the next, would affect the comparison, as fog usually involves a good deal of extra pay.

The following table shows the averages for the various parts of the United Kingdom separately. Over the total period of six years for which these statistics have been collected the average for England and Wales shows a net increase of 1s. 1½d., for Scotland 5½d. and for Ireland 8d.

EMPLOYERS' ASSOCIATIONS.

So far as possible the following List of Employers' Associations is confined to Associations which are concerned with matters relating to the employment of labour, the intention being to exclude Chambers of Commerce, of Agriculture and of Shipping, Trade Protection and Insurance Societies, and all Associations with purely Commercial or Technical objects. It has, however, not always been easy to make the distinction, and the Department would welcome any information with regard to Societies wrongly included or omitted.

The Associations are classified under two heads, viz.: (1) National Associations and Federations, and (2) Local Associations. Many Local Associations are however, affiliated to, or are branches of, the National Associations.
